Over-The-Counter Drug Abuse Growing

By Lynn Mulvaney

KINGSTON

Hyped up by mass media advertising, more and more people are running to the drug store rather than their doctor and buying more and more of what turns out to be, in many instances, "dangerous drugs."

Over-the-counter drug abuse has increased dramatically according to James DiDonna, president of the Ulster County Pharmaceutical Society, warning that many medicines are contra-indicated and could prove disastrous to some consumers. For example, a diabetic using a high-sugar cough syrup.

Some cough syrups also are depressants and if taken in large quantities depress the central nervous system and all body functions, including respiratory rate and circulation. An overdose can result in respiratory insufficiency and paralysis with death the obvious consequence, according to pharmacist Melvin Mones.

Two of the largest groups of self-medicators are the elderly and the poor. Older persons, suffering from arthritis or rheumatism, often fall for any advertising that gives some ray of hope for relieving their suffering. They often pay all kinds of inflated prices for nothing more than "glorified aspirin compounds," and bypass the doctors for supermarket drug shelves.

Parents with many children who are on lower incomes also are inclined to self medicate them, sometimes flirting with disaster in cases of flu.

Even the taking of laxatives on a regular basis can be dangerous, the druggists warn, because they may be covering up more serious illness of which constipation is just a symptom.

The symptom indicates that the illness rather than just the constipation should be treated.

With radios and television blasting cure-alls for anything from a hangnail to whooping cough, those who feel they cannot afford a doctor or find that securing the old-time family doctor is a problem, buy the pre-packaged drugs across the counter.

Popular antihistamine cold medications in particular have brisk sales and although small print on the packaging may warn of dangers, how many read it?

Drug abuse on another level—doctors improperly prescribing "potentially dangerous drugs" to patients—has been of concern in Dutchess County. The Dutchess County Medical Society has requested and received from the State Health Department, a report on the use of dangerous drugs in the county. The report states specifically which doctors have prescribed codeine, amphetamines, ritalin and other narcotic drugs.

Dr. Robert Ballard of Hopewell Junction said the society will review the list and "if we find doctors are out of line in prescribing dangerous drugs, they will be brought before the board of censors."

Some druggists here in Ulster indicate that a very few doctors are prescribing some of the potentially dangerous drugs, but probably only to satisfy patient demand, but that there is a good check on such medications in that all such prescriptions must be "written" rather than prescribed verbally over the phone. The prescriptions must be in the druggist's hands within 72 hours. This virtually eliminates abuse, they said.

Health Commissioner Dr. Bartholomew J. Dutto indicated that there are no abuses here in Ulster County that he is aware of.

Construction Industry 'Revivals'

NEWBURGH

With construction volume in the Mid-Hudson Valley estimated to be 65 per cent below 1974 levels, both labor and management are attempting to hammer out a solution to the continuing economic malaise.

At stake are thousands of jobs, company solvency and continued economic growth for the Mid-Hudson Valley. Labor and management — both of whom have much to lose if the construction industry doesn't experience an economic revival in 1976 — have been meeting recently to explore steps that might be taken to stimulate construction in the region.

One major goal of the joint meetings is to resolve traditional union-employer conflicts that many feel tend to discourage new construction projects. With negotiations scheduled to start shortly on renewal of major labor contracts, efforts have been directed towards stabilizing labor relations. Both sides believe that better relations will insure that projects are completed on schedule at a reasonable cost, thereby encouraging owners to launch new construction projects.

Discussions have also covered such topics as productivity, labor and material costs, ways and means of eliminating work stoppages over job disputes and methods by which labor and management can together promote quality union construction.

The management group in this series of meetings is represented by officers and directors of the Construction Employers of the Hudson Valley, an organization composed of contractors performing all types of commercial, industrial and public works construction in the Mid-Hudson Valley. The group's president is Ilando S. Capolino, president of Merrit Meridian Corp. of Beacon. The group also represents major material suppliers and insurance and bonding companies.

Management representatives have been joined by union representatives from 13 locals and four Building Trades Councils from an area that includes Ulster, Columbia, Greene, Dutchess, Orange, Sullivan and Rockland Counties.

Both employers and employees in the construction industry have been hard hit by recessionary trends in recent years. Although double-digit unemployment exists in most areas of the Mid-Hudson Valley, unemployment in some of the construction trades is currently running between 65 and 95 per cent, with some tradesmen unemployed for over a year.

According to the construction industry, part of the problem has been caused by delays resulting from environmental requirements that have been mandated by law in recent laws. Both labor and management have expressed their support for legislation currently under consideration in Albany which would delay implementation of amendments to the state Environmental Quality Review Act. Recent environmental legislation — particularly the SEQR, which requires an environmental impact statement for most construction projects — have been blamed for delaying, or discouraging, new construction projects throughout the state, and particularly in the Hudson Valley.

Meetings between the two sides are expected to continue.

Control of Sinai

CAIRO, EGYPT — Egyptian troops have taken control of the last big chunk of the Sinai Desert promised them under terms of the U.S.-negotiated interim peace accord with Israel.

In Tel Aviv, political sources said Israel wants the United States to keep up its search for peace in the Middle East through talks with Arab countries but it will not settle for anything less than an Arab pledge of nonbelligerency.

Egyptian forces Sunday moved into the final 89 square miles of Sinai territory they were promised under terms of the agreement worked out last year by Secretary of State Henry Kissinger.

Takeover in Moscow

MOSCOW — Five thousand Soviet delegates and hundreds of foreign guests virtually have taken over Moscow for Tuesday's opening of the 25th Congress of the Communist party.

It was the kind of Moscow rarely seen in midwinter — or at any other time: clean, spruced up and relatively well stocked with consumer goods.

Flower sellers appeared on the streets for the first time this winter. Imported goods, including East German leather products, Czechoslovakian glassware and Hungarian clothing, appeared in store windows.

Violence Mars Tribute

DUBLIN, Ireland — Clashes between stone-throwing youths and Irish army troops marred a memorial tribute to Irish Republican Army hunger striker Frank Stagg in the latest violence to follow his death in an English jail 10 days ago.

Army troops fired rubber bullets to disperse the youths, who began hurling stones after Sunday's ceremony in Leigue cemetery near Ballina village in western Ireland.

More than 7,000 IRA sympathizers had gathered to pay homage to the 34-year-old Stagg, who died Feb. 12 following a 61-day fast.

Four Killed

NEW YORK — A car driven by an elderly man went out of control outside the Plaza Hotel on Central Park Sunday, jumped the curb, plowed into a hansom cab and a light pole, killing four persons and injuring three others.

Police said the car driven by Philip Cohen, 76, ran out of control for about 200 feet before being stopped by a parked taxicab.

35 Hostages Held

BEIRUT, Lebanon — A band of gunmen led by a Lebanese protesting he had been wrongly expelled from Canada on grounds of insanity took over the Canadian embassy today and held about 35 staff members hostage at riflepoint.

The Lebanese, identified by security forces as Mohammed Haimour, about 45, demanded that the physician and the lawyer who testified to his insanity publicly admit they were wrong, a police officer said.

Workers on March

MADRID, Spain — Some 30,000 workers in the northern city of Pamplona marched Sunday in the nation's biggest government-approved demonstration since a wave of strikes and street disorders engulfed Spain in January.

The marchers carried signs protesting the soaring cost of living. Many shouted for amnesty for the country's estimated remaining 1,000 political prisoners.

Youth Care Facility Slated for City

By Hugh Reynolds

KINGSTON

The New York Division for Youth has notified city officials that it intends to establish a youth care facility for teenage boys at 79 Andrew Street, despite official and neighborhood opposition.

Mayor Francis R. Koenig, Alderman-at-Large T. Robert Gallo and Alderman Peter J. Mancuso, D-12th Ward, were notified over the weekend of the state's intentions to proceed with its plans to purchase the Alfred Rossman House and convert it into a youth care facility for up to seven teenage (14-17) boys. Gallo lives at 124 Andrew Street. Mancuso represents that section of the city in the Common Council.

There have been two neighborhood meetings since word first got out late last year that the state was planning to purchase the Rossman residence. Reportedly the sales price was in the $45,000 range.

The reaction was similar to when the St. Cabrini Home attempted to establish a similar facility at the former Burt Ellis House at the corner of Lucas Avenue and Joy's Lane.

The state was represented by Horace Belton and Dr. Larry Dye of the State Division for Youth.

Belton said the facility could accommodate a maximum of seven boys, that it would have live-in supervision (a married couple) in addition to a director responsible for the facility.

He said none of the boys would be juvenile delinquents and that Ulster County youths would be given preference. There will be no charge-back to the county as in the case of institutions such as the Highland Training School for Boys where counties pay half the cost for their residents in residence. Belton estimated the yearly cost at a youth facility at between $8,000 and $12,000 compared to twice that for institutionalized care.

"We're very selective with our kids," Belton said. "We've had good luck and good fortune." The state operates four such facilities in Dutchess County.

Mancuso remains unconvinced, however. "I'm absolutely 100 per cent opposed," he said. "I didn't even know they were coming in there until I heard it from the neighbors."

"It isn't right to by-pass the municipalities. It's another one of your rights being trampled on," he said.

The city has no choice in the matter. State law supercedes local law in this case.

Rondout Valley Faces Shortage of Classrooms

The Rondout Valley Central School District is facing the possibility of a classroom shortage.

Superintendent of Schools James J. O'Connell told the Board of Education at its February meeting that the Kerhonkson Elementary School may be short three classrooms for the 1976-77 school year because of the deteriorating condition of the temporary classroom building adjacent to the school.

Business manager Lee Comeau reported that representatives of the State Education Department's Planning Facilities Department have surveyed the structure—as well as all of the district's buildings—and is expected to issue its report and recommendations shortly. No action will be taken on the potential problem until the state report is received and examined.

Trouble, of a sort, has also surfaced at the sand filtration bed at the high school in Kerhonkson. The filtration bed, an integral part of the school's septic system, was reported to need immediate repair. The board authorized an emergency appropriation of $12,000 to correct the problem.

In other matters, the school board: • Announced receipt of a $2,453 mini grant for a special study entitled "Analysis of Student Cognitive Styles: Empirical Mapping Project."

The board authorized a similar amount as its share of the project.

• Announced that, due to recent court action on the tax assessment for Lake Mohonk, the school district owes the resort $17,068 for excess taxes paid.

• Informed representatives of the Wawarsing Gospel Church, which rents the Kerhonkson School gymnasium on Friday evenings, that the group's use of the Bible at those meetings is a violation of the law. Church representatives asked if use of their handbook would also be a violation; the board wasn't sure about that, so it was decided that a copy of the handbook will be sent to the State Education Department for a ruling.

• Signed a contract with Programmed Transportation, Inc., to develop a contractor bid package, create a route schedule and coordinate the district's transportation system for the 1976-77 school year.

• Appointed Mrs. Cynthia M. Dunn as a Middle School Home Economics Teacher for the remainder of this school year. She replaces Mrs. Jean Zegel. The board also appointed Mrs. Marilyn DeGraw as a Middle School typist, replacing Susan Countryman.

• Approved a request by the Ulster County Blood Bank to solicit donors from the school 17-and-over student population.

Seniors' Housing Fire

KINGSTON Fire broke out at Wiltwyck Gardens in Kingston today, resulting in injuries to two residents of the senior citizens housing complex on Albany Avenue.

The two who were injured, identified as Seth and Marguerite Cobb of Apartment 6B, were brought down ladders from their second floor rooms, by Kingston firemen who responded to the 9:36 a.m. alarm. Both were taken to Kingston Hospital suffering from smoke inhalation. Mrs. Cobb was listed in good condition in the emergency room and her husband, who was expected to be admitted to the hospital, was listed in fair condition.

Authorities said the blaze broke out in apartment 5B, occupied by Mr. and Mrs. William Swart, neither of whom were reported injured. The Swart apartment is located below the Cobb apartment.

According to Alexander Yosman, executive director of the Kingston Housing Authority, which operates the senior citizens complex, the Swarts smelled smoke in their apartment and opened a closet door only to be confronted by a "11 of flames."

Firemen were immediately summoned, and the building was evacuated. Nine pieces of fire equipment were at the scene at one point. Six pieces of equipment remained at the scene shortly before 11 a.m., although the fire was out by then.

One room of the Swart apartment sustained heavy fire damage, and other rooms in their apartment and others sustained smoke, heat and water damage.

One fireman was also taken to Kingston Hospital, but the injury was not related to the fire, according to Fire Chief William Schreiber.

Four Dems Continue to Scratch

MANCHESTER, N.H. (UPI) — The Republican campaign tents were folded but four Democrats continued to scratch for votes today as New Hampshire prepared to cast the first presidential primary ballots of 1976.

Democrats Birch Bayh, Jimmy Carter, Fred Harris and Morris Udall, thought to be running in a close-bunched pack in the contest for 17 national convention delegates, remained in the populous Manchester-Nashua area for final pleas for votes.

The four, plus Sargent Shriver who was already in neighboring Massachusetts seeking support for its March 2 primary, were to meet in Boston tonight for a forum which is to be telecast nationally on public television stations.

President Ford was in Washington and GOP challenger Ronald Reagan flew west to Illinois for two days of campaigning for that state's March 16 primary. Reagan was scheduled back here Tuesday night to hear the returns from the first test of his effort to unseat Ford.

Reagan, who some think will beat or run very close to Ford in their competition for 21 GOP national convention delegates, used the weekend of New Hampshire campaigning to reply to a late volley of charges from the opposition.

"I found myself accused in recent weeks of everything but eating my young," the former California governor told a rally. He denied he had proposed to make the social security system voluntary and asked why Ford twice had offered him cabinet posts if the President believed Reagan was a political extremist.

Ford spent four days in New Hampshire to Reagan's 19, but his strategists felt the President helped himself by visiting twice in the last two weeks of the campaign.

Ford has tried to avoid letting New Hampshire seem to be a showdown. He has pledged to stay in the contest until the end.

But New Hampshire is the first statewide test of candidate voter appeal and the state's boosters like to point out that since 1952 no one has been elected president without having won the New Hampshire primary.

Ford and Reagan won't be matched again until March 9 in Florida, but the Democrats are all in the Massachusetts test in only eight days.

Their problem, which could be alleviated by results here, is to separate the public perception of their campaigns. Bayh, Harris, Shriver and Udall all used national television appearances Sunday to try to present themselves as more liberal alternatives to Carter, the former Georgia governor who is believed to be the leader here.

Carter told about 700 cheering supporters Sunday that Udall was the leader a few weeks ago but later polls showed no more than a two-or three-point difference. "We should be first," he said.

Patty and the Missing Year

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The prosecutor has set his sights on questioning Patricia Hearst about the "missing year" in her 19-month underground life — but so far the U.S. Constitution has blocked him.

U.S. District Judge Oliver Carter was expected to rule today on whether Miss Hearst can invoke the 5th Amendment when questioned by U.S. Attorney James Browning Jr. about what occurred between the fall of 1974 and her capture last September.

Browning would like to question the newspaper heiress about a Carmichael, Calif., bank holdup in which a woman was killed in April, 1975, and about the possibility the Symbionese Liberation Army had planned other stickups.

Miss Hearst used the 5th Amendment 21 times last week when questioned by the federal prosecutor about this period. Her attorney, F. Lee Bailey, said the time span was irrelevant to the bank robbery charge on which she is on trial.

She was accused of being a member of an SLA team which struck a San Francisco Hibernia Bank branch in April, 1974.

Carter also was expected to rule on whether the prosecution could use a tape-recording of a visit at San Mateo County Jail between Miss Hearst and longtime friend Patricia Tobin, daughter of the president of Hibernia Bank.

In the visit Miss Hearst expressed her feelings for Steven Soliah, an SLA associate awaiting trial for the Carmichael robbery, and said she was concerned about raising bail for him.

Soliah was arrested shortly after the capture of Miss Hearst, Wendy Yoshimura, William Harris and his wife, Emily, in San Francisco. Miss Yoshimura is awaiting trial in Oakland, Calif., on explosives charges and the Harris are awaiting trial in Los Angeles.

Browning said he wanted to question Miss Hearst about documents found in the San Francisco home where she,

Soliah and Miss Yoshimura were living at the time of the arrests.

The government said some of the documents listed possible bombing and bank targets.

A prosecution brief said Miss Hearst was "delegated full protagonistic responsibilities tending to belie the claim of being a reluctant partner in SLA activities."

Bailey has said she was brainwashed into becoming a revolutionary.

Nixon, Mao, 'Friendly Talk'

PEKING (UPI) — Former President Richard Nixon met with Chinese Communist party Chairman Mao Tse-tung today and the aging Chinese leader asked Nixon to convey his regards to President Ford when he returns to the United States.

Nixon spent one hour 40 minutes with the 82-year-old Mao. A Chinese government spokesman said they "had a friendly conversation" on a wide range of subjects. He did not elaborate.

Nixon was accompanied to the noon meeting at Mao's residence in Peking's Forbidden City by his wife, Pat, and an aide, retired Col. John Brennan. However, they did not stay for the entire session.

Sitting in on the Chinese side were Hua Kuo-feng, the new acting premier; Chiao Kuan-hua, the foreign minister; Huang Chen, the chief of China's liaison in Washington; Wang Hai-jung, vice foreign minister, interpreter Tang Wensheng; and Chang Hanchi, deputy department directors of the foreign ministry.

At the conclusion of the meeting, the spokesman said, Mao "asked Mr. Nixon to convey his regards to President Gerald R. Ford upon returning home."

Nixon first met Mao four years ago on his historic visit to China that ended almost a quarter century of Sino-American estrangement.

Mao invited the former president to pay a private visit to China because of the "significant role" Nixon played in the improvement of Sino-American relations.

Nixon drove to Mao's residence after a morning visit to the Peking Agricultural Exhibition Hall.

Nixon also met for two hours 20 minutes Sunday with Hua. Chinese officials gave no details of those discussions, saying Nixon and Hua talked about "international questions of common interest."

Nixon was scheduled to talk again with Hua today while his wife visited a kindergarten. In the evening they planned to attend a Chinese variety show.

At a banquet Sunday in the Great Hall of the People, Nixon told his hosts the security of the world depended on "the reliability and capability and determination of our two nations to work together."

Hua served as host at the dinner, but none of the other top Chinese leaders turned out for the modest affair. Four years ago, Nixon was lavishly feted in the same banquet hall by the late premier Chou Enlai.

Charge 3 City Men as Post Office Burglars

By Matt Spireng

COMSTOCK
Three Kingston men who allegedly removed a safe from a post office within sight of the Great Meadows State Prison Saturday night were rounded up following a 12-hour search by at least four police agencies.

Peter Ferraro, 35, Harry Haslam, 26, and Frank Barnes, 22, were jailed without bail on charges of third degree burglary.

State police said the trio fled on foot from the Comstock Post Office after a Great Meadows prison guard spotted them removing a safe from the post office Saturday night at about 9:30 p.m. Authorities said they were attempting to load the safe into a van.

State police from the South Glens Falls, Whitehall and Salem stations responded to the scene of the burglary, and roadblocks were set up throughout Washington County by state police, sheriff's deputies and the Whitehall Police Department. U.S. postal inspectors and D&H Railroad police also assisted in the investigation.

Ferraro was the first of the three to be captured by authorities. Troopers caught him on the D&H Railroad tracks near Comstock about two hours after the burglary.

On Sunday morning at about 9:30 a.m. Haslam was caught by troopers on the front porch of a residence in Fort Ann. A few minutes later D&H Railroad police and Whitehall Police caught Barnes attempting to get into a railroad car in Whitehall.

A bench warrant in Ulster County was issued for Ferraro's arrest several weeks ago after he failed to show up in court on a charge of third degree burglary.

Letter Taken

Investigation of a burglary Jan. 2 at the Saugerties Post Office was culminated on Sunday by Saugerties Village Police with the arrest of John J. Carney, 34, of Delaware Street, Glasco.

Carney was charged with third degree burglary. Authorities said two letters were taken in the burglary.

Carney was jailed in lieu of $5,000 bail following arraignment in village court. Police said Carney was arrested by Patrolman George Derbyshire, assisted by Patrolmen John Gessner and Marvin Osborn.

Can't Keep Hat

A $25 Stetson hat wound up costing a Saugerties resident $75 on Sunday—and he didn't even get to keep the hat.

Saugerties Town Police said Patrolman George Heidcamp stopped at a restaurant early Sunday morning for a cup of

Bach later pleaded guilty to the charge and paid a $75 fine.

Cabin Burns

A small two-story cabin in High Falls was destroyed by fire apparently of electrical origin Sunday night.

High Falls Fire Chief Peter Zegal said the cabin was fully involved in flames when volunteers reached the scene shortly before 7 p.m. About 40 men from the High Falls and Stone Ridge Fire Departments battled the flames until about 8 p.m.

There were no injuries in the fire.

Charges Dismissed

Loitering charges against five area school teachers, Joseph Ahouse, 26, of Boiceville, and Ronald Valle, 26, David P. Kwasnowski, 23, Jerry W. Corrado, 26, and Donald Hinchey, 26, all of Kingston, were dismissed last Friday night in New Paltz Town Court.

The five had been arrested on the campus of the State University College at New Paltz on Feb. 17 where increased security was in effect after a series of armed robberies.

Explaining that the charges were dismissed "in the interest of justice," Assistant District Attorney James Melbert said that while the five were on campus during the early morning hours, "they really weren't doing anything wrong."

Disorderly

Anthony Secreto, 31, of Kingston was arrested early Sunday morning at Edgar's Bar, 293 Wall Street, on the complaint of Kingston Deputy Fire Chief Hugh Greer.

Police said fire officials went to the bar after the sprinkler system was set off shortly before 3 a.m. and that Secreto was charged with disorderly conduct after he allegedly interfered with fire officials who were trying to evacuate the bar.

Hospital Drive Underway

ELLENVILLE

The drive for additional sustaining memberships has been intensified by the Ellenville Community Hospital.

The new memberships are being sought to help the hospital defray the increasing costs of medical treatment. Each sustaining membership costs $5 annually, and allows the contributors to vote at the annual hospital meeting in April and at any special meetings of the hospital corporation.

The renewed drive was announced by campaign co-chairmen Arthur C. Chipp and Leo Rosick. "We hope our sustaining members will make larger contributions this year," they stated in a joint release, "there is a serious need for funds for new hospital equipment, particularly in the radiology department."

Chipp and Rosick noted that those who join the hospital corporation this year will receive two gifts: a poison control chart with instructions for handling emergencies, and a certificate of membership which commemorates both the hospital's 10th birthday and the American bicentennial. Each certificate will be personalized and numbered.

Grain Dust Said Cause

HOUSTON (UPI) — Grain dust is a volatile substance that needs only a spark to touch it off. That, officials believe, is what triggered an explosion that leveled a 10-story grain storage building and crushed workers beneath tons of rubble along Houston's Ship Channel.

Fire Department information officer Paul Carr said officials expected the death toll in the blast Sunday at the Goodpasture Inc., grain storage and loading facility to reach at least 12.

Carr said officials believed the explosion was caused when sparks from a welding torch touched off highly volatile grain dust.

"We have one theory and that is there were four welders doing work up there (in the grain elevator). It's there we think the explosion was touched off," Carr said.

The explosion hurled hundred-pound chunks of concrete like shrapnel.

ABC-TV Don Luce on Amnesty Week Program

Outspoken Critic of Viet War Paltz Speaker

NEW PALTZ
Television news correspondent Don Luce, an outspoken critic of the war in Vietnam, will be the featured speaker at a meeting

Wednesday sponsored by the Mid-Hudson Amnesty Committee.

The meeting will be held at 8 p.m. in the Student Union Building on the campus of the State University College at New Paltz. The occasion will mark part of the local observance of National Amnesty Week.

Luce, a proponent of unconditional and universal amnesty for Vietnam war resisters, will discuss his experiences while a news correspondent in Vietnam. Also speaking on the amnesty issue Wednesday night will be Robert MacFarlane Jr., of Dutchess County, a paroled war resister.

In urging public attendance at Wednesday's meeting, Mid-Hudson Amnesty Committee coordinator Ted Lee commented, "Only universal and unconditional amnesty can bring an honorable conclusion to the conflict still dividing our people. This vendetta against Americans who rightfully resisted a wrong war must end by freeing prisoners and the upgrading of all the bad discharges given to military resisters."

In 1970, Luce gained fame when he discovered — along with two American congressmen — the notorious "tiger cages" in one of South Vietnam's largest prisons. He testified on that subject before several Senate and House investigating committees and in 1972 testified at the Pentagon Paper's trial in Los Angeles.

Luce returned to South Vietnam as a special correspondent for ABC News. His reports were also published by a number of national and international publications. Time Magazine described Luce as being "to the South Vietnamese government what Ralph Nader is to General Motors. He knows the culture and the people better than virtually any correspondent or U.S. government employee."

Luce gained additional notoriety after former U.S. Ambassador to South Vietnam Graham Martin blamed him for the fall of Saigon.

"We suspect that Ambassador Martin's accusations were exaggerated, but we welcome anyone who helped end that war," said Lee, "we are glad Don Luce continues to speak on behalf of persecuted Americans who need amnesty now."

Pattern: Mine Law Reasonable

POUGHKEEPSIE
Mid-Hudson Pattern for Progress has expressed general support for the proposed rules and regulations for implementation of New York State's Mined Land Reclamation Law.

In a statement prepared for last Friday's public hearing at the Region III offices of the Department of Environmental Conservation in New Paltz, Pattern vice-president Arthur E. Weintraub indicated his organization's agreement with the law's basic objectives.

Weintraub said that the law has special relevance to the Mid-Hudson region, where mining has been an important industry for over a century. Of particular interest, he added, is the eventual reclamation of lands along the Hudson River shorelines once these mining operations are exhausted.

"We feel the proposed rules and regulations will not only help us to achieve the basic goals of the new law," said Weintraub, "but they should also prove acceptable to both the mine operators and the environmentalists."

He did, however, point out several problems that could arise in their implementation, particularly in ambiguous wording in the law which could cause costly and unnecessary delays. Those sections, he said, need to be defined more precisely.

"On the whole," said Weintraub, "the proposed rules and regulations seem fair and reasonable, and, hopefully, should produce the desired balance between meeting the needs of an industry which is crucial to the area's economic vitality and providing for sound environmental protection."

Thruway Revenue Up . . . But

ALBANY
A five per cent increase in New York State Thruway's revenue in 1975 over the previous year is less than originally projected, but Chairman Gerald Cummins said this would not affect Thruway operations and maintenance.

Passenger car revenue was up more than 16 per cent, but commercial income overall was down 3½ per cent. Toll revenues were up about 9½ per cent.

Total revenues were $123.2 million. A late gain in commercial tolls was recorded in December, outweighing that month's truck tolls in 1974 by 12.6 per cent, said Cummins.

An Act of 'Terrorism'

Terrorism is probably too strong a word for what vandals did recently to the Kingston National Little League clubhouse at Kingman Park. A better term, though it really doesn't exist in the English language would be "chickenism."

Vandalism, like terrorism, is a despicable act. When one conjurs up a vision of a vandal or vandals, one can't help but think of a group of punks, young or old, sneaking in under the cover of darkness to perform an act that serves absolutely no purpose save the needs of some strange, strained libido.

The Freeman realizes the problems police have in apprehending a person or persons who take pleasure in this kind of activity. We can only hope that these people are caught and that any area citizens who might have information on these "nuts" would come forward and help the police.

And, finally, we can only hope that when they are caught, that they will be brought to justice. We hope the judge that hears the case will not be swayed by outside forces and will design some punishment as cruel as the act. Wrist-slapping is too good, too easy for punks like these. In this case we say: "Let the punishment fit the crime."

Readers Write

Facts, Not Headlines

Dear Editor,
Re: Your article of February 9, 1976 on page one, headlined 'Love's Labor Lost'. I am appalled!

Two local county employees involved in a dispute at work (for whatever reason) and your paper reports it with no thought to these individuals or their families. This kind of editorializing I would expect from a scandal sheet or rag newspaper, but not from the Freeman. Readers want the facts, not a screaming headline reeking with innuendo that may ultimately hurt those involved.

Pandering to a small number of your subscribers who are "thrilled" by such words can only lead to the decline of fair reporting and the loss of a good newspaper in the community.

Sincerely,
SHEILA QUICK

Letter to Gov. Carey

Dear Governor Carey:

Why have you broken with the traditions of the Democratic Party! Respect for the working man and respect and defense for those who cannot defend themselves.

Massive lay offs should be a last resort Mr. Governor, not the first. You have got the cart before the horse sir and as a result many will suffer. The working men and women you have so coldly cut will suffer and we too will suffer. We will suffer, unnecessarily, a loss of many positive services.

You say that you must put the axe to these public employees; you say that your actions are dictated by the State's dire financial straights. If our State's finances are so bad Mr. Governor, how can we afford the luxury of having over a million tax dollars finance elective abortions through Medicaid.

I urge you to stop this waste of tax dollars, before a single public servant is laid off.

It is also intriguing that while Medicaid still funds elective Abortions, you have urged an end to Medicaid funding of elective surgery designed to improve health.

Again, Mr. Governor..... Why?
Sincerely,
JAMES R. WHELAN

Minds on Election

Dear Editor,

We all know things are going to get better — our president and the news media tell us so. Even the stock market is improving in spite of doubts. If and when things do get better, you will hear the yell that will go up. The Democrats will swear that recovery was due to them. The Republicans will say it was because of them. Nobody wants to claim credit for the country's poverty and blowing up, but wait until it starts picking up — they'll both be on it then. I do not think either one of these parties knows what it's all about to be honest with us.

Both sides are doing nothing but just looking at the next election. You do not hear anyone talking anymore about when the unemployed are going back to work; meanwhile the unemployed are shifting from jobs with less pay and back to welfare, and as soon as the taxpayers themselves go broke, they too will apply to join that army of welfare recipients.

Only then will the millions of poor people with so much time on their hands, have a chance to think and study the Portuguese and Angolan revolutions, and also why our C.I.A. is secretly spending our tax dollars all over the world, trying to buy fascists to safeguard our free world from the communists.

You do not hear any more talking about how to relieve the plight of the poor folks; all you hear now is: Do you think the president is going to be elected? Who will the other side nominate? Their minds are on the elections, and that is all, because being a politician is a chance of a good salary plus lulus.

Sincerely,
ANGELO DeLEWIS
Modena

Letter to Onteora Residents

Dear Editor:

The hearings of the Onteora School Board have now concluded. Dr. Frank Marlow has been found guilty of six charges by a majority of the board and thereby dethroned. It was quite obvious that six members of the board knew how to separate the "wheat from the chaff". When the announcement of the votes became available it was quite obvious that six members of the board were truly open minded but that three members were closed minded. Did YOU notice? Did you notice that the three voted in a "block" on all charges? Come on now, it really is all too obvious. What could be their reasons for protecting Marlow? Perhaps a debt of gratitude? I for one, was glad to see that six members had the decency and honor to get rid of a blight on this district. What did it cost us? What did it save us? Let's hear those estimates and then decide if in fact, it wasn't worth the money. I strongly believe it WAS!

Because of numerous threats, I have taken several steps to protect life and property. To the persons responsible for the necessity of these protective measures I say, your identities will be made known.

Because of slanderous letters, public statements, yellow journalism, withholding of evidence, lies, unethical conduct, deceit etc. I will be taking several steps to make the true facts available to anyone who is interested in hearing them.

The hearings were a due process procedure, according to the terms of Marlow's contract. They were done in a legalistic manner, but there are many, many moral and ethical issues that were not brought out in the form of charges.

Marlow publicly stated that the charges were "based on misinterpretations, warped logic and distortions of the truth." Whose misinterpretations, warped logic and distortions of the truth is he referring to—his? And who is truly "responsible for the polarization of this district"—him?

I understand there is a petition circulating in the district. This further effort to polarize the district is just another tactic of a few pompous self-achievers who seek power, statue and fame.

Never before, in the history of Onteora, has a board of education been faced with such a challenge. The courage of six members of the board majority has sustained them through great emotional stress. James Matthews, the board attorney, has diligently and sincerely proved his ability and dignity.

Never in my 33 years of marriage to Sam had our lives been so topsy-turvy, but we survived the trauma of the past 26 months. The experience has brought us closer—our love and faith in each other has been strengthened—it has made me realize that, indeed God does work in strange ways. His wonders to perform (Sam never once doubted).

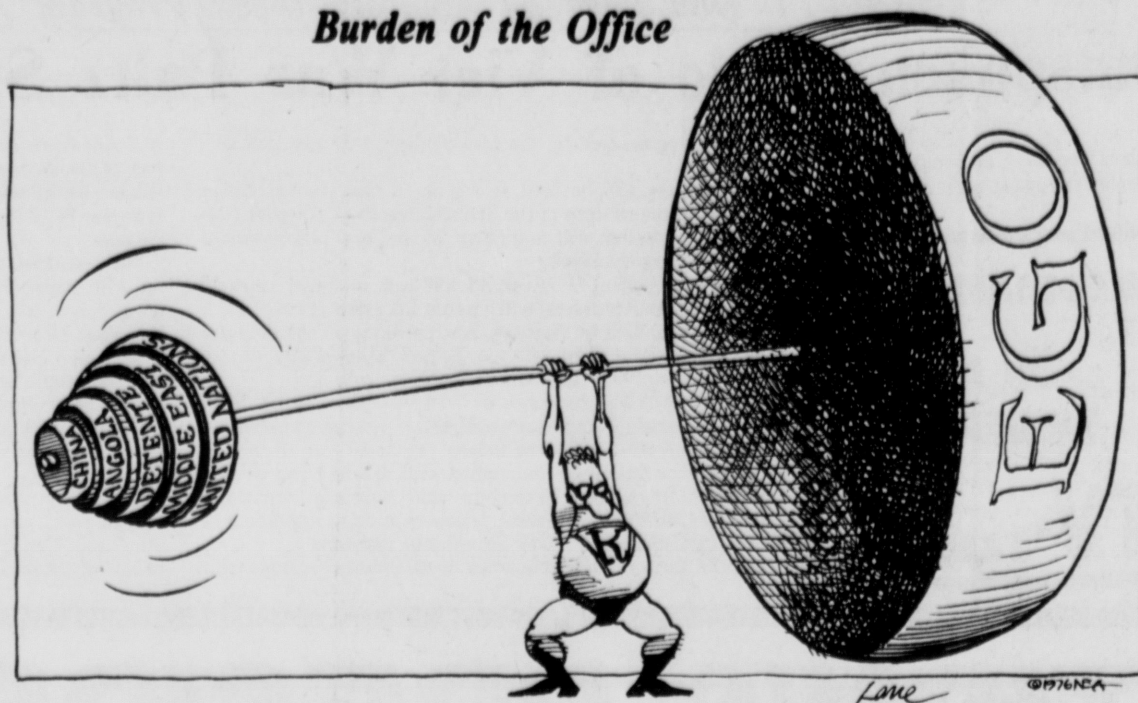

I sincerely urge the people of Onteora to reunite in love, faith and gratitude by reelecting John Mower and Howard Lewis this coming May. I also urge you to elect one more honest and open minded candidate to fill the soon-to-be-vacated seat of a board member who chooses not to run again. I urge you to support the candidates who believe in truth, justice and sincerity. I urge you to put down the divisive tactics that permeate our district.

The Onteora School District was, is, and will continue to be a government OF the people, BY the people and FOR the people.

I'd like to thank the many people who believe in the sincerity and integrity of Howard Lewis, John Mower, Beverly Britting, Jim Darrow, Don Lawson and my husband Sam Mercer.

Doris Mercer,
Woodstock

North Korea Exports Military Aid

WASHINGTON — Secret Pentagon documents reveal that North Korea, like Cuba, is funneling military aid to countries around the world.

The North Koreans also train their clients to handle sophisticated Soviet weaponry. They sent a 75-man training mission half way around the world, for example, to train Syrian pilots for action against Israel. The North Koreans "departed Syria in late 1975," adds a secret document.

Some of the North Korean arms, incidentally, have been traced by U.S. intelligence from Syria to the Palestine Liberation Organization.

The suspicion is the Soviets are using Cuba and North Korea to distribute arms to Third-World countries which prefer to play down their Moscow connections. These countries like to give the impression they are independent of the superpowers for it is more acceptable among the developing nations to accept arms from tiny Cuba and North Korea.

Neither country, of course, produces arms for export but merely transships Soviet arms. Both Cuba's Fidel Castro and North Korea's Kim Il-sung are considered to be firmly under Soviet control.

The Angolan conflict has focused the world spotlight on the Cuban role in Africa. But the news reports haven't mentioned that North Korea, too, is supporting pro-Soviet military factions throughout the world.

The Pentagon documents report that North Korea has sold or granted more than $44 million worth of military hardware to such countries as Burundi, Egypt, Mozambique, Pakistan, Sierra Leone, Syria, Tanzania, Togo and Zaire.

The shipments range from rocket launchers and jeep-mounted recoilless rifles to communications equipment and torpedo boats. One of the most surprising revelations in the secret documents is the report of North Korean aid to Zaire, which heretofore has been considered a pro-Western government. Yet the North Koreans not only supplied Zaire with some $6 million in armaments but also sent a 125-man training mission to Zaire. The mission, according to a secret report, "arrived early 1975 (and) trained recruits for a Zairean division."

The report adds that 105 "departed Zaire in December 1975. Of the remaining, three are medical specialists, nine are artillery instructors and eight are training Zairean infantry instructors."

In Korea, meanwhile, the U.S. command is worried that the rambunctious Kim Il-sung may order another invasion of South Korea. This has led Lt. Gen. James Hollingsworth, the top U.S. field commander in South Korea, to warn of U.S. retaliation against the North.

His statements have caused a flap in the backrooms of Washington. Reps. Stephen Solarz, D.-N.Y., and Don Fraser, D.-Minn., fearful that American troops might get involved in another war on the Asian mainland, have introduced a bill to end all arms aid to South Korea unless the 42,000 U.S. troops are withdrawn.

Asst. State Secretary Philip Habib also blew into the Honolulu headquarters of the Pacific command. A confidential document reports that Habib "indicated in no uncertain terms that State feels that Hollingsworth is becoming a liability with his all-revealing press statements."

Not long after Habib's visit, Hollingsworth was abruptly retired. Nevertheless, a State Department spokesman insisted that Habib "was not involved in any way, shape or form with Gen. Hollingsworth's retirement."

STIFLED RESEARCH: We recently reported that the stodgy administrators of the National Institutes of Health were stifling research which they considered "unconventional." This has caused the United States to drop behind other nations in certain fields.

In response to our column, several scientists have contacted us about other vital research that NIH is neglecting. Here are a few examples:

—Dr. Robert Reisinger has claimed for years that sudden infant death syndrome is more likely to occur among bottle-fed than breast-fed babies. This was supported last year by a New Zealand study which claimed 10 bottle-fed infants die of the syndrome to every breast-fed infant. However, his work has been discouraged and completely ignored by the National Institute of Child Health.

—Dr. James Enstrom of UCLA has studied the cancer rates among certain groups, such as the Mormons whose mortality rate from cancer is 30 per cent lower than the national rate. He has submitted numerous proposals to NIH to study different groups, which could provide insight into the causes and prevention of cancer. None have received funding.

—Dr. George Mann of Vanderbilt University has linked diabetes symptoms to an ascorbic acid deficiency. Yet all his proposals for NIH research grants since 1965 have been turned down.

—Dr. Terrance Anderson and Dr. Wilfred Shute in Canada have been working with vitamin E as a treatment for heart disease. Researchers in Japan successfully inactivated 21 different bacterial viruses with vitamin C. Yet NIH has failed to follow up any of this research.

FOOTNOTE: After we reported that Dr. Anthony Verlangieri had been turned down by NIH on important atherosclerosis research, he was contacted by two private foundations which may be willing to finance his project.

The Remarkable Miss Satin

WASHINGTON—Miss Sophie Satin died a year ago this February in her 96th year. A botanist, a teacher, a social historian, a museologist Miss Satin was, although she never seemed to have used the term, a feminist in Czarist Russia.

In the light of our modern consternations and controversies, it is ironic that one of Miss Satin's accomplishments was to be among the very first women stenographers in Russia. She writes that in 1896: "I could not continue my education because all women's colleges were closed. (Government edict.) All I could do now was to read and to wander about in the (Moscow) apartment, not knowing what to do or how to occupy myself. And then in this dull and boring 'doing nothing' period I learned by chance that somebody offered to teach the graduates of our school stenography. What did the word stenography mean? I did not know. Nobody knew it at home, neither did my friends. Only the doctor . . . said that this word in Greek should mean 'Narrow writing,' but what is this stenography for, and how and when is it used? He did not know either. Mother decided wisely that if this unknown thing is going to be taught . . . it was worthwhile to accept the offer. I followed her advice at once."

SENT TO PARIS

Miss Satin wrote that the skill was invaluable to her. Not only was she able to earn money with it, but stenographers were so rare and so much in demand that her services were used at lectures and political occasions she might otherwise not have been able to attend. In 1905 she was sent to Paris to make a transcript of an international conference, but when she arrived and the admiral for whom she was to work got a look at her, she remembered, "He exclaimed, 'They sent a woman! What a shame. Poor Russia . . . But still worse was the attitude of the three French official stenographers. They refused to move when I approached the desk given us . . . One of them muttered: the place of women is in the kitchen, and it was the British stenographer who got up, moved his papers and politely offered me the necessary space for my work." To his credit, let it be said, that the admiral changed his mind and twice offered Miss Satin a job.

This small skirmish is described in her "Recollections," a book of great charm written at the behest of American friends but which is unhappily unpublished. In it you get an idea of what Russian women had to go through to get an education in a country that had no HEW to help them.

Miss Satin and her friends had to set up their own college, but under the bootleg name of "Collective Lessons," lest the government close it down. Ultimately, because of their display of perfect behavior and staying away from political meetings, the government began to relent and Miss Satin was among the first class of women to matriculate at the University of Moscow.

Not only did Miss Satin become a botanist, but she and her friends raised the money, collected and mounted the specimens for a free natural history museum. Next they began to design and manufacture visual aids for teaching Russian children the natural sciences even as they continued their work of collecting and cataloging the flora and fauna of their native land. This could entail risks as when the tartar coachman almost totaled them and the microscope she had purchased with her Paris stenographic earnings. When they both survived, the coachman told her, "Miss you were saved by Mahomet, you won't die until you will achieve something great." This is apparently the reason why I am still alive so long."

What would Russia be like today if it hadn't driven out people like Sophie Satin and her family, which included her brother-in-law Sergei Rachmaninoff? Her descriptions of what it was like for women to live in the Soviet Union in that period are less horrifying than tales of the concentration camps, but perhaps more dispiriting because they're probably more representative of ordinary experience:

"The poor dressmaker was afraid of everybody and everything. I shall never forget her face, behavior and despair when she was ordered by the Soviet Government to go to one of the railroad stations in Moscow and be one of the guards of a special train, holding a gun in her hands. She was afraid even to look at the gun and for a whole day kept it as far from her body as possible thinking all the time that the gun might go off by itself."

RARE CHOICE

When Miss Satin got out of Russia and away from the hunger and the stupidity, she didn't take money with her but "a rare and astonishing mould. I had been unable to complete my research on this particular subject due to the revolution. I had preserved the mould spores for several years, having wrapped them in sterilized paper, hoping somewhere and somehow to finish up my research."

Sophie Satin came to love America, where for many years she pursued her life's work at the Carnegie Institute and at Smith College. Americans, however, did not always understand how she could continue to love Russia, too. Many of them thought it was a land where the people live in "caves, tents and mud huts." She confesses she lost her temper when the wife of a Department of Agriculture bureaucrat, where Miss Satin worked one summer, told her, "I imagine how happy you are to be here, coming from this savage, horrible and abominable country."

Miss Satin assumed she'd be fired for telling the lady off but, instead, "I found on my table only a glass of water with a beautiful rose and a note to 'Miss Satin.' Next day, after lunch, I found on my table a splendid peach, on the third day I found a pear. So it went all the week . . . The unpleasant incident . . . helped me to better understand and value American women and come closer to them."

The feminist movement these last years has inspired notable work on the contribution of women in our history. Sometimes, though, immigrant women like Miss Sophie Satin are overlooked.

The Health of Statesmen . . . I

In an era of crisis in domestic and foreign affairs, the health of our President bears directly on the health of the nation. Gerald Ford's decision to publicize the results of his "medical checkup" is not only refreshing, but a challenge to other candidates for the office.

Ford is a sturdy, healthy human. One assumes that his emotional health is also muscle-bound, although the White House has issued no psychological evaluation. This, to my way of thinking, is as important as the status of heart, lungs, blood pressure and cholesterol level.

When Richard Nixon was threatened with impeachment, he is alleged to have told 30 Congressmen: "I can go into my office and pick up the telephone and, in 25 minutes, 70 million people will be dead."

If this is true, President Nixon was emotionally unstable. Whether it was to be facetious or vengeful, the President could order a nuclear missile attack on the Soviet Union. If, in effect, Congress threatened to destory Nixon, the President could destory a large part of the world.

WHO REALLY WON?

Most Americans assume that President Kennedy won a victory over Russia when, in the Cuban missile crisis, he caused the Soviets to remove their intermediate missiles from Castro's island.

I think he panicked. When he told Krushchev, "We will regard any missile coming from Cuba as coming from the Soviet Union," it was an ultimatum. Kennedy had to sweat out the response. So did we. He took a long chance, and won.

The Soviets think they won. The price of shipping the missiles back to Leningrad was Kennedy's promise that the U.S. would not invade Cuba. This emboldened Castro to vilify the U.S. with impunity.

Five years ago I contracted to write a book called "FDR's Last Year." I felt that 1944-1945 was the most crucial year of the century for America, and that FDR was the architect for victory.

For three years I chased Roosevelt survivors for interviews, bits and pieces of history. I was stunned to learn that on Monday, March 27, 1944, FDR submitted to a secret medical examination at Bethesda. Navy physicians discovered that he was a dying man, irreversibly ill of heart disease.

Admiral Ross McIntire, White House physician, engineered a cover-up. He knew his boss was fading from life, but he applauded when, two months later, the President announced that he would run for a fourth term.

McIntire also lied to the press, announcing, in effect, that FDR was fit as a fiddle, except for "sinus flareups." He also choked into silence the young Navy cardiologist who discovered the terrifying truth.

In the autumn of 1944, when Roosevelt went to Yalta to bargain the world with the Russians, he had aphasia. His jaw hung slack; he had difficulty remembering what he was talking about.

To America, the physical and emotional health of our presidents is as important as their knowledge and judgment. I interviewed Dwight D. Eisenhower in February, 1956. I spent several days in the White House asking questions of many persons.

VALUE OF A BUCK

He was pink and cherubic. His head appeared to be on straight. And yet I was stunned when he told me he knew nothing of economics. Ike did not comprehend the value of a buck.

"My life," he said, "has been spent in the military. If I needed 500 planes or 1,000 tanks, I had no time to let the contracts out to the lowest bidder. All I did was write a requisition."

At a Texas ranch, Lyndon Johnson confided to me that he was spending $30 billions each year trying to win the war in Vietnam. His generals protested to him that they never had enough money, enough men, enough material, to win the conflict.

I dipped a bare foot into his swimming pool. "If we win, Mr. President, what will America get in return?" He shook his head dolefully and began to caw at some wild peacocks sitting on his fence.

Woodrow Wilson had a cerebral stroke in office. For a time, he could neither speak nor think rationally. The affairs of this country were administered by his wife and his physician, Admiral Cary Grayson.

They didn't bother to tell Vice President Thomas Marshall that he should be running the country. But then, what's a Vice President? . . .

UNESCO's Chance

When the dates were set for the compromise Israeli evacuation of the western Sinai desert, it was decreed that a buffer strip of sand dune country near the oasis of Katia would be relinquished to the UN for "neutralization" on February 22 of 1976. And thereby hangs a tale that should be called to the attention of UNESCO, the UN "cultural" organization which has reduced itself to an obscene absurdity by condemning Israeli "digs" in Jerusalem which have done no harm to "existing" monuments even while uncovering fascinating evidence of Palestinian civilizations going back to the Bronze Age.

UNESCO could redeem itself from past errors if it would only take responsibility in Sinai "neutral" zones for cultural preservation.

The Sinai buffer strip that has just been lost to Israeli supervision happens to include the buried site of an ancient city called Kassrwit, which was built some three centuries before the birth of Christ by the ancient Nabateans.

Buried by Sands

Way back in 1911, French archaeologists discovered the existence of the Kassrwit ruin, but nothing much was done about it. The drifting sands soon obliterated the marks of a casual French excavation. It was not until the Israelis moved up to the Suez Canal in the 1967 war that scientists from Ben-Gurion University in the Negev city of Beersheba began looking into the remains of some 800 settlements in the northern Sinai.

As a result of this thorough search Kassrwit was rediscovered for a second time. The reaches of 75 acres of the Nabatean city were staked out by aerial photographers, who traced the limits of the concealed ruins by observing irregularities in vegetation.

What followed was a Herculean effort by Professor Eliezer D. Oren and a group of excavators to make Kassrwit as familiar to archaeological buffs as Meggido or Caesarea or any other comparable Mid-eastern ruin. Working in recent months against the February 22 deadline, the Israeli scientists have uncovered several large temples, many housing complexes, a host of tombs and 20 skeletons, and even suburban satellite communities some two miles from the Kassrwit center.

The most "emotional" find, according to Professor Oren, was a small clay lamp with the imprint of a menorah, the seven-branched candelabrum that goes with Jewish worship. What the menorah discovery would indicate is that Kassrwit must have passed into Hebrew possession when the Nabateans were defeated by the Roman Emperor Trajan in 106 A.D.

With the passage of Kassrwit into UN hands, it will be interesting to see what happens to the site. The natural conditions of the northern Sinai desert are, in Professor Oren's words, "most hostile" to the preservation of archaeological excavations. The sand in this part of the world blows incessantly. Without constant clearing, Kassrwit could disappear from human sight in less than a year.

Sincere Move

Clearly, if UNESCO were sincere about its concern for the integrity of ancient monuments, it would move to keep Kassrwit from being lost all over again to human inspection. The Israeli excavations at the site were not made at the expense of altering anything that might have been called "historical." UNESCO was only hypocritically concerned with the Israeli "digs" in the Old City of Jerusalem, which have carefully avoided jeopardizing the area where the Moslem shrines, the Dome of the Rock and El Aqua Mosque, are located.

A traveler was passing through an ancient city when he saw three men working near a pile of stone. He stopped to rest his camel and chat with workmen. He stepped up to one of the men who was sitting on the ground chipping away at a stone with his hammer and chisel. For a few moments the traveler watched in silence as the man went about his work then he said, "Tell me, young man, what is the purpose of your labor?" The workman dropped his tools as he looked up at the traveler and replied, "Why, Sir, I'm shaping a stone." The traveler said, "Oh yes, of course, I should have known."

He then went to the second man and asked the same question. "What is the purpose of your labor?" This man hesitated for a moment then answered, "I suppose you would say that I am helping to build a wall." The wise old traveler then went to the third workman and asked a similar question. "Why do you work with the stone, what is the reason for your labor?" This man was different, he had a purpose in life. He smiled as he looked up at the stranger, then he rose to his feet and as he looked up at the sky he gestured with his hands high and wide apart, and with a sparkle in his voice he said, "My good man, I am building a great cathedral."

It is well for us to pause occasionally during the rush of our busy lives to appraise our own progress. Perhaps we should ask ourselves, "What am I doing with the precious time that has been allotted to me? Am I going along through life, day after day, in the swim of complacency doing just enough to get by, doing just what I have to do and no more? Am I contented to shape a mere insignificant block now and then, soon to fade into oblivion? Or does my life have a clear and definite purpose? Have I found my real place in life? Have I caught the vision of the goals I want to achieve? Have I dedicated myself to that purpose?"

To each of us is given the power to choose what he will do with his own inherent potential. Some will content themselves to meet the minimum, but others will broaden their scopes and raise their sights. They will see higher and farther into the realm of their own possibilities. They will take advantage of the latent talents and abilities which nature has given them, and because of their courage and ambition, they will build the magnificent structure of a successful life and enjoy the abundance of life's riches. They are the people who will find "The Way To Win."

Inside Report

Disappearance of Congressmen Scandalous

Rowland Evans and Robert Novak

WASHINGTON—On Feb. 5, a high official of the Federal Energy Administration (FEA) saw the chance of a generation slipping away and placed a panicky long distance call to one of several Republican Congressmen who had suddenly disappeared from the House floor — a disappearance that can best be described as scandalous.

The chance was the first good prospect in two decades and perhaps the last good prospect for some time of deregulating natural gas prices. That's why the FEA official panicked when he noted so many absentees and tried to round them up. Actually reaching one back home in his district, he asked the Congressman what in the world he was doing there. The reply was blunt: "Hell, I've got a tough race on my hands."

Tough re-election contests plus paid speaking engagements, vacations, routine weekend visits home and just plain lassitude accumulated 25 absentees for the Thursday afternoon vote. Since most of the absentees favored deregulation, they are responsible for a 205 to 201 vote that killed gas deregulation almost surely for this year and quite probably into the foreseeable future.

To permit their troops to wander on such a critical vote questions the competency of House Republican leaders but also raises this broader point: members of the best paid, best staffed and most luxuriously equipped parliamentary body in the history of man often act more like volunteer village selectmen handling legislative duties in their spare time than directors of a multi-billion-dollar corporation.

That so liberal a Congress seemed about to deregulate gas prices after 25 years of court-ordered controls was a triumph of reason over ideology. Many liberals, threatened by a natural gas shortage, had become convinced that artificially low regulated prices inhibited production. That generated Senate passage of a moderate deregulation bill and what seemed nearly certain House approval of an even better bill.

The stunning 205 to 201 vote against deregulation was attributed generally by key Republicans to organized labor's lobbyists swarming all over Capitol Hill at the eleventh hour to fight deregulation. Other Republicans explaining away the setback cited that morning's Washington Post revealing heavy oil contributions received by principal sponsor of deregulation, Democratic Rep. Robert Krueger of Texas. ("Krueger was really indecent to accept that amount of money," one senior Republican Congressman, in an uncharacteristic display of moral indignation, told us.)

Such claims are dubious. There is no evidence the avalanche of labor lobbyists changed many votes. Liberal Republican Rep. Margaret Heckler of Massachusetts told us the Krueger revelations helped decide her vote, but there was no stampede. Rather, these reasons seem a smokescreen hiding what one Congressman never chides another for under the gentleman's code of Capitol Hill: absenteeism.

Expert analysis shows that of the 25 absentees, 15 favored deregulation. Of the remaining 10, only four would have voted against deregulation (with four others not being present to vote in any event and two anti-regulation Republicans keeping away from the floor at the request of party leaders). Thus, the absentees unquestionably made the difference.

Of the 15 deregulation absentees, only one — Republican Robert McEwen of New York — had a valid excuse: illness. The remainder apparently had better things to do.

Rep. John Anderson of Illinois, chairman of the House Republican conference, sized up the situation incorrectly and felt he could fulfill a speaking date at the University of Southern Mississippi without missing anything. Three conservative Republicans from Ohio — Donald Clancy, John Ashbrook and Chalmers Wylie — were flying back for week-ends in their constituencies (the later two taking earlier planes because of bad weather).

Republican Sam Steiger was giving a speech back home in Arizona. Republican Garry Brown of Michigan was out of town for a rest. Democrat Bill Alexander of Arkansas was in Steamboat Springs, Colo., celebrating his wedding anniversary. Democrat Kenneth Holland of South Carolina was addressing his state's municipal association.

Others were in Washington but not on the floor. Republican Herman Schneebeli of Pennsylvania was cutting a radio tape and did not hear the buzzers. Republican Pete McCloskey of California was caught in a room without buzzers. Democrats Jack Brooks of Texas and Bill Chappell of Florida did not make it to the floor in time. The 15th absentee, Democrat Wilbur D. Mills of Arkansas, was not available to explain his absence. Of these, Brooks is suspected by deregulation forces of taking a walk to avoid an anti-labor vote (an accusation denied by Brooks.)

Republicans, outnumbered 3 to 2 in the House, accounted for 10 of the missing 15 votes for deregulation. Since nobody claims the Democrats intentionally misled them, this points to needed improvements in the Republican whip system.

But fully grown Congressmen earning $44,600 a year — only a small fraction of the tax money spent to support them — ought to be able to get on the floor for vital votes without being whipped. In truth, absenteeism is rampant in Congress, though usually for votes less important and not nearly so close as the probably irreparable action taken Feb. 5.

Celebrity Auction

NEWBURGH
It's not the New Hampshire primary but President Ford's presence will be felt at the Mount Saint Mary College third annual auction Wednesday, Feb. 25 at 7 p.m. in the Aquinas Hall theatre. The President leads the parade of celebrities who have donated items to be auctioned to the highest bidder. For the third year, noted auctioneer, Richard Larsen of Pine Bush has donated his services for the occasion.

Among the nearly 200 articles donated so far by celebrities, faculty, staff, students, friends and generous businesses are antique end tables, silver, handwoven blankets, wine, paintings, dinners for two at the finest restaurants, home-cooked dinners, a camping trip and service donations like babysitting and hustle lessons. A date with a Williams College pre-med student will be auctioned. Mount students have fanned out through the community, collecting articles given by generous area merchants.

Lucille Bowser, director of Development at the college, is urging everyone in the Mid-Hudson Region to attend the auction to find "their share of treasures." Her office door in Aquinas Hall is open to people who would like to bring things for the auction. "We have already received many fine items," she said, "items that are of real personal value to their donors."

Wicks Auxiliary

KINGSTON
Ladies Auxiliary of A. H. Wicks Fire Company held an installation banquet recently at Stockade Restaurant.

Officers installed included Mrs. Larry Hyatt, president; Mrs. Clarence Wilber, vice president; Mrs. C. John Bechtold, treasurer; Mrs. Clark Myers, secretary.

The Auxiliary will celebrate its 20th anniversary in April. Throughout the years it has contributed to numerous worthwhile causes in the community.

and Saugerties, will meet Tuesday at 8 p.m. with Assemblyman Maurice Hinchey at the Bonanza Branch of Heritage Savings Bank, Route 9W North, Ulster Avenue Mall. Assemblyman Hinchey will speak on the New York State Legislature. A question and answer period is planned afterward.

Local Leagues are beginning a study of the New York State Legislature.

LWV membership is made up of men and women whose conviction is that a free and democratic society can survive only if its citizens are informed about and involved in their government. The LWV is non-partisan and never supports or opposes a particular candidate or particular party.

Several candidates for the Presidency are urging the return of more governing power to the states. Yet, surveys show that the average person is not familiar with his state government, and a large percent of those polled had no idea who represents them on a state level, how their state government functions, or how their state taxes are spent. The League, therefore, feels its current study is particularly timely.

The public is invited to Tuesday's meeting and urged to join the League's study groups. Those unable to attend the meeting but are interested in membership or in having more information should write the League of Women Voters of Mid-Ulster County, UPO Box 564, Kingston.

Leap Year Hop

Gary Lee Schwartz, disc jockey, will be on hand to make the Hurley Recreation Leap Year Dance a jumping affair on Saturday, Feb. 28. Committee members Marion Darling, Keith Kempton and Anita Bruck smile their approval. The fun begins at 9 p.m., and tickets are available at the Hurley Corner Store or at the door.

New Paltz Will Wear Green

NEW PALTZ
It's doubtful St. Patrick ever found a snake in the grass. His life is steeped in legend, and perhaps the one best known is that he drove all the snakes out of Ireland and into the sea. But probably there never were any snakes on the Emerald Isle, say researchers. There certainly are none now.

None of which will make any difference to his loyal supporters in New Paltz, who will march in the Fourth Annual St. Patrick's Day Parade on Sunday, March 14. Leprechaun lovers, one and all, they'll step off at 2 p.m. from North Manheim Boulevard.

The parade has been a yearly event in Paltz since 1973 when it first wended its way down Main Street. From a handful of marchers in the beginning, it has continued to grow. Now a well organized affair, it has become a major town event.

This year, local bands, fire companies and many groups and organizations from several counties will pay homage to the patron saint of Ireland.

In New Paltz, wee folk and big folk are donning St. Patrick's Day T-shirts in anticipation of the event. And any individual or organization interested in marching or helping with the parade is invited to phone Zach's, 125 Main Street.

These wee folk and other leprechauns in large numbers will invade New Paltz on the afternoon of March 14 for the Fourth Annual St. Patrick's Day Parade.

New Paneling Has 'Character' — Marks of Pecky Cypress

Chrome and glass, whites and burnt yellows play against the deep rich brown coloring and graining of Pecky Cypress Brown Design paneling in this living room setting. The new prefinished hardboard paneling from Masonite Corporation authentically duplicates the distinctive character marks of one of the world's rarest and most exquisite woods. The deeply etched markings recreate the look that takes nature 200 years to achieve.

The deep tones of the plank-like paneling offset the bone whites of the squaredoff lamps and sofa. These angular designs are repeated throughout the room; in the chrome and glass etagere and parson's table and in the squared tub chairs. Both privacy and togetherness are served as the paneling is used to set off a corner of the room for an office-den arrangement. The easily installed panels have the ease of maintenance demanded in modern homes and apartments. They can be cleaned with the sweep of a damp cloth or sponge.

Pecky Cypress Design paneling also is available in White, Golden and Gray.

Clever Storage

MOVEABLE DIVIDER mounted on casters is easily adapted to varying floor space needs. One side of the unit is covered with Masonite brand hardboard paneling like that used on the walls of the family room. The prefinished paneling is attractive, durable and easy-to-clean.

FOR PRIVACY WITHOUT ISOLATION the moveable divider partitions off a hobby center. The model train table folds into the paneled wall when not in use.

DIVIDER'S OTHER FACE conceals storage space. Caster-mounted, the unit easily can be moved without having to clear off the shelves.

Heeere's McMahon!

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Ed McMahon plays a lush in a new movie and the wise guys nod their heads and cry, "Type casting."

For better or worse, jolly Ed shares Dean Martin's reputation as a world class toper.

During 14 years as Johnny Carson's sidekick on the "Tonight Show" Ed has been kidded for schlepping sauce on a gargantuan scale.

Whenever he lifts a coffee cup on the show the audience titters. They know McMahon, like Jackie Gleason, is sipping 98 proof firewater. Booze jokes are tailor made for the big, bluff Irishman.

Strangers are compelled to send a round of drinks to Ed and his girlfriend whenever they show up at a restaurant.

He's been accused of being a test pilot for National Distillers.

Ed's heard more gags about the size and condition of his liver than a French doctor at Vichy. If his eyes are puffy from the Los Angeles smog, it is taken for granted McMahon is nursing a hangover.

In "Dick and Jane" Ed plays a businessman souse with such authority he is certain to add to his legend as a two-fisted drinker.

The prospect doesn't bother Ed a bit.

"My image as a heavy drinker has given me a good relationship with the American public," he said soberly in the Burbank Studios commissary during the noonday break. "People feel they can sit down and have a drink with me. It gives us a common bond."

"There's no way anybody could drink as much as I get credit for and still be walking around. Or even crawling around."

Ed's apartment at the beach recently burned, forcing him to move. There were unfounded rumors the blaze was caused by spontaneous combustion of alcoholic fumes.

His association with a national brewery as a television pitchman hasn't dimmed Ed's reputation as a drunk either. But he takes it all good naturedly. He feels it's better to have that image with the public than no identification at all.

"The whole thing has added pizzazz and color to my career," he said.

"It's true, that isn't coffee in the cup I drink from on the show. It's tea. Just plain tea."

He patted his abdomen and said he had lost 35 pounds in recent years.

"No one can lose as much weight as I have and drink very much," he said. "And I work too hard to put away as much booze as I get credit for. These days I drink mostly white wine."

"I haven't missed a 'Tonight Show' since we went on the air. It's tough enough trying to keep up with Johnny Carson sober. It would be impossible to try if I were drunk."

Eat and Grow Younger

Final Words of Nutrition Wisdom: Don't Grow Old at Dining Table

In planning your Eat-and-Grow-Younger program of high-protein foods, I have tried to keep in mind the only important nutritional taboos which have a basis in scientific fact. Following are some do's and don'ts:

1. Avoid combining high-proteins (red meats, poultry, fish, eggs, cheese, milk) with high-starches (rice, macaroni, spaghetti, white bread, rich desserts) at the same meal.

And if, for some valid reason, you are forced to eat more high-starch meals than high-protein, then by all means take liberal amounts of supplemental vitamins, since the more starch you eat, the more your body is depleted of the B-complex factors that have the specific task of postponing the day when you must say farewell to youth.

2. Avoid combining pure fats with high starches in the same meal. For instance bacon (almost 100 per cent fat, and of the wrong kind, too), fried potatoes, cream, white sugar, white bread and jelly are a rather common breakfast menu in some homes, yet nothing could be worse nutrition.

It's absolutely impossible to plan a meal that doesn't include some carbohydrate. But the thing to keep in mind is this: A meal should be predominantly either protein or carbohydrate. When it is predominantly protein, it should include only those natural starches found in vegetables, fruits, milk and honey or unrefined raw sugar. This means, as on example, omitting a rice or macaroni dish and pie with your steak, substituting the carbohydrates to be found in a green salad, a cooked vegetable and a fruit or custard dessert.

STIMULATE DIGESTION

Start your meals with fruit, a cup of vegetable soup, a bouillon or meat broth. Why? Because fresh fruits, together with meat extracts or the bouillon made by simmering meats and vegetables together, are rich in certain extractive substances that help to excite the gastric glands into producing the very powerful hydrochloric acid which is essential for thorough digestion of a protein meal.

This is a timely spot to bring up the subject of chewing. A lot of false information and erroneous advice has been handed out to the public for years on the subject of "proper mastication of food." Once and for all, I would like to clear up these mistaken ideas, and present the facts. In brief, here is your "chewing chart":

HOW TO CHEW

1. All vegetables, fruits and sugar-starch foods should be chewed thoroughly. Carbohydrates are digested in an alkaline base, as I've explained before. The saliva in your mouth is an alkali, and is secreted by the salivary glands as the first step in the long and complicated digestion of carbohydrates. Therefore, if you bolt your carbohydrate foods, you cause them to miss this preliminary digestive processing.

2. All protein foods such as meat, fish, poultry, eggs, and cheese require little chewing for good digestion. No doubt this comes as a surprise to you—a complete reversal of everything you've ever been taught about mastication. Meat has been conscientiously and laboriously ground for the person with poor, or no teeth; while eggs have been boiled only enough to set the white for the person with a "weak digestion." All of which has been a serious digestive and nutritional mistake!

A final word on "home" digestive aids: The kindest thing you can do for your stomach is not to overload it. If food gives you a real taste thrill, you eat less, are better nourished, and avoid the dangers of overeating.

A good rule to follow: First eat all the foods you need. Then, if there is capacity for something else—have it. Chances are you won't want it.

To prevent "internal chemical starvation," your body cells need the important vitamins and minerals. The sad fact is that many of our foods do not supply all of the vitamins and minerals we should have for maximum nutrition.

For that reason, in addition to good eating, it is wise to use supplemental vitamins and minerals. For my own use, I find the formula called "Nutri-Time" to be an ideal vitamin-mineral food supplement.

I've told you the facts. The living of these facts is up to you.

Your mind and your body can remain youthful many years past your so-called "prime," if only you don't help fasten the shackles of premature old age on yourself every time you sit down at the table.

Eat to grow younger!

Dear Abby

More Tip-Offs on Spouse Slip-Ups

© 1976 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I, too, received an anonymous telephone call concerning my husband. It went something like this: The phone rang in my office in our small-town, weekly newspaper, and the woman who called asked my identity and then said:

"Is your daughter home?"

"Which one?" I asked. "I have three."

"The one who's a nurse?"

"A nurse? Why do you ask?"

"Well, I just saw your husband drive by Mt. Pleasant and Roosevelt, and he had a young woman dressed in white with him!"

I laughed (I couldn't help it), then she banged down the receiver.

The small cafe next to us had only two girls working there (in mid-afternoon), and one of them had caught her hand in a mixer. The other girl asked if one of us would please drive the injured girl to the emergency hospital, and it was easier for my husband to get away than it was for me, so he drove her there.

What did that woman expect to gain except to make me unhappy?

I'm glad I laughed. It must have taken the wind out of her sails.

RUTH IN IOWA

DEAR RUTH: I happen to agree with you. But read on for a letter from someone who disagrees with both of us.

DEAR ABBY: When I read your advice to the woman who had received an anonymous call telling her that her husband was having an affair, I became furious. You told that woman that the caller was probably a miserable person trying to make others miserable, and the wife should forget about the call!

Well, Abby, let me tell my story: I, too, was married to a fine, professional man for a number of years. I, too, received an anonymous phone call telling me that my husband was having an affair with his secretary. I, too, was dumbfounded. However, instead of forgetting it, I did my own investigating and discovered that my husband was in fact dating his secretary—and had been for some time.

In my opinion, the person who informed me was not a "miserable person" trying to make me miserable. She was simply a friend who was trying to tip me off.

I think it is absolutely disgusting that the wife is always the last to know about her husband's extracurricular activities. I'd rather be miserable knowing the truth about my husband than live in "ignorant bliss" with a man who makes a mockery out of his marriage vows.

THROWING THE BUM OUT

DEAR ABBY: My 86-year-old mother always starts up an argument with me whenever we have company. I am a nervous person and flare up quickly, and before you know it, there is a big battle raging.

This happened again over the holidays, and my married children who were visiting me at the time packed up their kids and put their luggage in the car, and it was "Adios, Amigos!"

This was very humiliating to me, Abby. It's happened before, but I can't seem to prevent it. Don't tell me to lock Grandma in her room or send her down the basement. She won't go.

WIDOW IN INDIANA

DEAR WIDOW: Has it ever occurred to you that your elderly mother may be emotionally or mentally unstable? It takes two to battle. Whether your mother is right or wrong, to keep the peace, keep quiet, and you'll have your problem solved.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Growing Older

Why Penalize Over 65?

By Harold Blumenfeld

You may already know that January 1 the earnings limitation on Social Security benefits was raised from $2,520 to $2,760 for the year. But don't be deluded. This doesn't mean that you will receive an additional $240 in cash during the year which you can spend to repair the car, buy new clothes or blow for a night on the town.

It's only a new ceiling for the outside earnings you may receive for working before they start chipping away at your normal Social Security benefits.

Let's suppose you are on someone's weekly payroll, doing regular work and taking home a small salary check which has kept you just under the old limitation on outside earnings. Your employer thinks you have been doing a good job and wants to give you a $5 or $10 raise in weekly salary. But this new $240 raise in earnings limitation only comes to a little more than $4 a week and it puts you on the horns of a Social Security dilemma.

The merit raise may be good for the ego but bad for the pocketbook even though Social Security officials tell us if we earn more than $2,760, only $1 will be deducted from every $2 of extra earned income.

Which is confusing, demeaning and grossly unjust for the man or woman over 65, but under 72, who wants to work to obtain some much-needed extra income and to keep alive by doing something productive.

Just like our tax laws, the Social Security system has loopholes which favor them that have and penalizes them that don't have and who need the extra income. Money from investments, such as stocks, bonds, real estate, etc., is not counted under the ceiling of outside earnings. Only the money for which someone actually does a day's or a week's work.

If a person is not on a payroll and is paid for specific work for his extra earnings, his Social Security benefits will be reduced or eliminated only in those months when he exceeds the allowable amount. And the person who received a small weekly check from a payroll computer finds his earnings probably have edged past the new ceiling limitation and he loses some or all of his normal benefits.

A friend before his retirement was recognized as one of the country's leading newsphotographers and photo-journalists. Last year he accepted a part-time teaching position at a Texas university. After he finished paying taxes and maintenance on his California home, income tax, rent on an apartment in Texas, and other expenses, his new earnings matched against the loss of his Social Security benefits, cost him money in the short and long run, which is demoralizing. He has been offered the same temporary teaching position for 1976. And although he has such a great store of knowledge and professional experience to impart to the college students, he is thinking seriously of delaying his acceptance for another year. Then he will be 72 and won't have to worry about any cuts in his Social Security benefits if he works.

I have learned of a Citizens' Lobby being organized on a local level in several parts of the country, with the main objective to rescind Social Security limitations on outside earnings. If there is such a lobby in your neighborhood, join it and work with it. If not, get your older friends to help set up such a working group. And maybe soon we can join all of these forceful splinter groups into one powerful national organization and do our own lobbying in Washington.

Irwin Still Haunting Watson

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Hale Irwin bristled at the question. Clearly, he was tired of answering it.

"Let's get out there and print those words, boys," the bespectacled former University of Colorado defensive back snapped. "Keep the faith, brother.

"No, it doesn't bother me. And yes, it would be nice to be recognized."

Irwin may not like to talk about the amount of recognition he does or doesn't get, but the fact remains — he probably is the most underrated player on the tour.

In a re-play of the 1974 U.S. Open, the nine-year pro from St. Louis came from behind to beat British Open champion Tom Watson and capture first place money of $37,000 in the Los Angeles Open. Two years ago, he won the U.S. Open at Winged Foot, N.Y., after trailing Watson by one shot after three rounds.

In the Los Angeles Open, he trailed Watson by three shots at the end of three rounds and was five shots back after the first three holes Sunday.

"But I just hate to give up the ship and I wasn't about to give up," said Irwin, 30.

"I still had 15 holes to play. What I needed were quick birdies — which I got. What I needed from Tom were some mistakes quickly — which I got. So I guess it was the roll of the dice."

Irwin, who ranked fourth in money won on the tour last year with $205,380, posted his sixth career triumph.

Watson, who led after the second and third rounds, finished with a 73 to wind up two shots behind Irwin's 72-hole score of 272, a tournament course record. The old record was 275 set by Ben Hogan in 1948 and equalled by Pat Fitzsimons last year.

Although the pair played in separate threesomes, it was strictly an Irwin-Watson shootout, and Irwin, winner of two straight World Piccadilly Match Play championships in England, was the superior head-to-head man.

"After number six, we had 12 holes of play match," the winner said. "Match play golf takes a lot out of you. It's very taxing for me, not only did I have to give it the physical effort to play this golf course, which is very demanding, I had to think what I was doing and I had to think what Tom was doing too."

"I asked my caddy, 'What did he do?' He said it didn't matter. I told him, 'Listen, tell me, I want to know what he's doing because it's important to me. It's important how I play.' I am an aggressive player, and I hate to take the defensive, but if I have a five-shot lead, I do play differently."

Irwin's check gave him $69,995 for the winter and the momentum going into this week's Tournament Players Division championship in Florida. Watson got $21,090.

"Any win is satisfying, but I like the way I won," Irwin continued. "I wouldn't have wanted to win with a 70."

"I did shoot in the 60s for four straight days on a course that's pretty darn difficult and I'm pretty proud of that."

Irwin's card included a 60-foot chip shot for an eagle three on the 506-yard opening hole. However, Watson, playing in the threesome behind Irwin, matched that and Irwin bogeyed the second and third holes.

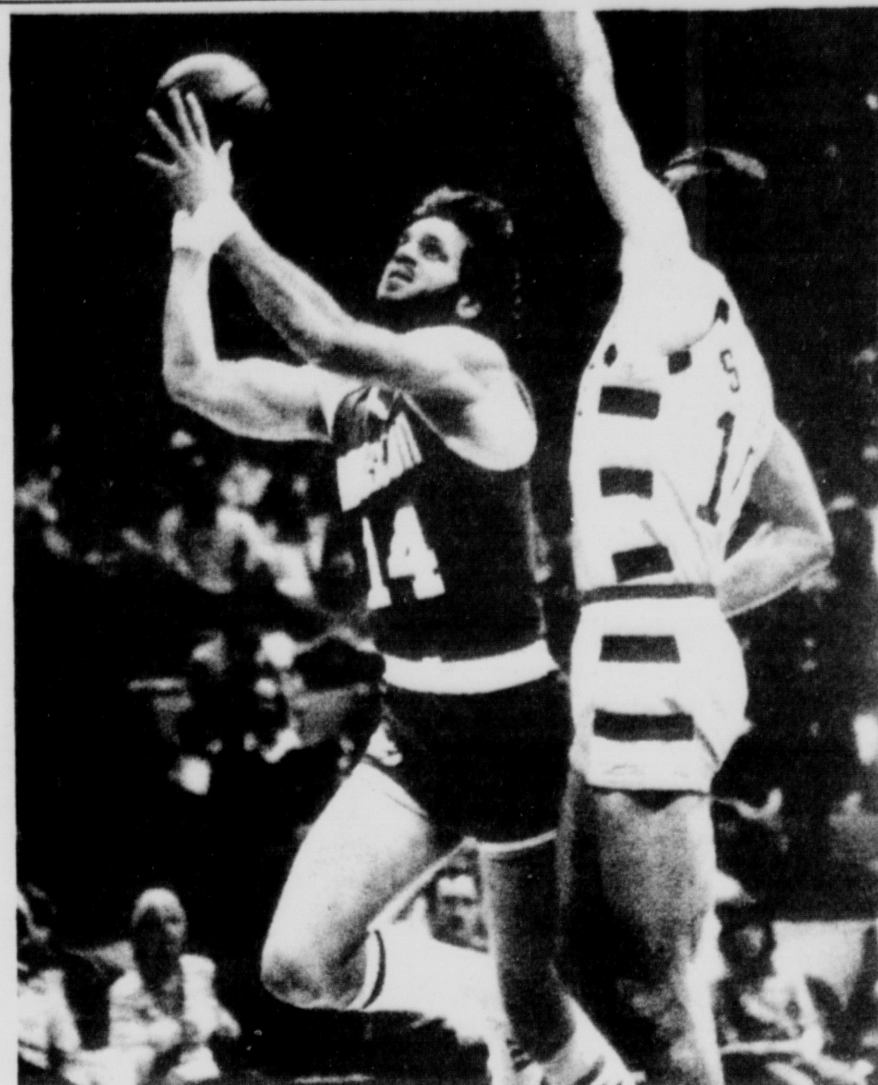

He got back in the match with birdie putts of 15 and 12 feet on the fifth and seventh holes while Watson bogeyed four and six and double bogeyed five.

"Five and six were very important holes," Irwin noted. "Tom made a double bogey at five and I birdied the hole, so that was three shots. Then I got it up and down from nearly an impossible place on six. It looked like I was going to make at least a four, and I wound up with a three."

"Then he bogeyed the hole. So I picked up four shots in two holes."

Irwin's previous rounds were 69-69-66 while Watson had 67-66-68 going into the last 18.

"I felt like Tom had been playing the kind of golf that would be hard for him to match," Irwin said. "You just don't go out and shoot the kind of scores he was shooting and not have some letdown somewhere. I know I wouldn't want to go out tomorrow and try to match the scores I shot in this tournament."

Kathy Survives

SARASOTA, Fla. (UPI) — Veteran Kathy Whitworth survived a challenge by 21-year-old Hollis Stacy Sunday to win the $60,000 Bent Tree Ladies Golf Classic by one stroke.

The 36-year-old Whitworth, who won her 76th LPGA golf tournament, went into the 18th hole tied with Stacy but clinched the $8,500 first prize when her opponent's drive on the final hole went into the water. Stacy bogeyed the hole while Whitworth made a routine par.

Whitworth finished with an erratic 71 for a 54-hole score of 210, six under par over the wind-swept 6,115-yard, par 72 Bent Tree Country Club course.

One stroke behind Stacy, who shot a 69, was Amy

Alcott, who held the lead the first two rounds. Alcott, who was hoping to celebrate her 20th birthday with a championship, lost her putting touch and faded to a 75 for a 212 total.

Sandra Post shot a 73 to share fourth place at 213 with Sandra Palmer, who had a 74. Stacy, a three-year LPGA veteran from Boca Raton, Fla., had started the day four strokes from the lead but pulled into a tie with Whitworth when she sank a 20-foot birdie putt on the par 3, 17th hole. Whitworth bogeyed the same hole.

However, her tee shot on the 18th sailed into water on the right. A 15-foot putt for par missed to the right side of the hole.

"She made only one mistake the whole round and it cost her the tournament," said Whitworth, a native of Richardson, Tex., who increased her leading all-time LPGA money winnings to $589,886. "I know Hollis will relive that hole for weeks. The next time she's in that position she'll be a little more careful."

Stacy agreed. "I got a little excited after that two-stroke swing on the 17th," she said. "My heart was going about 1,000 beats a second. I just swung a little quick. The next time, I'll know there is only one way to play that hole—safe."

Stacy's score was the second best of the day. Whitworth finished with five birdies and four bogeys on the day.

Russell's Sonics Are Ready

By United Press International

The Seattle Sonics are on a win streak and Coach Bill Russell says he isn't concerned about the upcoming extended road trip. He just hopes the team can return home holding second place in the Pacific Division of the National Basketball Association.

The Sonics Sunday handed the Los Angeles Lakers a 97-91 beating before a national television audience. The victory equaled Seattle's consecutive win record of seven and pushed the Sonics a 1½ games in front of the Lakers in the battle for second in the Pacific Division.

"I think both teams had rating fever," joked Russell. "That's when you play on television and nobody wants to look bad so you play conservatively. We did not play with artistic prowess but we did work very hard defensively. There are three speeds you can play in—fast, slow and half-fast. Both teams played half-fast."

Russell sighted his team's defensive effort on Laker center Kareem Abdul-Jabbar as a key.

"We wanted to limit Kareem to the long-range sky-hook. Our guards tried to check his sweep on shorter shots." Despite the Sonics' efforts, Jabbar led the Lakers with 24 points, hauled down 14 rebounds and was credited with five assists.

Russell and the Sonics now face their last extended road trip of the season, which consists of nine games in 15 days. Despite a road record of 9-19 this season, Russell isn't particularly concerned.

"I hope we can come back in second place but we're not setting any particular goals. I've told the team to play as well as can and let the results take care of themselves," he said.

"This team is composed of a great group of kids. When we lost 11 of 13 prior to this streak, we came closer together instead of becoming fragmented. These guys are winners because they're winners as human beings. We're maturing to the point where we're helping each other out."

Warriors 94, 76ers 93

Phil Smith scored 38 points, leading Golden State to its fifth win in the last six games and handing Philadelphia its fifth straight loss. Jamaal Wilkes had 21 points for the Warriors and George McGinnis led the 76ers with 21 and 19 rebounds.

Bucks 115, Bulls 112

Brian Winters scored with 5:10 left to give Milwaukee the lead for the first time and added two free throws with three seconds left to clinch the victory, which gave the Bucks a half game lead in the Midwest Division. Bob Love scored 30 points for Chicago.

Cavs 107, Rockets 103

A crowd of 20,192 at Richfield, Ohio, saw Cleveland beat Houston with the help of a three-point play by Austin Carr with 56 seconds left and two free throws by Jim Cleamons with 17 seconds remaining. The Cavs trailed by as many as 16s in the third period but wound up scoring 62 points in the second half.

Jazz 102, Hawks 94

Pete Maravich's four crucial points in the last two minutes lifted New Orleans past Atlanta after the score was tied at 94-94. The victory snapped the Jazz' six-game losing streak. Maravich scored 21 points while Lou Hudson had 27 for the Hawks.

Colonels 121, Spirits 119

Wil Jones hit two straight field goals and Bird Averitt added a free throw in the final 45 seconds of overtime, giving Kentucky its win over St. Louis. Lou Dampier had 25 points for Kentucky which has beaten St. Louis eight times in 10 games this season.

Nets 115, Nuggets 95

Julius Erving scored 24 points and had 17 rebounds in a splendid performance that led the Nets past Denver. The Nets won the game by outscoring the Nuggets 25-16 in the third period and had a 17-point lead before Denver staged an unsuccessful rally.

Spurs 107, Squires 98

Larry Kenon and Billy Paultz combined for 49 points and 34 rebounds for San Antonio, which dealt Virginia its 21st straight loss on the road. The Spurs outrebounded the Squires 59-28. Mack Calvin had 35 points for the Squires.

Rene Robert Respects That First Goal

By UPI

Rene Robert scored a goal for the Buffalo Sabres Sunday night but it was obviously the wrong one.

Robert was foiled on a penalty shot during the second period of a scoreless tie between the Sabres and Canadiens...and Montreal went on to post a 4-2 victory over Buffalo.

"The first goal is always important, especially on a penalty shot," said Robert. "They probably would have stopped playing for a while."

"The puck started to bounce on me and I missed the net. I had him (goaltender Ken Dryden) beat but the puck started to bounce at the blue line and I had to look down on it. I wanted to shoot low on his stick side and I had him going the other way but the puck started rolling on me."

The Canadiens took advantage of Robert's personal misfortune to take a 1-0 lead on a goal by Yvan Cournoyer and then a 2-1 lead on a score by Guy Lapointe. Gil Perreault gave Buffalo its initial tie and Robert's goal made it 2-2.

Robert's tally was on a disputed play, with the Canadiens claiming he knocked the puck into the net when his stick was above the shoulders.

The goal aroused the Canadiens, with Cournoyer scoring his second goal of the game on a deflection of a 35-foot shot by defenseman Serge Savard at 10:53 for a 3-2 lead. Guy Lafleur lessened the Canadiens' concern with the clincher, his 39th goal of the season, on a 2-on-1 break at 17:40.

In other games, Boston ripped the New York Rangers 5-2, Detroit tied Pittsburgh 2-

SPORT PARADE

Milton Richman,

which players from the entire area were invited, and the fact so few of them did show up was not lost upon Miller.

"How many Reds can we expect?" he asked Rettenmund before the meeting got underway.

"There's nobody else on our team in town right now," Rettenmund said.

Later that day, Bob Howsam, the Reds' President, took a swipe at Miller, accusing him of "playing with words," which he is if you consider two different statements he has made. On one hand, he said he wants to table negotiations with the owners on the reserve clause until the end of the season because by then the players would have a better idea of how to modify it, and on the other hand Miller said the players haven't made any proposals to modify the reserve clause because they don't want to change it at all.

Miller wasn't fooling Howsam one bit. "After all, the reserve clause has been completely changed in the last few weeks, and Miller says the association doesn't want to modify it," the Reds' boss scoffed.

The owners and players still are without a Basic Agreement. They're no closer to one than they were this past Dec. 31, which is when the last written agreement between them ran out, and without such an accord the owners have no intention of opening spring training.

Bruce Dal Canton, the veteran reliever with the Atlanta Braves, was one of those who attended Miller's briefing in Cincinnati. He was speaking for most big leaguers when he said becoming a free agent primarily would benefit the big-name players and not do much for a player like him or for the majority of others. He also said he knew of no player who wants spring training delayed.

The owners insist upon a new Agreement before they open shop. The only way there can be a new Agreement will be for the players to compromise.

Any compromise by the players would have to be in the form of a modification of the reserve clause. To achieve that would require a written waiver by every player in the majors and Marvin Miller doesn't have a prayer of getting that. What's more, he knows it.

Miller can not negotiate any settlement which abrogates the right of a single ballplayer as set forth by arbitrator Peter Seitz and approved by District Court Judge John W. Oliver. Those two men gave all big leaguers, players with limited experience like Bill Madlock, John Montefusco and Gary Carter, the same free agent rights as Andy Messersmith, and now unless the Court of Appeal overturns the decision, nobody, not Marvin Miller, not Bowie Kuhn, not anybody else, can negotiate away those rights.

So while the players have the freedom, the owners have the ball. If the players become that eager to get back on the field, that determined to draw their pay checks for doing what they love to do best, inevitably they will have to come back to the owners and likely negotiate with them on their own. Marvin Miller hopes it never comes to that, but it could.

Spring Training Could Be Little Late This Year

NEW YORK (UPI) — Spring training is supposed to get underway a week from today but from the way things look now, it won't.

Marvin Miller, head of the Players Association, has a bit of a problem. He has negotiated magnificently getting the ballplayers practically everything they ever wanted, but he overlooked one small detail.

It's still the owners' ball.

If they don't wish to put it in play, the result is obvious. Spring training doesn't open, and this is the prospect Marvin Miller faces now.

Miller's trip this past week did not end on a particularly high note.

For one thing, he didn't draw too much of a turnout during his stopover in Cincinnati Friday. One hundred fifteen players were on hand Wednesday in Los Angeles to get an up-date from him on how negotiations were going with the owners and 24 were present to hear him the following day in Chicago, but only seven showed up in Cincinnati. Of that number, Merv Rettenmund was the lone representative from the world champion Reds and he was committed because he's Cincy's player rep.

This was supposed to have been a regional get-together in

Oregon Ends UCLA's 98-Game Home Streak

By United Press International
Humility has never been one of Oregon coach Dick Harter's outstanding virtues.

"This victory wasn't unexpected," Harter said after the Ducks had ended UCLA's

Pauley Pavilion winning streak Saturday at 98 games. However, he certainly didn't envision the 65-45 score by which the Ducks became the first visiting team to win in Pauley Pavilion since March 6, 1970.

The Ducks' domination of the game prevents the result from being labeled a fluke. "Oregon played a great game," UCLA coach Gene Bartow said. "I don't think they're going to lose again this season."

"We've played phenomenal basketball the last few weeks," boasted Harter, whose team has won nine straight. "We were clearly the better team tonight."

Greg Ballard scored 16 points and Ron Lee 13 to pace the Oregon offense, but it was the Ducks' defensive performance that was exceptional as the fourth-ranked Bruins scored only 14 points in the first half.

The Bruins, who now lead the Pacific-8 Conference by one game over Oregon, Oregon State and Washington, trailed by 30-14 at the half and never got any closer than 40-26 after the intermission.

Top-ranked Indiana ran its record to 23-0 with a 76-64 victory over Minnesota. Indiana center Kent Benson was held to only six points, but Tom Abernethy came through with 22 for the Hoosiers. Scott May finished with 18.

Earl Tatum's outside shooting carried second-ranked Marquette to a 72-62 victory over No. 14 Louisville. Tatum finished with 23 points in the nationally televised game.

Mitch Kupchak's last-second shot gave third-ranked North Carolina a 73-71 victory over Virginia. Phil Ford led the Tar Heels with 22 points and Kupchak added 15.

The Tar Heels' nationally-ranked Atlantic Coast Conference rivals did not fare as well with No. 7 Maryland and 15th-ranked North Carolina State each losing.

Mark Crow scored 19 points and Tate Armstrong 16 to lead Duke to a 69-67 upset of Maryland. Clemson held Kenny Carr to only 15 points and got 20 points apiece from Greg Coles and Stan Rome to beat the Wolfpack, 103-90.

Fifth-ranked Rutgers ran its record to 23-0 with a 94-79 victory over American University. Mike Dabney, who finished with 25 points, sparked a typical Rutgers' spurt with six minutes to play that broke open the game.

Sixth-ranked Nevada-Las Vegas, getting 32 points from Stan Smith, overwhelmed Hawaii, 114-99.

Lars Hansen scored 34 points in eighth-ranked Washington's 95-75 romp over California.

No. 9 Tennessee rolled over Mississippi, 105-81, behind a pair of 30-point performances by Bernard King and Ernie Grunfeld.

No. 13 Alabama needed a pair of free throws by Leon Douglas with 11 seconds left to defeat Mississippi State, 65-61. Douglas led the Crimson Tide scoring with 22 points.

Billy Paterno scored 23 points to lead 10th-ranked Notre Dame to a 90-83 victory over South Carolina while Phil

Hubbard scored 22 points and Rickey Green 20 to lead 11th-ranked Michigan to a 92-81 victory over Purdue.

No. 12 Missouri solidified its lead in the Big Eight with a 95-84 overtime victory over Nebraska as Willie Smith scored 31 points and Kim Anderson 25.

St. John's front line of Cecil Rellford, Beaver Smith and George Johnson combined for 44 points and 35 rebounds to lead the 16th-ranked Redmen to a 100-78 victory over Syracuse.

No. 19 Utah was upset by Brigham Young, 84-83, and knocked out of first place in the Western Athletic Conference by Arizona. Verne Thompson scored 22 points and Jay Cheesman 22 to lead Brigham Young, while Arizona gained the top spot in the WAC with a 64-45 victory over UTEP.

Sonny Parker scored 21 points to lead Texas A&M to a 70-69 victory over Arkansas and assure the Aggies of at least a tie for the Southwest Conference regular season title.

Ilie Dethrones Connors

SALISBURY, Md. (UPI) — Ilie Nastase began his Sunday having breakfast with his close friend Jimmy Connors and ended the day playing him in an exhibition match in Providence, R.I.

In between, however, the Rumanian star took the National Indoor Tennis crown from his American doubles partner 6-2, 6-3, 7-6.

Chris Checks Rosie

DETROIT (UPI) — Five years ago Rosie Casals was a nervous 22-year-old shooting for the top prize in the first women's pro tennis tournament ever held.

She took home $1,000 more Sunday in losing to Chris Evert in the finals of the 100th Virginia Slims tournament than the entire original field of eight played for five years back.

Evert took a 6-4, 6-2 victory and picked up $15,000 for her impeccable efforts in the $75,000 tournament. Casals won $8,500.

Evert, 21, was one year away from astonishing the tennis world at Forest Hills when Casals, 27, defeated Judy Dalton, 5-7, 6-1, 7-5, on Oct. 3, 1971 in Houston, Tex., in the first women's pro tournament. The inaugural Slims was worth just one-tenth what Sunday's 100th was worth.

Casals, seeded third, has not beaten Evert since 1973, her only victory over her top-seeded opponent in the 14 times they have met.

"When somebody has won 12 or 13 times in a row, they're bound to lose one," Casals said after she had seen her serve-volley game decimated once again by the big baseline hitter. "The pressure was on Chris."

"Anybody who has that kind of a streak going is expected to win," she said. "It's got to be taxing. She's starting to show the pressure now."

"Her whole approach to the game has changed from what it was three years ago," Casals said. "She's established. She's No. 1, everybody's gunning for her."

"Everybody is free to experiment against me," Evert said. "They play loose, try things against me. I've got to play the same kind of game that got me here."

Vilas Takes Classic

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Guillermo Vilas of Argentina justified his top ranking in the $60,000 St. Louis Tennis Classic Sunday by methodically defeating India's Vijay Amritraj 4-6, 6-0, 6-4 in the championship match.

Vilas, making his first appearance in a final match in World Championship Tennis, won the $17,000 first-prize money while Amritraj got $7,000.

There were several similarities to Vilas' comeback semifinal victory over Mexico's Raul Ramirez Saturday night in which he also lost the first set 6-4. But in contrast to his tiebreaking second-set win in that match, he blitzed Amritraj in six straight games, losing only 12 points in 21 minutes to square the match.

The first game of the third set was critical as it was Saturday night when a lucky net cord went Vilas' way when Amritraj was down 30-40 on his service. Amritraj fell behind 4-1 in the fifth game but temporarily rallied when he broke Vilas in the sixth game and then held his own service in the seventh on two aces to trail only 4-3.

Hawk Swimmers Lose

NEW PALTZ — New Paltz State's varsity swimming team dropped a double-dual meet Saturday at Central Connecticut to the host school and Bridgewater.

The scores were Central Conn. 81, New Paltz 30; Bridgewater 80, New Paltz 32; and Central Conn. 77, Bridgewater 36.

Felipe Gonzales had the only two wins for New Paltz, taking both the required diving (122.8 points) and the optional diving (216.95 points).

Dave Loeffler of New Paltz was second in the 200 yard backstroke.

New Paltz is at the SUNYAC championship meet March 4-6. That event will be held at Bridgeport.

KHS Girls End 11-3

KINGSTON — Kingston High girls defeated Roosevelt High 68-58 to close out the DCSL schedule with a 10-3 record, and 11-3 overall. Coach Pat Burke's Tigers clinched third place in the league standings. Poughkeepsie High won the pennant.

Kingston jumped to a 20-10 lead in the first quarter and was still points ahead at the finish. Ertha Burris led as usual with 24 points and got solid support from Lynette Byrd with 19 and Diana Baker with 14.

Kingston swept the boards with 36 rebounds and shot a respectable 47 per cent from the floor.

Liz Irwin led Roosevelt with 23 points. Shelly Eaton added 13 and Brenda Gray 10.

The Tiger Jayvees won their game to finish the season with a 10-1 record.

Louis Amaru, an associate professor of history at Ulster County Community College, will speak on "The Evolution of Dissatisfaction" at 8 p.m. on Wednesday at the Stone Ridge campus.

This talk, open to the public without charge, is part of a series on the "Era of the American Revolution" being presented by Ulster County College as a public service during the nation's Bicentennial celebration.

The talk will be held in Room 635 in the Jacob Hardenbergh Building.

Other talks which Amaru will give in succeeding weeks are as follows:

March 3 — "British and Loyalist Viewpoints"

March 10 — "War and Its Impact on Society"

Consumer Protection

KINGSTON The week of Feb. 23-28 has been designated Postal Consumer Protection Week.

"Our consumer protection program works through the Inspection Service, Consumer Protection Office of the Law Department, the Judicial Office and the consumer advocate," said Kingston Postmaster Oscar V. Newkirk.

Working together, these four departments resolve complaints of alleged mail order swindles when postal customers fail to receive merchandise ordered or promised refunds, or find that the service or product is not as advertised, he explained.

Where violation of the Mail Fraud statute is indicated, postal inspectors refer the case

Rolison Against Concorde

POUGHKEEPSIE
State Sen. Jay P. Rolison, R-39th Dist., has announced his support for legislation designed to ban the "Concorde" supersonic jet from landing at Kennedy International Airport on Long Island.

"It would be patently unfair for the people of New York State who reside in the affected area to allow the Concorde to land," said Rolison. "There are environmental uncertainties connected with the Concorde landings and I believe testing should be done at Dulles International Airport, near Washington, D.C., where there is not a great concentration of population."

Rolison predicted early Senate passage of the bill which would prohibit the Port Authority of New York and New Jersey from admitting aircraft with noise levels above 108 decibels. The Concorde exceeds that decibel level.

Your Astrograph

For Tuesday, Feb. 24, 1976

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You're very resourceful today and should succeed in getting what you go after, though you may not enjoy full cooperation.

TAURUS (April 20-May 40) You may have to alter an arrangement today and you could find it hard to please all concerned. You'll be able to work things out.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Something unusual, but beneficial careerwise, may unexpectedly develop for you today.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) If you have any important decision to make today, make them while you're still bright and fresh.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Don't be afraid to try new methods or techniques today. Save yourself time and steps by being imaginative.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) If you're restless today, alter your usual routine. Do something impromptu that's fun.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You're apt to be more motivated today if some type of profit is involved for those for whom you provide.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Your most promising areas of endeavor today are in the imaginative or creative realms. Put your bright ideas to work.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You should be able to manage business situations quite competently today, but you're likely to be careless in other ways.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Try not to associate with persons today whose actions could reflect poorly on your image. Keep to friends whose standards are comparable to yours.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You could experience a beneficial happening today that may be of material value. Welcome favors gratefully.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) In dealing with friends today, keep everything purely social. Don't let them get involved in your financial affairs or vice versa.

Feb. 24, 1976

There are some pleasant surprises for you this coming year. They'll lead you to new interests. This could result in a friendly relationship with one far from you.

heart. South ruffed, led another spade and discarded dummy's last heart. East ruffed and led a third heart. South discarded a spade, ruffed with dummy's ace of trumps, and led the six of diamonds to his king. Then he cashed the queen of trumps and led spades to wind up making four add.

Oswald: "Not much consolation when he had a cinch spade slam."

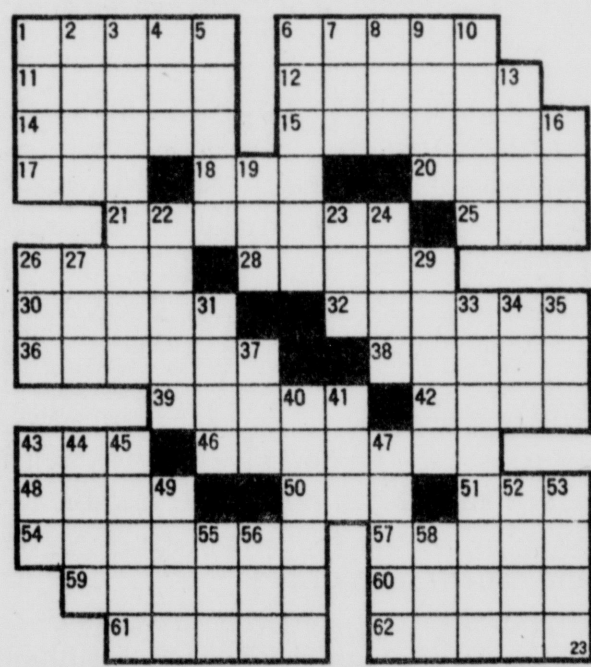

Jim: "No, but the play was a winner. At the table, South used a complicated series of asking bids. He found out that his partner held the ace of diamonds, but seven spades and went down one. The diamond jack was a sure winner for the defense."

Water Dept. Project Estimates

KINGSTON
The Kingston Water Department, as long ago as Nov. 13 of last year, submitted project estimates for funding under the Community Development Program totaling more than $1.2 million, according to reports released by City Planner Robert E. Pritchard.

The water department report of Friday details projected improvements in five areas, Broadway West, Ponckhockie, Midtown East, Central Broadway and a Midtown area listed only as "water system improvements recommended for Community Development Funds."

The department targets more than half its requests in two areas: Midtown East for a total of $431,796 and Broadway West for a total of $349,990. Ponckhockie is budgeted at $219,585 while general improvements are figured at $233,855. Central Broadway would get $29,600. Pritchard's press release, ordered by Mayor Francis R. Koenig, still leaves open the question of how much the water department asked for this year how much it got and when its requests would be implemented, if at all.

Under "Broadway West CDA Water System Improvements" for instance, the report shows new eight-inch mains in the Hone Street-President's Place-Hunter to Hudson Streets section of the city for a total of $90,000, community Development's announced plans for Broadway West for 1976 do not show that type of activity west of Wurts Street.

CDA does show significant activity in the West Strand

area of Broadway West but the water department makes no mention of water improvements in that area.

Pritchard says that water department requests will be treated on a per-project basis and that until plans are finalized on individual projects, estimates on water improvement costs would not be valid.

CD Advisory Council Chairman Alderman Clifford Sin-

sabaugh (D-10th Ward) has said that water improvements would be made as part of overall project improvements and not as separate projects in and of themselves, as in the case of the Washington Avenue/Greenkill Avenue loop funded by CD last year for $112,000.

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE

THE SAVINGS BANKS WANT TO COMPETE WITH US FOR CHECKING ACCOUNTS. PROVIDED WE MAINTAIN CERTAIN RESTRICTIONS.

We're all for fair competition.

It's what made America the most powerful economic force in history.

But we are against what the savings banks are pushing for now.

Competition where one side has the advantages—and the other side has its hands tied by law. (For example, at present, commercial banks are legally prohibited from paying savings interest as high as theirs.)

If savings banks retain these advantages plus gain checking accounts, commercial banks will be hard put to attract the funds they need to do business.

And in that event, we could all be losers.

In time, this could affect consumer and commercial lending, as well as municipal financing, across New York State. With potential economic consequences which we feel, at the very least, deserve further study on the part of the legislative leadership and banking authorities.

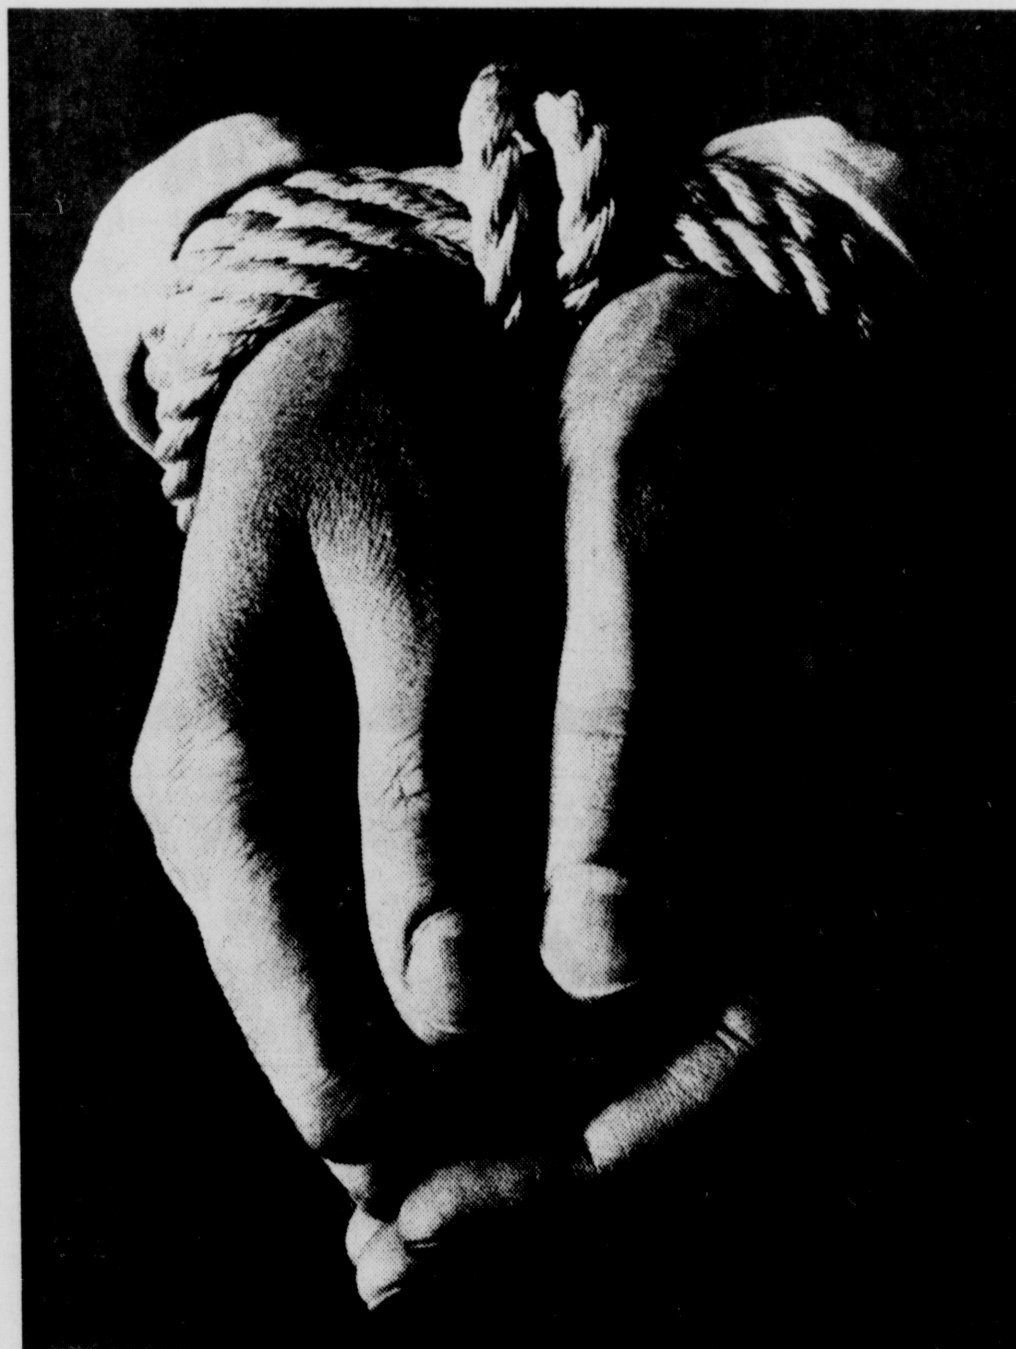

But let's be clear. We do not oppose change per se in banking. For example, we'd like the right to pay the same interest as the savings banks.

What we do oppose is dangerously piecemeal legislation like the savings bank checking account bill. And what we favor is legislation based on careful study of its long-range impact. Legislation that will not only broaden the availability of one service or another—but truly help banks serve you better in a wide variety of areas. Now and in the future.

How you can help. Urge your legislator to resist pressure groups—and demand public hearings on this complex issue. Let's not head into something till we can clearly see where we're going.

Let's think - before we act.

Over-The-Counter Drug Abuse Growing

By Lynn Mulvaney

KINGSTON

Hyped up by mass media advertising, more and more people are running to the drug store rather than their doctor and buying more and more of what turns out to be, in many instances, "dangerous drugs."

Over-the-counter drug abuse has increased dramatically according to James DiDonna, president of the Ulster County Pharmaceutical Society, warning that many medicines are contra-indicated and could prove disastrous to some consumers. For example, a diabetic using a high-sugar cough syrup.

Some cough syrups also are depressants and if taken in large quantities depress the central nervous system and all body functions, including respiratory rate and circulation. An overdose can result in respiratory insufficiency and paralysis with death the obvious consequence, according to pharmacist Melvin Mones.

Two of the largest groups of self-medicators are the elderly and the poor. Older persons, suffering from arthritis or rheumatism, often fall for any advertising that gives some ray of hope for relieving their suffering. They often pay all kinds of inflated prices for nothing more than "glorified aspirin compounds," and bypass the doctors for supermarket drug shelves.

Parents with many children who are on lower incomes also are inclined to self medicate them, sometimes flirting with disaster in cases of flu.

Even the taking of laxatives on a regular basis can be dangerous, the druggists warn, because they may be covering up more serious illness of which constipation is just a symptom.

The symptom indicates that the illness rather than just the constipation should be treated.

With radios and television blasting cure-alls for anything from a hangnail to whooping cough, those who feel they cannot afford a doctor or find that securing the old-time family doctor is a problem, buy the pre-packaged drugs across the counter. Popular antihistamine cold medications in particular have brisk sales and although small print on the packaging may warn of dangers, how many read it?

Drug abuse on another level—doctors improperly prescribing "potentially dangerous drugs" to patients—has been of concern in Dutchess County. The Dutchess County Medical Society has requested and received from the State Health Department, a report on the use of dangerous drugs in the county. The report states specifically which doctors have prescribed codeine, amphetamines, ritalin and other narcotic drugs.

Dr. Robert Ballard of Hopewell Junction said the society will review the list and "if we find doctors are out of line in prescribing dangerous drugs, they will be brought before the board of censors."

Some druggists here in Ulster indicate that a very few doctors are prescribing some of the potentially dangerous drugs, but probably only to satisfy patient demand, but that there is a good check on such medications in that all such prescriptions must be "written" rather than prescribed verbally over the phone. The prescriptions must be in the druggist's hands within 72 hours. This virtually eliminates abuse, they said.

Health Commissioner Dr. Bartholomew J. Dutto indicated that there are no abuses here in Ulster County that he is aware of.

Construction Industry 'Revivals'

NEWBURGH

With construction volume in the Mid-Hudson Valley estimated to be 65 per cent below 1974 levels, both labor and management are attempting to hammer out a solution to the continuing economic malaise.

At stake are thousands of jobs, company solvency and continued economic growth for the Mid-Hudson Valley. Labor and management — both of whom have much to lose if the construction industry doesn't experience an economic revival in 1976 — have been meeting recently to explore steps that might be taken to stimulate construction in the region.

One major goal of the joint meetings is to resolve traditional union-employer conflicts that many feel tend to discourage new construction projects. With negotiations scheduled to start shortly on renewal of major labor contracts, efforts have been directed towards stabilizing labor relations. Both sides believe that better relations will insure that projects are completed on schedule at a reasonable cost, thereby encouraging owners to launch new construction projects.

Discussions have also covered such topics as productivity, labor and material costs, ways and means of eliminating work stoppages over job disputes and methods by which labor and management can together promote quality union construction.

The management group in this series of meetings is represented by officers and directors of the Construction Employers of the Hudson Valley, an organization composed of contractors performing all types of commercial, industrial and public works construction in the Mid-Hudson Valley. The group's president is Nando S. Capolino, president of Merrit Meridian Corp. of Beacon. The group also represents major material suppliers and insurance and bonding companies.

Management representatives have been joined by union representatives from 13 locals and four Building Trades Councils from an area that includes Ulster, Columbia, Greene, Dutchess, Orange, Sullivan and Rockland Counties.

Both employers and employees in the construction industry

have been hard hit by recessionary trends in recent years. Although double-digit unemployment exists in most areas of the Mid-Hudson Valley, unemployment in some of the construction trades is currently running between 65 and 95 per cent, with some tradesmen unemployed for over a year.

According to the construction industry, part of the problem has been caused by delays resulting from environmental requirements that have been mandated by law in recent laws. Both labor and management have expressed their support for legislation currently under consideration in Albany which would delay implementation of amendments to the state Environmental Quality Review Act. Recent environmental legislation — particularly the SEQR, which requires an environmental impact statement for most construction projects — have been blamed for delaying, or discouraging, new construction projects throughout the state, and particularly in the Hudson Valley.

Meetings between the two sides are expected to continue.

Control of Sinai

CAIRO, EGYPT — Egyptian troops have taken control of the last big chunk of the Sinai Desert promised them under terms of the U.S.-negotiated interim peace accord with Israel.

In Tel Aviv, political sources said Israel wants the United States to keep up its search for peace in the Middle East through talks with Arab countries but it will not settle for anything less than an Arab pledge of nonbelligerency.

Egyptian forces Sunday moved into the final 89 square miles of Sinai territory they were promised under terms of the agreement worked out last year by Secretary of State Henry Kissinger.

Takeover in Moscow

MOSCOW — Five thousand Soviet delegates and hundreds of foreign guests virtually have taken over Moscow for Tuesday's opening of the 25th Congress of the Communist party.

It was the kind of Moscow rarely seen in midwinter — or at any other time: clean, spruced up and relatively well stocked with consumer goods.

Flower sellers appeared on the streets for the first time this winter. Imported goods, including East German leather products, Czechoslovakian glassware and Hungarian clothing, appeared in store windows.

Violence Mars Tribute

DUBLIN, Ireland — Clashes between stone-throwing youths and Irish army troops marred a memorial tribute to Irish Republican Army hunger striker Frank Stagg in the latest violence to follow his death in an English jail 10 days ago.

Army troops fired rubber bullets to disperse the youths, who began hurling stones after Sunday's ceremony in League cemetery near Ballina village in western Ireland.

More than 7,000 IRA sympathizers had gathered to pay homage to the 34-year-old Stagg, who died Feb. 12 following a 61-day fast.

Four Killed

NEW YORK — A car driven by an elderly man went out of control outside the Plaza Hotel on Central Park Sunday, jumped the curb, plowed into a hansom cab and a light pole, killing four persons and injuring three others.

Police said the car driven by Philip Cohen, 76, ran out of control for about 200 feet before being stopped by a parked taxicab.

35 Hostages Held

BEIRUT, Lebanon — A band of gunmen led by a Lebanese protesting he had been wrongly expelled from Canada on grounds of insanity took over the Canadian embassy today and held about 35 staff members hostage at riflepoint.

The Lebanese, identified by security forces as Mohammed Haimour, about 45, demanded that the physician and the lawyer who testified to his insanity publicly admit they were wrong, a police officer said.

Workers on March

MADRID, Spain — Some 30,000 workers in the northern city of Pamplona marched Sunday in the nation's biggest government-approved demonstration since a wave of strikes and street disorders engulfed Spain in January.

The marchers carried signs protesting the soaring cost of living. Many shouted for amnesty for the country's estimated remaining 1,000 political prisoners.

Youth Care Facility Slated for City

ANDREW STREET SITE

By Hugh Reynolds

KINGSTON

The New York Division for Youth has notified city officials that it intends to establish a youth care facility for teenage boys at 79 Andrew Street, despite official and neighborhood opposition.

Mayor Francis R. Koenig, Alderman-at-Large T. Robert Gallo and Alderman Peter J. Mancuso, D-12th Ward, were notified over the weekend of the state's intentions to proceed with its plans to purchase the Alfred Rossman House and convert it into a youth care facility for up to seven teenage (14-17) boys. Gallo lives at 124 Andrew Street. Mancuso represents that section of the city in the Common Council.

There have been two neighborhood meetings since word first got out late last year that the state was planning to purchase the Rossman residence. Reportedly the sales price was in the $45,000 range.

The reaction was similar to when the St. Cabrini Home attempted to establish a similar facility at the former Burt Ellis House at the corner of Lucas Avenue and Joy's Lane.

The state was represented by Horace Belton and Dr. Larry Dye of the State Division for Youth.

Belton said the facility could accommodate a maximum of seven boys, that it would have live-in supervision (a married couple) in addition to a director responsible for the facility.

He said none of the boys would be juvenile delinquents and that Ulster County youths would be given preference. There will be no charge-back to the county as in the case of institutions such as the Highland Training School for Boys where counties pay half the cost for their residents in residence. Belton estimated the yearly cost at a youth facility at between $8,000 and $12,000 compared to twice that for institutionalized care.

"We're very selective with our kids," Belton said. "We've had good luck and good fortune." The state operates four such facilities in Dutchess County.

Mancuso remains unconvinced, however. "I'm absolutely 100 per cent opposed," he said. "I didn't even know they were coming in there until I heard it from the neighbors."

"It isn't right to by-pass the municipalities. It's another one of your rights being trampled on," he said.

The city has no choice in the matter. State law supercedes local law in this case.

The Rondout Valley Central School District is facing the possibility of a classroom shortage.

Superintendent of Schools James J. O'Connell told the Board of Education at its February meeting that the Kerhonkson Elementary School may be short three classrooms for the 1976-77 school year because of the deteriorating condition of the temporary classroom building adjacent to the school.

Business manager Lee Comeau reported that representatives of the State Education Department's Planning Facilities Department have surveyed the structure—as well as all of the district's buildings—and is expected to issue its report and recommendations shortly. No action will be taken on the potential problem until the state report is received and examined.

Trouble, of a sort, has also surfaced at the sand filtration bed at the high school in Kerhonkson. The filtration bed, an integral part of the school's septic system, was reported to need immediate repair. The board authorized an emergency appropriation of $12,000 to correct the problem.

In other matters, the school board: • Announced receipt of a $2,453 mini grant for a special study entitled "Analysis of Student Cognitive Styles: Empirical Mapping Project."

Seniors' Housing Fire

KINGSTON

Fire broke out at Wiltyck Gardens in Kingston today, resulting in injuries to two residents of the senior citizens housing complex on Albany Avenue.

The two who were injured, identified as Seth and Marguerite Cobb of Apartment 6B, were brought down ladders from their second floor rooms, by Kingston firemen who responded to the 9:36 a.m. alarm. Both were taken to Kingston Hospital suffering from smoke inhalation. Mrs. Cobb was listed in good condition in the emergency room and her husband, who was expected to be admitted to the hospital, was listed in fair condition.

Authorities said the blaze broke out in apartment 5B, occupied by Mr. and Mrs. William Swart, neither of whom were reported injured. The Swart apartment is located below the Cobb apartment.

According to Alexander Yosman, executive director of the Kingston Housing Authority, which operates the senior citizens complex, the Swarts smelled smoke in their apartment and opened a closet door only to be confronted by a "ball" of flames.

Firemen were immediately summoned, and the building was evacuated. Nine pieces of fire equipment were at the scene at one point. Six pieces of equipment remained at the scene shortly before 11 a.m., although the fire was out by then.

One room of the Swart apartment sustained heavy fire damage, and other rooms in their apartment and others sustained smoke, heat and water damage.

One fireman was also taken to Kingston Hospital, but the injury was not related to the fire, according to Fire Chief William Schreiber.

Four Dems Continue to Scratch

MANCHESTER, N.H. (UPI) — The Republican campaign tents were folded but four Democrats continued to scratch for votes today as New Hampshire prepared to cast the first presidential primary ballots of 1976.

Democrats Birch Bayh, Jimmy Carter, Fred Harris and Morris Udall, thought to be running in a close-bunched pack in the contest for 17 national convention delegates, remained in the populous Manchester-Nashua area for final pleas for votes.

The four, plus Sargent Shriver who was already in neighboring Massachusetts seeking support for its March 2 primary, were to meet in Boston tonight for a forum which is to be telecast nationally on public television stations.

President Ford was in Washington and GOP challenger Ronald Reagan flew west to Illinois for two days of campaigning for that state's March 16 primary. Reagan was scheduled back here Tuesday night to hear the returns from the first test of his effort to unseat Ford.

Reagan, who some think will beat or run very close to Ford in their competition for 21 GOP national convention delegates, used the weekend of New Hampshire campaigning to reply to a late volley of charges from the opposition.

"I found myself accused in recent weeks of everything but eating my young," the former California governor told a rally. He denied he had proposed to make the social security system voluntary and asked why Ford twice had offered him cabinet posts if the President believed Reagan was a political extremist.

Ford spent four days in New Hampshire to Reagan's 19, but his strategists felt the President helped himself by visiting twice in the last two weeks of the campaign.

Ford has tried to avoid letting New Hampshire seem to be a showdown. He has pledged to stay in the contest until the end.

But New Hampshire is the first statewide test of candidate voter appeal and the state's boosters like to point out that since 1952 no one has been elected president without having won the New Hampshire primary.

Ford and Reagan won't be matched again until March 9 in Florida, but the Democrats are all in the Massachusetts test in only eight days.

Their problem, which could be alleviated by results here, is to separate the public perception of their campaigns. Bayh, Harris, Shriver and Udall all used national television appearances Sunday to try to present themselves as more liberal alternatives to Carter, the former Georgia governor who is believed to be the leader here.

Carter told about 700 cheering supporters Sunday that Udall was the leader a few weeks ago but later polls showed no more than a two- or three-point difference. "We should be first," he said.

Patty and the Missing Year

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The prosecutor has set his sights on questioning Patricia Hearst about the "missing year" in her 19-month underground life — but so far the U.S. Constitution has blocked him.

U.S. District Judge Oliver Carter was expected to rule later today on whether Miss Hearst can invoke the 6th Amendment when questioned by U.S. Attorney James Browning Jr. about what occurred between the fall of 1974 and her capture last September.

Browning would like to question the newspaper heiress about a Carmichael, Calif., bank holdup in which a woman was killed in April, 1975, and about the possibility the Symbionese Liberation Army had planned other stickups.

Miss Hearst used the 5th Amendment 21 times last week when questioned by the federal prosecutor about this period. Her attorney, F. Lee Bailey, said the time span was irrelevant to the bank robbery charge on which she is on trial.

She was accused of being a member of an SLA team which struck a San Francisco Hibernia Bank branch in April, 1974.

Carter also was expected to rule on whether the prosecution could use a tape-recording of a visit at San Mateo County Jail between Miss Hearst and longtime friend Patricia Tobin, daughter of the president of Hibernia Bank.

In the visit Miss Hearst expressed her feelings for Steven Soliah, an SLA associate awaiting trial for the Carmichael robbery, and said she was concerned about raising bail for him.

Soliah was arrested shortly after the capture of Miss Hearst, Wendy Yoshimura, William Harris and his wife, Emily, in San Francisco. Miss Yoshimura is awaiting trial in Oakland, Calif., on explosives charges and the Harrises are awaiting trial in Los Angeles.

Browning said he wanted to question Miss Hearst about documents found in the San Francisco home where she,

Soliah and Miss Yoshimura were living at the time of the arrests.

The government said some of the documents listed possible bombing and bank targets.

A prosecution brief said Miss Hearst was "delegated full antagonistic responsibilities tending to belie the claim of being a reluctant partner in SLA activities."

Bailey has said she was brainwashed into becoming a revolutionary.

HOUSTON, TEXAS—You don't suffer from male pattern baldness, you can now stop hair loss...grow more hair.

Have you faced the fact that you have a hair loss problem? Hair loss occurs so gradually that men and women often ignore it. Until it's too late. Even though you see yourself in a mirror every day, many of you won't admit to abnormal hair fall.

If you think, honestly, that you might be in this category, look at a picture taken a year ago—three years ago. Notice a difference? If so, now's the time to stop your hair loss. You could be going bald.

If it appears that you are already losing hair, whatever your daily hair routine is, if you continue to follow it, your hair will probably gradually thin away to nothing.

But it doesn't have to happen. Often hair fall is NOT normal.

wouldn't offer this opportunity unless it worked. But it's impossible to help everyone.

The great majority of cases of excessive hair fall and baldness are the beginning and more fully developed stages of male pattern baldness and cannot be helped.

But if you are not already slick bald, how can you be sure what is actually causing your hair loss? Even if baldness seems to "run in the family," it is certainly not proof of the cause of YOUR hair loss.

If you have thinning hair, the Loesch treatment may be the answer for you. If you still have any hair on top of your head, and would like to stop hair loss and grow more hair, do something about it before it's too late.

Loesch Laboratory Consultants, Inc., will supply you with treatment for 32 days—at their risk—if they believe the treatment will help you. Just send them the information listed below. All inquiries are answered confidentially by mail. Adv.

Nixon, Mao, 'Friendly Talk'

PEKING (UPI) — Former President Richard Nixon met with Chinese Communist party Chairman Mao Tse-tung today and the aging Chinese leader asked Nixon to convey his regards to President Ford when he returns to the United States.

Nixon spent one hour 40 minutes with the 82-year-old Mao. A Chinese government spokesman said they "had a friendly conversation" on a wide range of subjects. He did not elaborate.

Nixon was accompanied to the noon meeting at Mao's residence in Peking's Forbidden City by his wife, Pat, and an aide, retired Col. John Brennan. However, they did not stay for the entire session.

Sitting in on the Chinese side were Hua Kuo-feng, the new acting premier; Chiao Kuan-hua, the foreign minister; Huang Chen, the chief of China's liaison in Washington; Wang Hai-jung, vice foreign minister, interpreter Tang Wensheng; and Chang Hanchi, deputy department directors of the foreign ministry.

At the conclusion of the meeting, the spokesman said, Mao "asked Mr. Nixon to convey his regards to President Gerald R. Ford upon returning home."

Nixon first met Mao four years ago on his historic visit to China that ended almost a quarter century of Sino-American estrangement.

Mao invited the former president to pay a private visit to China because of the "significant role" Nixon played in the improvement of Sino-American relations.

Nixon drove to Mao's residence after a morning visit to the Peking Agricultural Exhibition Hall.

Nixon also met for two hours 20 minutes Sunday with Hua. Chinese officials gave no details of those discussions, saying Nixon and Hua talked about "international questions of common interest."

Nixon was scheduled to talk again with Hua today while his wife visited a kindergarten. In the evening they planned to attend a Chinese variety show.

At a banquet Sunday in the Great Hall of the People, Nixon told his hosts the security of the world depended on "the reliability and capability and determination of our two nations to work together."

Hua served as host at the dinner, but none of the other top Chinese leaders turned out for the modest affair. Four years ago, Nixon was lavishly feted in the same banquet hall by the late premier Chou Enlai.

Charge 3 City Men as Post Office Burglars

By Matt Spireng

COMSTOCK
Three Kingston men who allegedly removed a safe from a post office within sight of the Great Meadows State Prison Saturday night were rounded up following a 12-hour search by at least four police agencies.

Peter Ferraro, 35, Harry Haslam, 26, and Frank Barnes, 22, were jailed without bail on charges of third degree burglary.

State police said the trio fled on foot from the Comstock Post Office after a Great Meadows prison guard spotted them removing a safe from the post office Saturday night at about 9:30 p.m. Authorities said they were attempting to load the safe into a van.

State police from the South Glens Falls, Whitehall and Salem stations responded to the scene of the burglary, and roadblocks were set up throughout Washington County by state police, sheriff's deputies and the Whitehall Police Department. U.S. postal inspectors and D&H Railroad police also assisted in the investigation.

Ferraro was the first of the three to be captured by authorities. Troopers caught him on the D&H Railroad tracks near Comstock about two hours after the burglary.

On Sunday morning at about 9:30 a.m. Haslam was caught by troopers on the front porch of a residence in Fort Ann. A few minutes later D&H Railroad police and Whitehall Police caught Barnes attempting to get into a railroad car in Whitehall.

A bench warrant in Ulster County was issued for Ferraro's arrest several weeks ago after he failed to show up in court on a charge of third degree burglary.

Letter Taken

Investigation of a burglary Jan. 2 at the Saugerties Post Office was culminated on Sunday by Saugerties Village Police with the arrest of John J. Carney, 34, of Delaware Street, Glasco.

Carney was charged with third degree burglary. Authorities said two letters were taken in the burglary.

Carney was jailed in lieu of $5,000 bail following arraignment in village court. Police said Carney was arrested by Patrolman George Derbyshire, assisted by Patrolmen John Gessner and Marvin Osborn.

Can't Keep Hat

A $25 Stetson hat wound up costing a Saugerties resident $75 on Sunday—and he didn't even get to keep the hat.

Police Beat

coffee and left his Stetson on top of a cigarette machine. Heidcamp spotted a man walking out of the restaurant with the hat, caught up with him in the parking lot, where he charged Stephen Bach, 20, of West Saugerties Road with petit larceny.

Bach later pleaded guilty to the charge and paid a $75 fine.

Cabin Burns

A small two-story cabin in High Falls was destroyed by fire apparently of electrical origin Sunday night.

High Falls Fire Chief Peter Zegal said the cabin was fully involved in flames when volunteers reached the scene shortly before 7 p.m. About 40 men from the High Falls and Stone Ridge Fire Departments battled the flames until about 8 p.m.

There were no injuries in the fire.

Charges Dismissed

Loitering charges against five area school teachers, Joseph Ahouse, 26, of Boiceville, and Ronald Valle, 26, David P. Kwasnowski, 23, Jerry W. Corrado, 26, and Donald Hinchey, 26, all of Kingston, were dismissed last Friday night in New Paltz Town Court.

The five had been arrested on the campus of the State University College at New Paltz on Feb. 17 where increased security was in effect after a series of armed robberies.

Explaining that the charges were dismissed "in the interest of justice," Assistant District Attorney James Melbert said that while the five were on campus during the early morning hours, "they really weren't doing anything wrong."

Disorderly

Anthony Secreto, 31, of Kingston was arrested early Sunday morning at Edgar's Bar, 293 Wall Street, on the complaint of Kingston Deputy Fire Chief Hugh Greer.

Police said fire officials went to the bar after the sprinkler system was set off shortly before 3 a.m. and that Secreto was charged with disorderly conduct after he allegedly interfered with fire officials who were trying to evacuate the bar.

Hospital Drive Underway

ELLENVILLE

The drive for additional sustaining memberships has been intensified by the Ellenville Community Hospital.

The new memberships are being sought to help the hospital defray the increasing costs of medical treatment. Each sustaining membership costs $5 annually, and allows the contributors to vote at the annual hospital meeting in April and at any special meetings of the hospital corporation.

The renewed drive was announced by campaign co-chairmen Arthur C. Chipp and Leo Rosick. "We hope our sustaining members will make larger contributions this year," they stated in a joint release, "there is a serious need for funds for new hospital equipment, particularly in the radiology department."

Chipp and Rosick noted that those who join the hospital corporation this year will receive two gifts: a poison control chart with instructions for handling emergencies, and a certificate of membership which commemorates both the hospital's 10th birthday and the American bicentennial. Each certificate will be personalized and numbered.

Grain Dust Said Cause

HOUSTON (UPI) — Grain dust is a volatile substance that needs only a spark to touch it off. That, officials believe, is what triggered an explosion that leveled a 10-story grain storage building and crushed workers beneath tons of rubble along Houston's Ship Channel.

Fire Department information officer Paul Carr said officials expected the death toll in the blast Sunday at the Goodpasture Inc., grain storage and loading facility to reach at least 12.

Carr said officials believed the explosion was caused when sparks from a welding torch touched off highly volatile grain dust.

"We have one theory and that is there were four welders doing work up there (in the grain elevator). It's there we think the explosion was touched off," Carr said.

The explosion hurled hundred-pound chunks of concrete like shrapnel.

ABC-TV Don Luce on Amnesty Week Program

NEW PALTZ

Television news correspondent Don Luce, an outspoken critic of the war in Vietnam, will be the featured speaker at a meeting

Wednesday sponsored by the Mid-Hudson Amnesty Committee.

The meeting will be held at 8 p.m. in the Student Union Building on the campus of the State University College at New Paltz. The occasion will mark part of the local observance of National Amnesty Week.

Luce, a proponent of unconditional and universal amnesty for Vietnam war resisters, will discuss his experiences while a news correspondent in Vietnam. Also speaking on the amnesty issue Wednesday night will be Robert MacFarlane Jr., of Dutchess County, a paroled war resister.

In urging public attendance at Wednesday's meeting, Mid-Hudson Amnesty Committee coordinator Ted Lee commented, "Only universal and unconditional amnesty can bring an honorable conclusion to the conflict still dividing our people. This vendetta against Americans who rightfully resisted a wrong war must end by freeing prisoners and the upgrading of all the bad discharges given to military resisters."

In 1970, Luce gained fame when he discovered — along with two American congressmen — the notorious "tiger cages" in one of South Vietnam's largest prisons. He testified on that subject before several Senate and House investigating committees and in 1972 testified at the Pentagon Paper's trial in Los Angeles.

Luce returned to South Vietnam as a special correspondent for ABC News. His reports were also published by a number of national and international publications. Time Magazine described Luce as being "to the South Vietnamese government what Ralph Nader is to General Motors. He knows the culture and the people better than virtually any correspondent or U.S. government employee."

Luce gained additional notoriety after former U.S. Ambassador to South Vietnam Graham Martin blamed him for the fall of Saigon.

"We suspect that Ambassador Martin's accusations were exaggerated, but we welcome anyone who helped end that war," said Lee, "we are glad Don Luce continues to speak on behalf of persecuted Americans who need amnesty now."

Pattern: Mine Law Reasonable

POUGHKEEPSIE
Mid-Hudson Pattern for Progress has expressed general support for the proposed rules and regulations for implementation of New York State's Mined Land Reclamation Law.

In a statement prepared for last Friday's public hearing at the Region III offices of the Department of Environmental Conservation in New Paltz, Pattern vice-president Arthur E. Weintraub indicated his organization's agreement with the law's basic objectives.

Weintraub said that the law has special relevance to the Mid-Hudson region, where mining has been an important industry for over a century. Of particular interest, he added, is the eventual reclamation of lands along the Hudson River shorelines once these mining operations are exhausted.

"We feel the proposed rules and regulations will not only help us to achieve the basic goals of the new law," said Weintraub, "but they should also prove acceptable to both the mine operators and the environmentalists."

He did, however, point out several problems that could arise in their implementation, particularly in ambiguous wording in the law which could cause costly and unnecessary delays. Those sections, he said, need to be defined more precisely.

"On the whole," said Weintraub, "the proposed rules and regulations seem fair and reasonable, and, hopefully, should produce the desired balance between meeting the needs of an industry which is crucial to the area's economic vitality and providing for sound environmental protection."

Thruway Revenue Up . . . But

ALBANY
A five per cent increase in New York State Thruway's revenue in 1975 over the previous year is less than originally projected, but Chairman Gerald Cummins said this would not affect Thruway operations and maintenance.

Passenger car revenue was up more than 16 per cent, but commercial income overall was down 3.2 per cent. Toll revenues were up about 9.1 per cent.

Total revenues were $123.2 million. A late gain in commercial tolls was recorded in December, outweighing that month's truck tolls in 1974 by 12.6 per cent, said Cummins.

An Act of 'Terrorism'

Terrorism is probably too strong a word for what vandals did recently to the Kingston National Little League clubhouse at Kingman Park. A better term, though it really doesn't exist in the English language would be "chickenism."

Vandalism, like terrorism, is a despicable act. When one conjurs up a vision of a vandal or vandals, one can't help but think of a group of punks, young or old, sneaking in under the cover of darkness to perform an act that serves absolutely no purpose save the needs of some strange, strained libido.

The Freeman realizes the problems police have in apprehending a person or persons who take pleasure in this kind of activity. We can only hope that these people are caught and that any area citizens who might have information on these "nuts" would come forward and help the police.

And, finally, we can only hope that when they are caught, that they will be brought to justice. We hope the judge that hears the case will not be swayed by outside forces and will design some punishment as cruel as the act. Wrist-slapping is too good, too easy for punks like these. In this case we say: "Let the punishment fit the crime."

Readers Write

Facts, Not Headlines

Dear Editor,

Re: Your article of February 9, 1976 on page one, headlined 'Love's Labor Lost'. I am appalled!

Two local county employees involved in a dispute at work (for whatever reason) and your paper reports it with no thought to these individuals or their families. This kind of editorializing I would expect from a scandal sheet or rag newspaper, but not from the Freeman. Readers want the facts, not a screaming headline reeking with innuendo that may ultimately hurt those involved.

Pandering to a small number of your subscribers who are "thrilled" by such words can only lead to the decline of fair reporting and the loss of a good newspaper in the community.

Sincerely,
SHEILA QUICK
Kingston

Letter to Gov. Carey

Dear Governor Carey:

Why have you broken with the traditions of the Democratic Party? Respect for the working man and respect and defense for those who cannot defend themselves.

Massive lay offs should be a last resort Mr. Governor, not the first. You have got the cart before the horse sir and as a result many will suffer. The working men and women you have so coldly cut will suffer and we too will suffer. We will suffer, unnecessarily, a loss of many positive services.

You say that you must put the axe to these public employees; you say that your actions are dictated by the State's dire financial straits. If our State's finances are so bad Mr. Governor, how can we afford the luxury of having over a million tax dollars finance elective abortions through Medicaid.

I urge you to stop this waste of tax dollars, before a single public servant is laid off.

It is also intriguing that while Medicaid still funds elective abortions, you have urged an end to Medicaid funding of elective surgery designed to improve health.

Again, Mr. Governor..... Why?

Sincerely,
JAMES R. WHELAN

Minds on Election

Dear Editor,

We all know things are going to get better — our president and the news media tell us so. Even the stock market is improving in spite of doubts. If and when things do get better, you will hear the yell that will go up. The Democrats will swear that recovery was due to them. The Republicans will say it was because of them. Nobody wants to claim credit for the country's poverty and blowing up, but wait until it starts picking up — they'll both be on it then. I do not think either one of these parties knows what it's all about to be honest with us.

Both sides are doing nothing but just looking at the next election. You do not hear anyone talking anymore about when the unemployed are going back to work; meanwhile the unemployed are shifting from jobs with less pay and back to welfare, and as soon as the taxpayers themselves go broke, they too will apply to join that army of welfare recipients.

Only then will the millions of poor people with so much time on their hands, have a chance to think and study the Portuguese and Angolan revolutions, and also why our C.I.A. is secretly spending our tax dollars all over the world, trying to buy fascists to safeguard our free world from the communists.

You do not hear any more talking about how to relieve the plight of the poor folks; all you hear now is: Do you think the president is going to be elected? Who will the other side nominate? Their minds are on the elections, and that is all, because being a politician is a chance of a good salary plus lous.

Sincerely,
ANGELO DeLEWIS
Modena

Letter to Onteora Residents

Dear Editor:

The hearings of the Onteora School Board have now concluded. Dr. Frank Marlow has been found guilty of six charges by a majority of the board and thereby dethroned. It was quite obvious that six members of the board knew how to separate the "wheat from the chaff". When the announcement of the votes became available it was quite obvious that six members of the board were truly open minded but that three members were closed minded. Did YOU notice? Did you notice that the three voted in a "block" on all charges? Come on now, it really is all too obvious. Marlow could be their reasons for protecting Marlow? Perhaps a debt of gratitude? For one, was glad to see that six members had the decency and honor to get rid of a blight on this district. What did it cost us? What did it save us? Let's hear those estimates and then decide if in fact, it wasn't worth the money. I strongly believe it WAS!

Because of numerous threats, I have taken several steps to protect life and property. To the persons responsible for the necessity of these protective measures I say, your identities will be made known.

Because of slanderous letters, public statements, yellow journalism, withholding of evidence, lies, unethical conduct, deceit etc. I will be taking several steps to make the true facts available to anyone who is interested in hearing them.

The hearings were a due process procedure, according to the terms of Marlow's contract. They were done in a legalistic manner, but there are many, many moral and ethical issues that were not brought out in the form of charges.

Marlow publicly stated that the charges were "based on misinterpretations, warped logic and distortions of the truth." Whose misinterpretations, warped logic and distortions of the truth is he referring to—his? And who is truly

"responsible for the polarization of this district"—him?

I understand there is a petition circulating in the district. This further effort to polarize the district is just another tactic of a few pompous self-achievers who seek power, statue and fame.

Never before, in the history of Onteora, has a board of education been faced with such a challenge. The courage of six members of the board majority has sustained them through great emotional stress. James Matthews, the board attorney, has diligently and sincerely proved his ability and dignity.

Never in my 33 years of marriage to Sam had our lives been so topsy-turvy, but we survived the trauma of the past 26 months. The experience has brought us closer—our love and faith in each other has been strengthened—it has made me realize that, indeed God does work in strange ways His wonders to perform (Sara never once doubted).

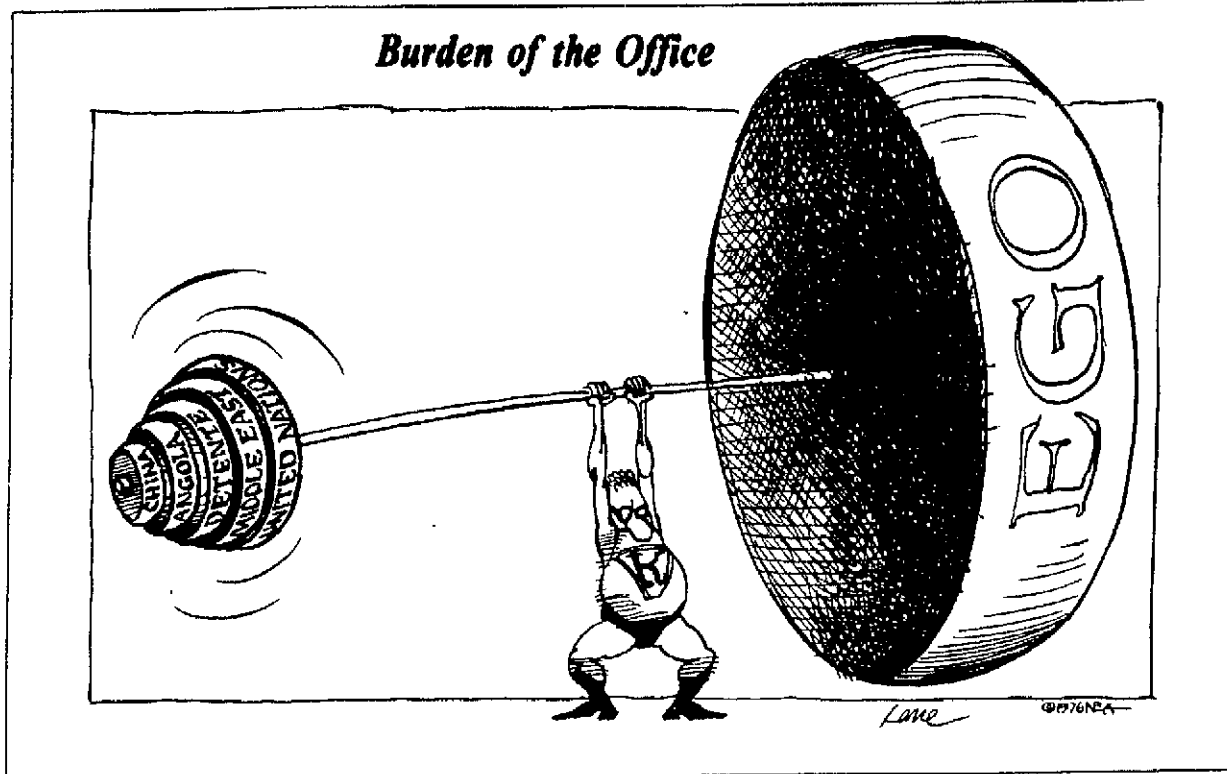

I sincerely urge the people of Onteora to reunite in love, faith and gratitude by reelecting John Mower and Howard Lewis this coming May. I also urge you to elect one more honest and open minded candidate to fill the soon-to-be-vacated seat of a board member who chooses not to run again. I urge you to support the candidates who believe in truth, justice and sincerity. I urge you to put down the divisive tactics that permeate our district.

The Onteora School District was, is, and will continue to be a government OF the people, BY the people and FOR the people.

I'd like to thank the many people who believe in the sincerity and integrity of Howard Lewis, John Mower, Beverly Britting, Jim Darrow, Don Lawson and my husband Sam Mercer.

Doris Mercer,
Woodstock

North Korea Exports Military Aid

WASHINGTON — Secret Pentagon documents reveal that North Korea, like Cuba, is funneling military aid to countries around the world.

The North Koreans also train their clients to handle sophisticated Soviet weaponry. They sent a 75-man training mission half way around the world, for example, to train Syrian pilots for action against Israel. The North Koreans "departed Syria in late 1975," adds a secret document.

Some of the North Korean arms, incidentally, have been traced by U.S. intelligence from Syria to the Palestine Liberation Organization.

The suspicion is the Soviets are using Cuba and North Korea to distribute arms to Third-World countries which prefer to play down their Moscow connections. These countries like to give the impression they are independent of the superpowers for it is more acceptable among the developing nations to accept arms from tiny Cuba and North Korea.

Neither country, of course, produces arms for export but merely trans-ships Soviet arms. Both Cuba's Fidel Castro and North Korea's Kim Il-sung are considered to be firmly under Soviet control.

The Angolan conflict has focused the world spotlight on the Cuban role in Africa. But the news reports haven't mentioned that North Korea, too, is supporting pro-Soviet military factions throughout the world.

The Pentagon documents report that North Korea has sold or granted more than $44 million worth of military hardware to such countries as Burundi, Egypt, Mozambique, Pakistan, Sierra Leone, Syria, Tanzania, Togo and Zaire.

The shipments range from rocket launchers and jeep-mounted recoilless rifles to communications equipment and torpedo boats. One of the most surprising revelations in the secret documents is the report of North Korean aid to Zaire, which heretofore has been considered a pro-Western government. Yet the North Koreans not only supplied Zaire with some $6 million in armaments but also sent a 125-man training mission to Zaire. The mission, according to a secret report, "arrived early 1975 (and) trained recruits for a Zairean division."

The report adds that 105 "departed Zaire in December 1975. Of the remaining, three are medical specialists, nine are artillery instructors and eight are training Zairean infantry instructors."

In Korea, meanwhile, the U.S. command is worried that the rambunctious Kim Il-sung may order another invasion of South Korea. This has led Lt. Gen. James Hollingsworth, the top U.S. field commander in South Korea, to warn of U.S. retaliation against the North.

His statements have caused a flap in the backrooms of Washington. Reps. Stephen Solarz, D.-N.Y., and Don Fraser, D.-Minn., fearful that American troops might get involved in another war on the Asian mainland, have introduced a bill to end all arms aid to South Korea unless the 42,000 U.S. troops are withdrawn.

Asst. State Secretary Philip Habib also blew into the Honolulu headquarters of the Pacific command. A confidential document reports that Habib "indicated in no uncertain terms that State feels that Hollingsworth is becoming a liability with his all-revealing press statements."

Not long after Habib's visit, Hollingsworth was abruptly retired. Nevertheless, a State Department spokesman insisted that Habib "was not involved in any way, shape or form with Gen. Hollingsworth's retirement."

STIFLED RESEARCH: We recently reported that the stodgy administrators of the National Institutes of Health were stifling research which they considered "unconventional." This has caused the United States to drop behind other nations in certain fields.

In response to our column, several scientists have contacted us about other vital research that NIH is neglecting. Here are a few examples:

—Dr. Robert Reisinger has claimed for years that sudden infant death syndrome is more likely to occur among bottle-fed than breast-fed babies. This was supported last year by a New Zealand study which claimed 10 bottle-fed infants die of the syndrome to every breast-fed infant. However, his work has been discouraged and completely ignored by the National Institute of Child Health.

—Dr. James Enstrom of UCLA has studied the cancer rates among certain groups, such as the Mormons whose mortality rate from cancer is 30 per cent lower than the national rate. He has submitted numerous proposals to NIH to study different groups, which could provide insight into the causes and prevention of cancer. None have received funding.

—Dr. George Mann of Vanderbilt University has linked diabetes symptoms to an ascorbic acid deficiency. Yet all his proposals for NIH research grants since 1965 have been turned down.

—Dr. Terrance Anderson and Dr. Wilfred Shute in Canada have been working with vitamin E as a treatment for heart disease. Researchers in Japan successfully inactivated 21 different bacterial viruses with vitamin C. Yet NIH has failed to follow up any of this research.

FOOTNOTE: After we reported that Dr. Anthony Verlangieri had been turned down by NIH on important atherosclerosis research, he was contacted by two private foundations which may be willing to finance his project.

The Remarkable Miss Satin

WASHINGTON—Miss Sophie Satin died a year ago this February in her 96th year. A botanist, a teacher, a social historian, a museologist Miss Satin was, although she never seemed to have used the term, a feminist in Czarist Russia.

In the light of our modern consternations and controversies, it is ironic that one of Miss Satin's accomplishments was to be among the very first women stenographers in Russia. She writes that in 1896: "I could not continue my education because all women's colleges were closed. (Government edict.) All I could do now was to read and to wander about in the (Moscow) apartment, not knowing what to do or how to occupy myself. And then in this dull and boring 'doing nothing' period I learned by chance that somebody offered to teach the graduates of our school stenography. What did the word stenography mean? I did not know. Nobody knew it at home, neither did my friends. Only the doctor . . . said that this word in Greek should mean 'Narrow writing,' but what is this stenography for, and how and when is it used? He did not know either. Mother decided wisely that if this unknown thing is going to be taught . . . it was worthwhile to accept the offer. I followed her advice at once."

SENT TO PARIS

Miss Satin wrote that the skill was invaluable to her. Not only was she able to earn money with it, but stenographers were so rare and so much in demand that her services were used at lectures and political occasions she might otherwise not have been able to attend. In 1905 she was sent to Paris to make a transcript of an international conference, but when she arrived and the admiral for whom she was to work got a look at her, she remembered, "He exclaimed, 'They sent a woman! What a shame. Poor Russia . . .'" But still worse was the attitude of the three French official stenographers. They refused to move when I approached the desk given us . . . One of them muttered: the place of women is in the kitchen, and it was the British stenographer who got up, moved his papers and politely offered me the necessary space for my work." To his credit, let it be said, that the admiral changed his mind and twice offered Miss Satin a job.

This small skirmish is described in her "Recollections," a book of great charm written at the behest of American friends but which is unhappily unpublished. In it you get an idea of what Russian women had to go through to get an education in a country that had no HBW to help them.

Miss Satin and her friends had to set up their own college, but under the bootleg name of "Collective Lessons," lest the government close it down. Ultimately, because of their display of perfect behavior and staying away from political meetings, the government began to relent and Miss Satin was among the first class of women to matriculate at the University of Moscow.

Not only did Miss Satin become a botanist, but she and her friends raised the money, collected and mounted the specimens for a free natural history museum. Next they began to design and manufacture visual aids for teaching Russian children the natural sciences even as they continued their work of collecting and cataloging the flora and fauna of their native land. This could entail risks as when the tatar coachman almost totaled them and the microscope she had purchased with her Paris stenographic earnings. When they both survived, the coachman told her, "Miss you were saved by Mahomet, you won't die until you will achieve something great." This is apparently the reason why I am still alive so long."

What would Russia be like today if it hadn't driven out people like Sophie Satin and her family, which included her brother-in-law Sergei Rachmaninoff? Her descriptions of what it was like for women to live in the Soviet Union in that period are less horrifying than tales of the concentration camps, but perhaps more dispiriting because they're probably more representative of ordinary experience.

"The poor dressmaker was afraid of everybody and everything. I shall never forget her face, behavior and despair when she was ordered by the Soviet Government to go to one of the railroad stations in Moscow and be one of the guards of a special train, holding a gun in her hands. She was afraid even to look at the gun and for a whole day kept it as far from her body as possible thinking all the time that the gun might go off by itself."

RARE CHOICE

When Miss Satin got out of Russia and away from the hunger and the stupidity, she didn't take money with her but "a rare and astonishing mould. I had been unable to complete my research on this particular subject due to the revolution. I had preserved the mould spores for several years, having wrapped them in sterilized paper, hoping somewhere and somehow to finish up my research."

Sophie Satin came to love America, where for many years she pursued her life's work at the Carnegie Institute and at Smith College. Americans, however, did not always understand how she could continue to love Russia, too. Many of them thought it was a land where the people live in "caves, tents and mud huts." She confesses she lost her temper when the wife of a Department of Agriculture bureaucrat, where Miss Satin worked one summer, told her, "I imagine how happy you are to be here, coming from this savage, horrible and abominable country."

Miss Satin assumed she'd be fired for telling the lady off but, instead, "I found on my table only a glass of water with a beautiful rose and a note to 'Miss Satin.' Next day, after lunch, I found on my table a splendid peach, on the third day I found a pear. So it went all the week . . . The unpleasant incident . . . helped me to better understand and value American women and come closer to them."

The feminist movement these last years has inspired notable work on the contribution of women in our history. Sometimes, though, immigrant women like Miss Sophie Satin are overlooked.

The Health of Statesmen . . . I

In an era of crisis in domestic and foreign affairs, the health of our President bears directly on the health of the nation. Gerald Ford's decision to publicize the results of his "medical checkup" is not only refreshing, but a challenge to other candidates for the office.

Ford is a sturdy, healthy human. One assumes that his emotional health is also muscle-bound, although the White House has issued no psychological evaluation. This, to my way of thinking, is as important as the status of heart, lungs, blood pressure and cholesterol level.

When Richard Nixon was threatened with impeachment, he is alleged to have told 30 Congressmen: "I can go into my office and pick up the telephone and, in 25 minutes, 70 million people will be dead."

If this is true, President Nixon was emotionally unstable. Whether it was intended to be facetious or vengeful, the President could order a nuclear missile attack on the Soviet Union. If, in effect, Congress threatened to destory Nixon, the President could destory a large part of the world.

WHO REALLY WON?

Most Americans assume that President Kennedy won a victory over Russia when, in the Cuban missile crisis, he caused the Soviets to remove their intermediate missiles from Castro's island.

I think he panicked. When he told Krushchev, "We will regard any missile coming from Cuba as coming from the Soviet Union," it was an ultimatum. Kennedy had to sweat out the response. So did we. He took a long chance, and won.

The Soviets think they won. The price of shipping the missiles back to Leningrad was Kennedy's promise that the U.S. would not invade Cuba. This emboldened Castro to vilify the U.S. with impunity.

Five years ago I contracted to write a book called "FDR's Last Year." I felt that 1944-1945 was the most crucial year of the century for America, and that FDR was the architect for victory.

For three years I chased Roosevelt survivors for interviews, bits and pieces of history. I was stunned to learn that on Monday, March 27, 1944, FDR submitted to a secret medical examination at Bethesda. Navy physicians discovered that he was a dying man, irreversibly ill of heart disease.

Admiral Ross McIntire, White House physician, engineered a cover-up. He knew his boss was fading from life, but he applauded when, two months later, the President announced that he would run for a fourth term.

McIntire also lied to the press, announcing, in effect, that FDR was fit as a fiddle, except for "sinus flareups." He also choked into silence the young Navy cardiologist who discovered the terrifying truth.

In the autumn of 1944, when Roosevelt went to Yalta to bargain the world with the Russians, he had aphasia. His jaw hung slack; he had difficulty remembering what he was talking about.

To America, the physical and emotional health of our presidents is as important as their knowledge and judgment. I interviewed Dwight D. Eisenhower in February, 1956. I spent several days in the White House asking questions of many persons.

VALUE OF A BUCK

He was pink and cherubic. His head appeared to be on straight. And yet I was stunned when he told me he knew nothing of economics. Ike did not comprehend the value of a buck.

"My life," he said, "has been spent in the military. If I needed 500 planes or 1,000 tanks, I had no time to let the contracts out to the lowest bidder. All I did was write a requisition."

At a Texas ranch, Lyndon Johnson confided to me that he was spending $30 billions each year trying to win the war in Vietnam. His generals protested to him that they never had enough money, enough men, enough material, to win the conflict.

I dipped a bare foot into his swimming pool. "If we win, Mr. President, what will America get in return?" He shook his head dolefully and began to caw at some wild peacocks sitting on his fence.

Woodrow Wilson had a cerebral stroke in office. For a time, he could neither speak nor think rationally. The affairs of this country were administered by his wife and his physician, Admiral Cary Grayson.

They didn't bother to tell Vice President Thomas Marshall that he should be running the country. But then, what's a Vice President? . . .

UNESCO's Chance

When the dates were set for the compromise Israeli evacuation of the western Sinai desert, it was decreed that a buffer strip of sand dune country near the oasis of Katia would be relinquished to the UN for "neutralization" on February 22 of 1976. And thereby hangs a tale that should be called to the attention of UNESCO, the UN "cultural" organization which has reduced itself to an obscene absurdity by condemning Israeli "digs" in Jerusalem which have done no harm to "existing" monuments even while uncovering fascinating evidence of Palestinian civilizations going back to the Bronze Age.

UNESCO could redeem itself from past errors if it would only take responsibility in Sinai "neutral" zones for cultural preservation.

The Sinai buffer strip that has just been lost to Israeli supervision happens to include the buried site of an ancient city called Kassrwit, which was built some three centuries before the birth of Christ by the ancient Nabateans.

Buried by Sands

Way back in 1911, French archaeologists discovered the existence of the Kassrwit ruin, but nothing much was done about it. The drifting sands soon obliterated the marks of a casual French excavation. It was not until the Israelis moved up to the Suez Canal in the 1967 war that scientists from Ben-Gurion University in the Negev city of Beersheba began looking into the remains of some 800 settlements in the northern Sinai.

As a result of this thorough search Kassrwit was rediscovered for a second time. The reaches of 75 acres of the Nabatean city were staked out by aerial photographers, who traced the limits of the concealed ruins by observing irregularities in vegetation.

What followed was a Herculean effort by Professor Eliezer D. Oren and a group of excavators to make Kassrwit as familiar to archaeological buffs as Meggido or Caesarea or any other comparable Mid-eastern ruin. Working in recent months against the February 22 deadline, the Israeli scientists have uncovered several large temples, many housing complexes, a host of tombs and 20 skeletons, and even suburban satellite communities some two miles from the Kassrwit center.

The most "emotional" find, according to Professor Oren, was a small clay lamp with the imprint of a menorah, the seven-branched candelabrum that goes with Jewish worship. What the menorah discovery would indicate is that Kassrwit must have passed into Hebrew possession when the Nabateans were defeated by the Roman Emperor Trajan in 106 A.D.

With the passage of Kassrwit into UN hands, it will be interesting to see what happens to the site. The natural conditions of the northern Sinai desert are, in Professor Oren's words, "most hostile" to the preservation of archaeological excavations. The sand in this part of the world blows incessantly. Without constant clearing, Kassrwit could disappear from human sight in less than a year.

Sincere Move

Clearly, if UNESCO were sincere about its concern for the integrity of ancient monuments, it would move to keep Kassrwit from being lost all over again to human inspection. The Israeli excavations at the site were not made at the expense of altering anything that might have been called "historical." UNESCO was only hypocritically concerned with the Israeli "digs" in the Old City of Jerusalem, which have carefully avoided jeopardizing the area where the Moslem shrines, the Dome of the Rock and El Aqua Mosque, are located.

A traveler was passing through an ancient city when he saw three men working near a pile of stone. He stopped to rest his camel and chat with workmen. He stepped up to one of the men who was sitting on the ground chipping away at a stone with his hammer and chisel. For a few moments the traveler watched in silence as the man went about his work then he said, "Tell me, young man, what is the purpose of your labor?" The workman dropped his tools as he looked up at the traveler and replied, "Why, Sir, I'm shaping a stone." The traveler said, "Oh yes, of course, I should have known."

He then went to the second man and asked the same question, "What is the purpose of your labor?" This man hesitated for a moment then answered, "I suppose you would say that I am helping to build a wall." The wise old traveler then went to the third workman and asked a similar question, "Why do you work with the stone, what is the reason for your labor?" This man was different, he had a purpose in life. He smiled as he looked up at the stranger, then he rose to his feet and as he looked up at the sky he gestured with his hands high and wide apart, and with a sparkle in his voice he said, "My good man, I am building a great cathedral."

It is well for us to pause occasionally during the rush of our busy lives to appraise our own progress. Perhaps we should ask ourselves, "What am I doing with the precious time that has been allotted to me? Am I going along through life, day after day, in the swim of complacency doing just enough to get by, doing just what I have to do and no more? Am I contented to shape a mere insignificant block now and then, soon to fade into oblivion? Or does my life have a clear and definite purpose? Have I found my real place in life? Have I caught the vision of the goals I want to achieve? Have I dedicated myself to that purpose?"

To each of us is given the power to choose what he will do with his own inherent potential. Some will content themselves to meet the minimum, but others will broaden their scopes and raise their sights. They will see higher and farther into the realm of their own possibilities. They will take advantage of the latent talents and abilities which nature has given them, and because of their courage and ambition, they will build the magnificent structure of a successful life and enjoy the abundance of life's riches. They are the people who will find "The Way To Win."

Inside Report

Rowland Evans and Robert Novak

WASHINGTON—On Feb. 5, a high official of the Federal Energy Administration (FEA) saw the chance of a generation slipping away and placed a panicky long distance call to one of several Republican Congressmen who had suddenly disappeared from the House floor — a disappearance that can best be described as scandalous.

The chance was the first good prospect in two decades and perhaps the last good prospect for some time of deregulating natural gas prices. That's why the FEA official panicked when he noted so many absentees and tried to round them up. Actually reaching one back home in his district, he asked the Congressman what in the world he was doing there. The reply was blunt: "Hell, I've got a tough race on my hands."

Tough re-election contests plus paid speaking engagements, vacations, routine weekend visits home and just plain lassitude accumulated 25 absentees for the Thursday afternoon vote. Since most of the absentees favored deregulation, they are responsible for a 205 to 201 vote that killed gas deregulation almost surely for this year and quite probably into the foreseeable future.

To permit their troops to wander on such a critical vote questions the competency of House Republican leaders but also raises this broader point: members of the best paid, best staffed and most luxuriously equipped parliamentary body in the history of man often act more like volunteer village selectmen handling legislative duties in their spare time than directors of a multi-billion-dollar corporation.

That so liberal a Congress seemed about to deregulate gas prices after 25 years of court-ordered controls was a triumph of reason over ideology. Many liberals, threatened by a natural gas shortage, had become convinced that artificially low regulated prices inhibited production. That generated Senate passage of a moderate deregulation bill and what seemed nearly certain House approval of an even better bill.

The stunning 205 to 201 vote against deregulation was attributed generally by key Republicans to organized labor's lobbyists swarming all over Capitol Hill at the eleventh hour to fight deregulation. Other Republicans explaining away the setback cited that morning's Washington Post revealing heavy oil contributions received by principal sponsor of deregulation, Democratic Rep. Robert Krueger of Texas. ("Krueger was really indecent to accept that amount of money," one senior Republican Congressman, in an uncharacteristic display of moral indignation, told us.)

Such claims are dubious. There is no evidence the avalanche of labor lobbyists changed many votes. Liberal Republican Rep. Margaret Heckler of Massachusetts told us the Krueger revelations helped decide her vote, but there was no stampede. Rather, these reasons seem a smokescreen hiding what one Congressman never chides another for under the gentleman's code of Capitol Hill: absenteeism.

Expert analysis shows that of the 25 absentees, 15 favored deregulation. Of the remaining 10, only four would have voted against deregulation (with four others not being present to vote in any event and two anti-regulation Republicans keeping away from the floor at the request of party leaders). Thus, the absentees unquestionably made the difference.

Of the 15 deregulation absentees, only one — Republican Robert McEwen of New York — had a valid excuse: illness. The remainder apparently had better things to do.

Rep. John Anderson of Illinois, chairman of the House Republican conference, sized up the situation incorrectly and felt he could fulfill a speaking date at the University of Southern Mississippi without missing anything. Three conservative Republicans from Ohio — Donald Clancy, John Ashbrook and Chalmers Wylie — were flying back for weekends in their constituencies (the latter two taking earlier planes because of bad weather).

Arizona. Republican Garry Brown of Michigan was out of town for a rest. Democrat Bill Alexander of Arkansas was in Steamboat Springs, Colo., celebrating his wedding anniversary. Democrat Kenneth Holland of South Carolina was addressing his state's municipal association.

Others were in Washington but not on the floor. Republican Herman Schneebeli of Pennsylvania was cutting a radio tape and did not hear the buzzers. Republican Pete McCloskey of California was caught in a room without buzzers. Democrats Jack Brooks of Texas and Bill Chappell of Florida did not make it to the floor in time. The 15th absentee, Democrat Wilbur D. Mills of Arkansas, was not available to explain his absence. Of these, Brooks is suspected by deregulation forces of taking a walk to avoid an anti-labor vote (an accusation denied by Brooks.)

Republicans, outnumbered 3 to 2 in the House, accounted for 10 of the missing 15 votes for deregulation. Since nobody claims the Democrats intentionally misled them, this points to needed improvements in the Republican whip system.

But fully grown Congressmen earning $44,600 a year — only a small fraction of the tax money spent to support them — ought to be able to get on the floor for vital votes without being whipped. In truth, absenteeism is rampant in Congress, though usually for votes less important and not nearly so close as the probably irreparable action taken Feb. 5.

JERNIGAN Carnegie Meeting Tuesday

A preview meeting for a Dale Carnegie class in Kingston has been set for 7:01 p.m. Tuesday at the Ramada Inn.

Presenting the program will be Paul Jernigan, area representative of the Dale Carnegie Institute of Albany.

Jernigan, who resides at Friends Lake, Warren County, with his wife and five children, has completed special management courses at the General Motors Institute in Michigan. He is a past president of the Bronxville Rotary Club and is a past vice president of the New York Automobile Dealers Association.

He is responsible for Dale Carnegie courses offered from Kingston to the Canadian border.

Jernigan said a practical memory demonstration will be given and refreshments will be served. There is no cost or obligation for those attending.

The Dale Carnegie Institute of Albany has been accredited by the Continuing Education Council.

"Our accreditation means that the courses are sound and up to date, the instructors are well qualified and use effective teaching methods, and participants gain worthwhile benefits," said Homer Kempfer, executive director of the council, which is headquartered in Richmond, Va.

NEWBURGH
It's not the New Hampshire primary but President Ford's presence will be felt at the Mount Saint Mary College third annual auction Wednesday, Feb. 25 at 7 p.m. in the Aquinas Hall theatre. The President leads the parade of celebrities who have donated items to be auctioned to the highest bidder. Local Leagues are beginning a study of the New York State Legislature.

LWV membership is made up of men and women whose conviction is that a free and democratic society can survive only if its citizens are informed about and involved in their government. The LWV is non-partisan and never supports or opposes a particular candidate or particular party.

Several candidates for the Presidency are urging the return of more governing power to the states. Yet, surveys show that the average person is not familiar with his state government, and a large percent of those polled had no idea who represents them on a state level, how their state government functions, or how their state taxes are spent. The League, therefore, feels its current study is particularly timely.

The public is invited to Tuesday's meeting and urged to join the League's study groups. Those unable to attend the meeting but are interested in membership or in having more information should write the League of Women Voters of Mid-Ulster County, UPO Box 564, Kingston.

UCCC Prof Gets Woman Study Grant

NEW PALTZ
The Danforth Foundation has awarded a $2,000 grant to Dr. Carley Bogard, assistant professor of English at SUNY, New Paltz, to enable the continuation of a series of women's study programs that began last fall. The programs included lectures, seminars, and conferences by women faculty members at the college. The grant will cover also the funding of two papers called

"The Woman as Scholar" and "The Woman as Artist." Gene L. Schwilck, president and college fund director of the Danforth Foundation, commended the Women's Studies Program at New Paltz for this "worthwhile project which will help women become full participants in a democratic society."

In the past the series has included such topics as rape and sexism in language. Additional projects are now being discussed and a series of poetry readings is being planned for the spring semester. The series will culminate with an interdisciplinary conference in the fall entitled "Women as Scholar and Artist."

Co-sponsors of the program are Jane Lee Yare, coordinator of women's studies and assistant professor of political science; Dr. Eleanor Kuykendall, associate professor of philosophy; and Dr. Ingrid Lorch Turner, assistant professor of philosophy.

AFS Shows Fashions

NEW PALTZ
New Paltz Chapter of American Field Service will hold its first annual fashion show Wednesday, Feb. 25 at 7:30 p.m. at New Paltz High School auditorium.

New Paltz Will Wear Green

NEW PALTZ
It's doubtful St. Patrick ever found a snake in the grass. His life is steeped in legend, and perhaps the one best known is that he drove all the snakes out of Ireland and into the sea. But probably there never were any snakes on the Emerald Isle, say researchers. There certainly are none now.

None of which will make any difference to his loyal supporters in New Paltz, who will march in the Fourth Annual St. Patrick's Day Parade on Sunday, March 14. Leprechaun lovers, one and all, they'll step off at 2 p.m. from North Manheim Boulevard.

The parade has been a yearly event in Paltz since 1973 when it first wended its way down Main Street. From a handful of marchers in the beginning, it has continued to grow. Now a well organized affair, it has become a major town event.

This year, local bands, fire companies and many groups and organizations from several counties will pay homage to the patron saint of Ireland.

In New Paltz, wee folk and big folk are donning St. Patrick's Day T-shirts in anticipation of the event. And any individual or organization interested in marching or helping with the parade is invited to phone Zach's, 125 Main Street.

These wee folk and other leprechauns in large numbers will invade New Paltz on the afternoon of March 14 for the Fourth Annual St. Patrick's Day Parade.

New Paneling Has 'Character' — Marks of Pecky Cypress

Chrome and glass, whites and burnt yellows play against the deep rich brown coloring and graining of Pecky Cypress Brown Design paneling in this living room setting. The new prefinished hardboard paneling from Masonite Corporation authentically duplicates the distinctive character marks of one of the world's rarest and most exquisite woods. The deeply etched markings recreate the look that takes nature 200 years to achieve.

The deep tones of the plank-like paneling offset the bone whites of the squaredoff lamps and sofa. These angular designs are repeated throughout the room; in the chrome and glass etagere and parson's table and in the squared tub chairs. Both privacy and togetherness are served as the paneling is used to set off a corner of the room for an office-den arrangement. The easily installed panels have the ease of maintenance demanded in modern homes and apartments. They can be cleaned with the sweep of a damp cloth or sponge.

Pecky Cypress Design paneling also is available in White, Golden and Gray.

Clever Storage

MOVEABLE DIVIDER mounted on casters is easily adapted to varying floorspace needs. One side of the unit is covered with Masonite brand hardboard paneling like that used on the walls of the family room. The prefinished paneling is attractive, durable and easy-to-clean.

FOR PRIVACY WITHOUT ISOLATION the moveable divider partitions off a hobby center. The model train table folds into the paneled wall when not in use.

DIVIDER'S OTHER FACE conceals storage space. Caster-mounted, the unit easily can be moved without having to clear off the shelves.

Heeere's McMahon!

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Ed McMahon plays a lush in a new movie and the wise guys nod their heads and cry, "Type casting."

For better or worse, jolly Ed shares Dean Martin's reputation as a world class toper.

During 14 years as Johnny Carson's sidekick on the "Tonight Show" Ed has been kidded for schlepping sauce on a gargantuan scale.

Whenever he lifts a coffee cup on the show the audience titters. They know McMahon, like Jackie Gleason, is sipping 98 proof firewater. Booze jokes are tailor made for the big, bluff Irishman.

Strangers are compelled to send a round of drinks to Ed and his girlfriend whenever they show up at a restaurant.

He's been accused of being a test pilot for National Distillers.

Ed's heard more gags about the size and condition of his liver than a French doctor at Vichy. If his eyes are puffy from the Los Angeles smog, it is taken for granted McMahon is nursing a hangover.

In "Dick and Jane" Ed plays a businessman souse with such authority he is certain to add to his legend as a two-fisted drinker.

The prospect doesn't bother Ed a bit.

"My image as a heavy drinker has given me a good relationship with the American public," he said soberly in the Burbank Studios commissary during the noonday break. "People feel they can sit down and have a drink with me. It gives us a common bond."

"There's no way anybody could drink as much as I get credit for and still be walking around. Or even crawling around."

Ed's apartment at the beach recently burned, forcing him to move. There were unfounded rumors the blaze was caused by spontaneous combustion of alcoholic fumes.

His association with a national brewery as a television pitchman hasn't dimmed Ed's reputation as a drunk either. But he takes it all good naturedly. He feels it's better to have that image with the public than no identification at all.

"The whole thing has added pizzazz and color to my career," he said.

"It's true, that isn't coffee in the cup I drink from on the show. It's tea. Just plain tea."

He patted his abdomen and said he had lost 35 pounds in recent years.

"No one can lose as much weight as I have and drink very much," he said. "And I work too hard to put away as much booze as I get credit for. These days I drink mostly white wine."

"I haven't missed a 'Tonight Show' since we went on the air. It's tough enough trying to keep up with Johnny Carson sober. It would be impossible to try if I were drunk."

Eat and Grow Younger.

Final Words of Nutrition Wisdom: Don't Grow Old at Dining Table

In planning your Eat-and-Grow-Younger program of high-protein foods, I have tried to keep in mind the only important nutritional taboos which have a basis in scientific fact. Following are some do's and don't-do's:

1. Avoid combining high-proteins (red meats, poultry, fish, eggs, cheese, milk) with high-starches (rice, macaroni, spaghetti, white bread, rich desserts) at the same meal.

And if, for some valid reason, you are forced to eat more high-starch meals than high-protein, then by all means take liberal amounts of supplemental vitamins, since the more starch you eat, the more your body is depleted of the B-complex factors that have the specific task of postponing the day when you must say farewell to youth.

2. Avoid combining pure fats with high starches in the same meal. For instance bacon (almost 100 per cent fat, and of the wrong kind, too), fried potatoes, cream, white sugar, white bread and jelly are a rather common breakfast menu in some homes, yet nothing could be worse nutrition.

It's absolutely impossible to plan a meal that doesn't include some carbohydrate. But the thing to keep in mind is this: A meal should be predominantly either protein or carbohydrate. When it is predominantly protein, it should include only those natural starches found in vegetables, fruits, milk and honey or unrefined raw sugar. This means, as on example, omitting a rice or macaroni dish and pie with your steak, substituting the carbohydrates to be found in a green salad, a cooked vegetable and a fruit or custard dessert.

STIMULATE DIGESTION

Start your meals with fruit, a cup of vegetable soup, a bouillon or meat broth. Why? Because fresh fruits, together with meat extracts or the bouillon made by simmering meats and vegetables together, are rich in certain extractive substances that help to excite the gastric glands into producing the very powerful hydrochloric acid which is essential for thorough digestion of a protein meal.

This is a timely spot to bring up the subject of chewing. A lot of false information and erroneous advice has been handed out to the public for years on the subject of "proper mastication of food." Once and for all, I would like to clear up these mistaken ideas, and present the facts. In brief, here is your "chewing chart":

HOW TO CHEW

1. All vegetables, fruits and sugar-starch foods should be chewed thoroughly. Carbohydrates are digested in an alkaline base, as I've explained before. The saliva in your mouth is an alkali, and is secreted by the salivary glands as the first step in the long and complicated digestion of carbohydrates. Therefore, if you bolt your carbohydrate foods, you cause them to miss this preliminary digestive processing.

2. All protein foods such as meat, fish, poultry, eggs, and cheese require little chewing for good digestion. No doubt this comes as a surprise to you—a complete reversal of everything you've ever been taught about mastication. Meat has been conscientiously and laboriously ground for the person with poor, or no teeth; while eggs have been boiled only enough to set the white for the person with a "weak digestion." All of which has been a serious digestive and nutritional mistake!

A final word on "home" digestive aids: The kindest thing you can do for your stomach is not to overload it. If food gives you a real taste thrill, you eat less, are better nourished, and avoid the dangers of overeating.

A good rule to follow: First eat all the foods you need. Then, if there is capacity for something else—have it. Chances are you won't want it. To prevent "internal chemical starvation," your body cells need the important vitamins and minerals. The sad fact is that many of our foods do not supply all of the vitamins and minerals we should have for maximum nutrition.

For that reason, in addition to good eating, it is wise to use supplemental vitamins and minerals. For my own use, I find the formula called "Nutri-Time" to be an ideal vitamin-mineral food supplement.

I've told you the facts. The living of these facts is up to you.

Your mind and your body can remain youthful many years past your so-called "prime," if only you don't help fasten the shackles of premature old age on yourself every time you sit down at the table.

Dear Abby

More Tip-Offs on Spouse Slip-Ups

© 1976 by Chicago Tribune N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I, too, received an anonymous telephone call concerning my husband. It went something like this: The phone rang in my office in our small-town, weekly newspaper, and the woman who called asked my identity and then said:

"Is your daughter home?"

"Which one?" I asked. "I have three."

"The one who's a nurse!"

"A nurse? Why do you ask?"

"Well, I just saw your husband drive by Mt. Pleasant and Roosevelt, and he had a young woman dressed in white with him!"

I laughed (I couldn't help it), then she banged down the receiver.

The small cafe next to us had only two girls working there (in mid-afternoon), and one of them had caught her hand in a mixer. The other girl asked if one of us would please drive the injured girl to the emergency hospital, and it was easier for my husband to get away than it was for me, so he drove her there.

What did that woman expect to gain except to make me unhappy?

I'm glad I laughed. It must have taken the wind out of her sails.

RUTH IN IOWA

DEAR RUTH: I happen to agree with you. But read on for a letter from someone who disagrees with both of us.

DEAR ABBY: When I read your advice to the woman who had received an anonymous call telling her that her husband was having an affair, I became furious. You told that woman that the caller was probably a miserable person trying to make others miserable, and the wife should forget about the call!

Well, Abby, let me tell my story: I, too, was married to a fine, professional man for a number of years. I, too, received an anonymous phone call telling me that my husband was having an affair with his secretary. I, too, was dumfounded. However, instead of forgetting it, I did my own investigating and discovered that my husband was in fact dating his secretary—and had been for some time.

In my opinion, the person who informed me was not a "miserable person" trying to make me miserable. She was simply a friend who was trying to tip me off.

I think it is absolutely disgusting that the wife is always the last to know about her husband's extracurricular activities. I'd rather be miserable knowing the truth about my husband than live in "ignorant bliss" with a man who makes a mockery out of his marriage vows.

THROWING THE BUM OUT

DEAR ABBY: My 86-year-old mother always starts up an argument with me whenever we have company. I am a nervous person and flare up quickly, and before you know it, there is a big battle raging.

This happened again over the holidays, and my married children who were visiting me at the time packed up their kids and put their luggage in the car, and it was "Adios, Amigos!"

This was very humiliating to me, Abby. It's happened before, but I can't seem to prevent it. Don't tell me to lock Grandma in her room or send her down the basement. She won't go.

WIDOW IN INDIANA

DEAR WIDOW: Has it ever occurred to you that your elderly mother may be emotionally or mentally unstable? It takes two to battle. Whether your mother is right or wrong, to keep the peace, keep quiet, and you'll have your problem solved.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Growing Older

Why Penalize Over 65?

By Harold Blumenfeld

You may already know that January 1 the earnings limitation on Social Security benefits was raised from $2,520 to $2,760 for the year. But don't be deluded. This doesn't mean that you will receive an additional $240 in cash during the year which you can spend to repair the car, buy new clothes or blow for a night on the town.

It's only a new ceiling for the outside earnings you may receive for working before they start chipping away at your normal Social Security benefits.

Let's suppose you are on someone's weekly payroll, doing regular work and taking home a small salary check which has kept you just under the old limitation on outside earnings. Your employer thinks you have been doing a good job and wants to give you a $5 or $10 raise in weekly salary. But this new $240 raise in earnings limitation only comes to a little more than $4 a week and it puts you on the horns of a Social Security dilemma.

The merit raise may be good for the ego but bad for the pocketbook even though Social Security officials tell us if we earn more than $2,760, only $1 will be deducted from every $2 of extra earned income.

Which is confusing, demeaning and grossly unjust for the man or woman over 65, but under 72, who wants to work to obtain some much-needed extra income and to keep alive by doing something productive.

Just like our tax laws, the Social Security system has loopholes which favor them that have and penalizes them that don't have and who need the extra income. Money from investments, such as stocks, bonds, real estate, etc., is not counted under the ceiling of outside earnings. Only the money for which someone actually does a day's or a week's work.

If a person is not on a payroll and is paid for specific work for his extra earnings, his Social Security benefits will be reduced or eliminated only in those months when he exceeds the allowable amount. And the person who received a small weekly check from a payroll computer finds his earnings probably have edged past the new ceiling limitation and he loses some or all of his normal benefits.

A friend before his retirement was recognized as one of the country's leading newsphotographers and photo-journalists. Last year he accepted a part-time teaching position at a Texas university. After he finished paying taxes and maintenance on his California home, income tax, rent on an apartment in Texas, and other expenses, his new earnings matched against the loss of his Social Security benefits, cost him money in the short and long run, which is demoralizing. He has been offered the same temporary teaching position for 1976. And although he has such a great store of knowledge and professional experience to impart to the college students, he is thinking seriously of delaying his acceptance for another year. Then he will be 72 and won't have to worry about any cuts in his Social Security benefits if he works.

I have learned of a Citizens' Lobby being organized on a local level in several parts of the country, with the main objective to rescind Social Security limitations on outside earnings. If there is such a lobby in your neighborhood, join it and work with it. If not, get your older friends to help set up such a working group. And maybe soon we can join all of these forceful splinter groups into one powerful national organization and do our own lobbying in Washington.

Irwin Still Haunting Watson

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Hale Irwin bristled at the question. Clearly, he was tired of answering it.

"Let's get out there and print those words, boys," the bespectacled former University of Colorado defensive back snapped. "Keep the faith, brother.

"No, it doesn't bother me. And yes, it would be nice to be recognized."

Irwin may not like to talk about the amount of recognition he does or doesn't get, but the fact remains — he probably is the most underrated player on the tour.

In a re-play of the 1974 U.S. Open, the nine-year pro from St. Louis came from behind to beat British Open champion Tom Watson and capture first place money of $37,000 in the Los Angeles Open. Two years ago, he won the U.S. Open at Winged Foot, N.Y., after trailing Watson by one shot after three rounds.

In the Los Angeles Open, he trailed Watson by three shots at the end of three rounds and was five shots back after the first three holes Sunday.

"But I just hate to give up the ship and I wasn't about to give up," said Irwin, 30.

"I still had 15 holes to play. What I needed were quick birdies — which I got. What I needed from Tom were some mistakes quickly — which I got. So I guess it was the roll of the dice."

Irwin, who ranked fourth in money won on the tour last year with $205,380, posted his sixth career triumph.

Watson, who led after the second and third rounds, finished with a 73 to wind up two shots behind Irwin's 72-hole score of 272, a tournament course record. The old record was 275 set by Ben Hogan in 1948 and equalled by Pat Fitzsimons last year.

Although the pair played in separate threesomes, it was strictly an Irwin-Watson shootout, and Irwin, winner of two straight World Piccadilly Match Play championships in England, was the superior head-to-head man.

"After number six, we had 12 holes of play match," the winner said. "Match play golf takes a lot out of you. It's very taxing for me, not only did I have to give it the physical effort to play this golf course, which is very demanding, I had to think what I was doing and I had to think what Tom was doing too."

"I asked my caddy, 'What did he do?' He said it didn't matter. I told him, 'Listen, tell me, I want to know what he's doing because it's important to me. It's important how I play.' I am an aggressive player, and I hate to take the defensive."

but if I have a five-shot lead, I do play differently."

Irwin's check gave him $69,995 for the winter and the momentum going into this week's Tournament Players Division championship in Florida. Watson got $21,090.

"Any win is satisfying, but I like the way I won," Irwin continued. "I wouldn't have wanted to win with a 70."

"I did shoot in the 60s for four straight days on a course that's pretty darn difficult and I'm pretty proud of that."

Irwin's card included a 60-foot chip shot for an eagle three on the 566-yard opening hole. However, Watson, playing in the threesome behind Irwin, matched that and Irwin bogeyed the second and third holes.

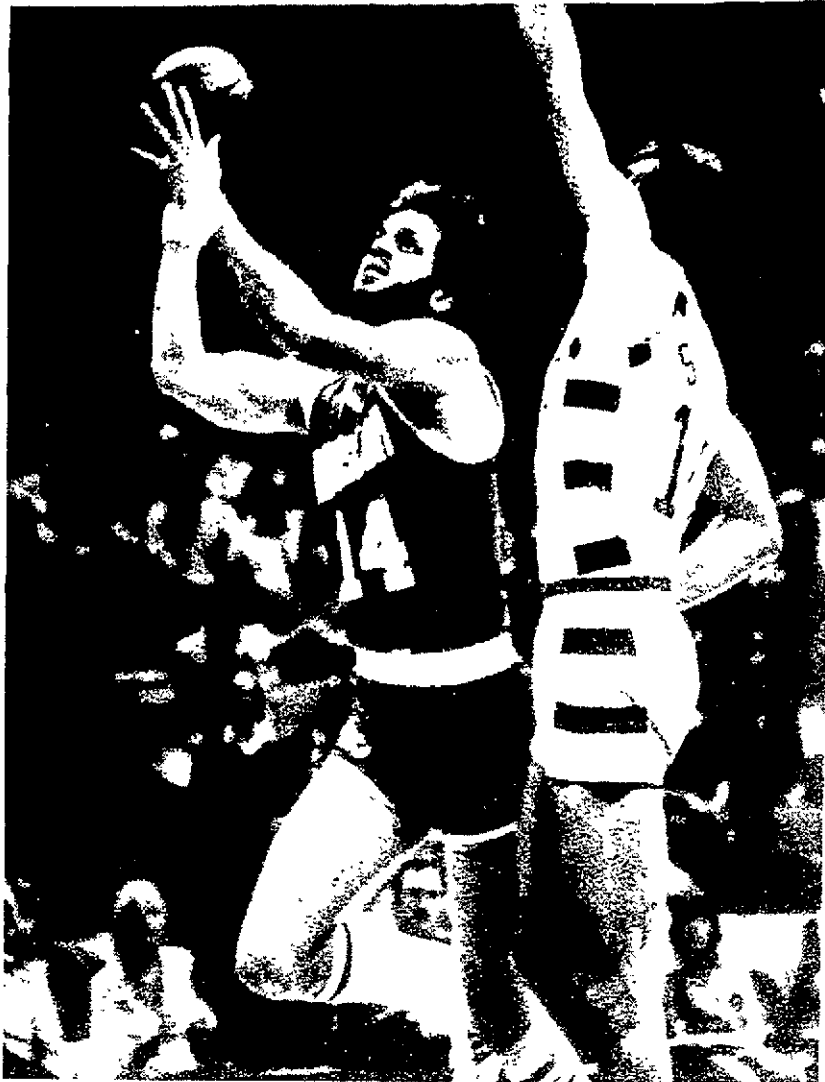

He got back in the match with birdie putts of 15 and 12 feet on the fifth and seventh holes while Watson bogeyed four and six and double bogeyed five.

"Five and six were very important holes," Irwin noted. "Tom made a double bogey at five and I birdied the hole, so that was three shots. Then I got it up and down from nearly an impossible place on six. It looked like I was going to make at least a four, and I wound up with a three."

"Then he bogeyed the hole. So I picked up four shots in two holes."

Irwin's previous rounds were 69-69-66 while Watson had 67-66-68 going into the last 18.

"I felt like Tom had been playing the kind of golf that would be hard for him to match," Irwin said. "You just don't go out and shoot the kind of scores he was shooting and not have some meltdown somewhere. I know I wouldn't want to go out tomorrow and try to match the scores I shot in this tournament."

Kathy Survives

SARASOTA, Fla. (UPI) — Veteran Kathy Whitworth survived a challenge by 21-year-old Hollis Stacy Sunday to win the $60,000 Bent Tree Ladies Golf Classic by one stroke.

The 36-year-old Whitworth, who won her 76th LPGA golf tournament, went into the 18th hole tied with Stacy but clinched the $8,500 first prize when her opponent's drive on the final hole went into the water. Stacy bogeyed the hole while Whitworth made a routine par.

Whitworth finished with an erratic 71 for a 54-hole score of 210, six under par over the wind-swept 6,115-yard, par 72 Bent Tree Country Club course.

One stroke behind Stacy, who shot a 69, was Amy

Alcott, who held the lead the first two rounds. Alcott, who was hoping to celebrate her 20th birthday with a championship, lost her putting touch and faded to a 75 for a 212 total.

Sandra Post shot a 73 to share fourth place at 213 with Sandra Palmer, who had a 74.

Stacy, a three-year LPGA veteran from Boca Raton, Fla., had started the day four strokes from the lead but pulled into a tie with Whitworth when she sank a 20-foot birdie putt on the par 3, 17th hole. Whitworth bogeyed the same hole.

However, her tee shot on the 18th sailed into water on the right. A 15-foot putt for par missed to the right side of the hole.

"She made only one mistake the whole round and it cost her the tournament," said Whitworth, a native of Richardson, Tex., who increased her leading all-time LPGA money winnings to $589,886. "I know Hollis will relive that hole for weeks. The next time she's in that position she'll be a little more careful."

Stacy agreed. "I got a little excited after that two-stroke swing on the 17th," she said. "My heart was going about 1,000 beats a second. I just swung a little quick. The next time, I'll know there is only one way to play that hole—safe."

Stacy's score was the second best of the day. Whitworth finished with five birdies and four bogeys on the day.

Russell's Sonics Are Ready

By United Press International

The Seattle Sonics are on a win streak and Coach Bill Russell says he isn't concerned about the upcoming extended road trip. He just hopes the team can return home holding second place in the Pacific Division of the National Basketball Association.

The Sonics Sunday handed the Los Angeles Lakers a 97-91 beating before a national television audience. The victory equaled Seattle's consecutive win record of seven and pushed the Sonics a 1½ games in front of the Lakers in the battle for second in the Pacific Division.

"I think both teams had rating fever," joked Russell. "That's when you play on television and nobody wants to look bad so you play conservatively. We did not play with artistic prowess but we did work very hard defensively. There are three speeds you can play in—fast, slow and half-fast. Both teams played half-fast."

Russell sighted his team's defensive effort on Laker center Kareem Abdul-Jabbar as a key.

"We wanted to limit Kareem to the long-range sky-hook. Our guards tried to check his sweep on shorter shots." Despite the Sonics' efforts, Jabbar led the Lakers with 24 points, hauled down 14 rebounds and was credited with five assists.

Russell and the Sonics now face their last extended road trip of the season, which consists of nine games in 15 days. Despite a road record of 9-19 this season, Russell isn't particularly concerned.

"I hope we can come back in second place but we're not setting any particular goals. I've told the team to play as well as can and let the results take care of themselves," he said.

"This team is composed of a great group of kids. When we lost 11 of 13 prior to this streak, we came closer together instead of becoming fragmented. These guys are winners because they're winners as human beings. We're maturing to the point where we're helping each other out."

Warriors 94, 76ers 93

Phil Smith scored 38 points, leading Golden State to its fifth win in the last six games and handing Philadelphia its fifth straight loss. Jamaal Wilkes had 21 points for the Warriors and George McGinnis led the 76ers with 21 and 19 rebounds.

Bucks 115, Bulls 112

Brian Winters scored with 5:10 left to give Milwaukee the lead for the first time and added two free throws with three seconds left to clinch the victory, which gave the Bucks a half game lead in the Midwest Division. Bob Love scored 30 points for Chicago.

Cavs 107, Rockets 103

A crowd of 20,192 at Richfield, Ohio, saw Cleveland beat Houston with the help of a three-point play by Austin Carr with 56 seconds left and two free throws by Jim Clemons with 17 seconds remaining. The Cavs trailed by as many as 16s in the third period but wound up scoring 62 points in the second half.

Jazz 102, Hawks 94

Pete Maravich's four crucial points in the last two minutes lifted New Orleans past Atlanta after the score was tied at 94-94. The victory snapped the Jazz' six-game losing streak. Maravich scored 21 points while Lou Hudson had 27 for the Hawks.

Colonels 121, Spirits 119

Wil Jones hit two straight field goals and Bird Averitt added a free throw in the final 45 seconds of overtime, giving Kentucky its win over St. Louis. Lou Dampier had 25 points for Kentucky which has beaten St. Louis eight times in 10 games this season.

Nets 115, Nuggets 95

Julius Erving scored 24 points and had 17 rebounds in a splendid performance that led the Nets past Denver. The Nets won the game by outscoring the Nuggets 25-16 in the third period and had a 17-point lead before Denver staged an unsuccessful rally.

Spurs 107, Squires 98

Larry Kenon and Billy Paultz combined for 49 points and 34 rebounds for San Antonio, which dealt Virginia its 21st straight loss on the road. The Spurs outrebounded the Squires 59-28. Mack Calvin had 35 points for the Squires.

Rene Robert Respects That First Goal

By UPI

Rene Robert scored a goal for the Buffalo Sabres Sunday night but it was obviously the wrong one.

Robert was foiled on a penalty shot during the second period of a scoreless tie between the Sabres and Canadiens...and Montreal went on to post a 4-2 victory over Buffalo.

"The first goal is always important, especially on a penalty shot," said Robert. "They probably would have stopped playing for a while."

"The puck started to bounce on me and I missed the net. I had him (goalkeeper Ken Dryden) beat but the puck started to bounce at the blue line and I had to look down on it. I wanted to shoot low on his stick side and I had him going the other way but the puck started rolling on me."

The Canadiens took advantage of Robert's personal misfortune to take a 1-0 lead on a goal by Yvan Cournoyer and then a 2-1 lead on a score by Guy Lapointe. Gil Perreault gave Buffalo its initial tie and Robert's goal made it 2-2.

Robert's tally was on a disputed play, with the Canadiens claiming he knocked the puck into the net when his stick was above the shoulders.

The goal aroused the Canadiens, with Cournoyer scoring his second goal of the game on a deflection of a 35-foot shot by defenseman Serge Savard at 10:53 for a 3-2 lead. Guy Lafleur lessened the Canadiens' concern with the clincher, his 39th goal of the season, on a 2-on-1 break at 17:40.

In other games, Boston ripped the New York Rangers 5-2, Detroit tied Pittsburgh 2-2, California trampled Chicago 5-2, Minnesota disposed of Kansas City 6-3 and the New York Islanders blanked Washington 4-0.

Bruins 5, Rangers 2

Gerry Cheevers posted his third victory in four games since returning from Cleveland of the World Hockey Association to help increase Boston's lead over second place Buffalo in the Adams Division to 10 points. Ken Hodge, Wayne Cashman, Bobby Schumatz, Terry O'Reilly and Andre Savard scored for Boston.

Red Wings 2, Penguins 2

Bill Hogaboam scored the tying goal at 15:20 of the third period to keep Detroit 16 points back of third place Pittsburgh in the Norris Division. Rick Kehoe and Syl Apps gave the Penguins an early 2-0 lead but Buster Harvey initiated Detroit's come back at 13:33 of the third period. Golden Seals 5, Black Hawks 2

North Stars 6, Scouts 3

Ernie Hicke and Norm Gratton each picked up a goal and an assist to give Minnesota its first victory in 12 games and extend Kansas City's losing streak to six games. It was the North Stars' first victory since Jan. 28 when they beat the Scouts 9-3.

Islanders 4, Capitals 0

Glenn Resch, who had been out for six games with the flu, kicked out 29 shots to record his sixth shutout of the season. Clark Gillies scored two goals and assisted on a third to pace New York, which also got goals from Billy Harris and Jean Potvin.

WHA

Marc Tardif scored twice to lead Quebec past New England...Del Hall tallied with 51 seconds left in the game to push Phoenix past Indianapolis...Paul Baxter and Gary MacGregor scored third period goals to help Cleveland nose out Houston...Butch Deadmarsh's goal at 1:33 of the third period powered Calgary past Toronto...and Barry Long's goal with 2:53 left in the game enabled Edmonton to down Minnesota.

Spring Training Could Be Little Late This Year

NEW YORK (UPI) — Spring training is supposed to get underway a week from today but from the way things look now, it won't.

Marvin Miller, head of the Players Association, has a bit of a problem. He has negotiated magnificently getting the ballplayers practically everything they ever wanted, but he overlooked one small detail.

It's still the owners' ball. If they don't wish to put it in play, the result is obvious. Spring training doesn't open, and this is the prospect Marvin Miller faces now.

Miller's trip this past week did not end on a particularly high note.

For one thing, he didn't draw too much of a turnout during his stopover in Cincinnati Friday. One hundred fifteen players were on hand Wednesday in Los Angeles to get an up-date from him on how negotiations were going with the owners and 24 were present to hear him the following day in Chicago, but only seven showed up in Cincinnati. Of that number, Merv Rettenmund was the lone representative from the world champion Reds and he was committed because he's Cin's player rep.

This was supposed to have been a regional get-together in which players from the entire area were invited, and the fact so few of them did show up was not lost upon Miller.

SPORT PARADE

Milton Richman,
UPI Sports Editor

"How many Reds can we expect?" he asked Rettenmund before the meeting got underway.

"There's nobody else on our team in town right now," Rettenmund said.

Later that day, Bob Howsam, the Reds' President, took a swipe at Miller, accusing him of "playing with words," which he is if you consider two different statements he has made. On one hand, he said he wants to table negotiations with the owners on the reserve clause until the end of the season because by then the players would have a better idea of how to modify it, and on the other hand Miller said the players haven't made any proposals to modify the reserve clause because they don't want to change it at all.

Miller wasn't fooling Howsam one bit. "After all, the reserve clause has been completely changed in the last few weeks, and Miller says the association doesn't want to modify it," the Reds' boss scoffed.

The owners and players still are without a Basic Agreement. They're no closer to one than they were this past Dec. 31, which is when the last written agreement between them ran out, and without such an accord the owners have no intention of opening spring training.

Bruce Land Canton, the veteran reliever with the Atlanta Braves, was one of those who attended Miller's briefing in Cincinnati. He was speaking for most big leaguers when he said becoming a free agent primarily would benefit the big-name players and not do much for a player like him or for the majority of others. He also said he knew of no player who wants spring training delayed.

The owners insist upon a new Agreement before they open shop. The only way there can be a new Agreement will be for the players to compromise.

Any compromise by the players would have to be in the form of a modification of the reserve clause. To achieve that would require a written waiver by every player in the majors and Marvin Miller doesn't have a prayer of getting that. What's more, he knows it.

Miller can not negotiate any settlement which abrogates the right of a single ballplayer as set forth by arbitrator Peter Seitz and approved by District Court Judge John W. Oliver. Those two men gave all big leaguers, players with limited experience like Bill Madlock, John Montefusco and Gary Carter, the same free agent rights as Andy Messersmith, and now unless the Court of Appeal overturns the decision, nobody, not Marvin Miller, not Bowie Kuhn, not anybody else, can negotiate away those rights.

So while the players have the freedom, the owners have the ball. If the players become that eager to get back on the field, that determined to draw their pay checks for doing what they love to do best, inevitably they will have to come back to the owners and likely negotiate with them on their own. Marvin Miller hopes it never comes to that, but it could.

Oregon Ends UCLA's 98-Game Home Streak

By United Press International
Humility has never been one of Oregon coach Dick Harter's outstanding virtues. "This victory wasn't unexpected," Harter said after the Ducks had ended UCLA's

Pauley Pavilion winning streak Saturday at 98 games. However, he certainly didn't envision the 65-45 score by which the Ducks became the first visiting team to win in Pauley Pavilion since March 6, 1970.

The Ducks' domination of the game prevents the result from being labeled a fluke. "Oregon played a great game," UCLA coach Gene Bartow said. "I don't think they're going to lose again this season."

"We've played phenomenal basketball the last few weeks," boasted Harter, whose team has won nine straight. "We were clearly the better team tonight."

Greg Ballard scored 16 points and Ron Lee 13 to pace the Oregon offense, but it was the Ducks' defensive performance that was exceptional as the fourth-ranked Bruins scored only 14 points in the first half.

The Bruins, who now lead the Pacific-8 Conference by one game over Oregon, Oregon State and Washington, trailed by 30-14 at the half and never got any closer than 40-26 after the intermission.

Top-ranked Indiana ran its record to 23-0 with a 76-64 victory over Minnesota. Indiana center Kent Benson was held to only six points, but Tom Abernethy came through with 22 for the Hoosiers. Scott May finished with 18.

Earl Tatum's outside shooting carried second-ranked Marquette to a 72-62 victory over No. 14 Louisville. Tatum finished with 23 points in the nationally televised game.

Mitch Kupchak's last-second shot gave third-ranked North Carolina a 73-71 victory over Virginia. Phil Ford led the Tar Heels with 22 points and Kupchak added 15.

The Tar Heels' nationally-ranked Atlantic Coast Conference rivals did not fare as well with No. 7 Maryland and 15th-ranked North Carolina State each losing.

Mark Crow scored 19 points and Tate Armstrong 16 to lead Duke to a 69-67 upset of Maryland. Clemson held Kenny Hubbard scored 22 points and Rickey Green 20 to lead 11th-ranked Michigan to a 92-81 victory over Purdue.

No. 12 Missouri solidified its lead in the Big Eight with a 95-84 overtime victory over Nebraska as Willie Smith scored 31 points and Kim Anderson 25.

St. John's front line of Cecil Rellford, Beaver Smith and George Johnson combined for 44 points and 35 rebounds to lead the 16th-ranked Redmen to a 100-78 victory over Syracuse.

No. 19 Utah was upset by Brigham Young, 84-83, and knocked out of first place in the Western Athletic Conference by Arizona. Verne Thompson scored 24 points and Jay Cheesman 22 to lead Brigham Young, while Arizona gained the top spot in the WAC with a 64-45 victory over UTEP.

Sonny Parker scored 21 points to lead Texas A&M to a 70-69 victory over Arkansas and assure the Aggies of at least a tie for the Southwest Conference regular season title.

Ilie Dethrones Connors

SALISBURY, Md. (UPI) — Ilie Nastase began his Sunday having breakfast with his close friend Jimmy Connors and ended the day playing him in an exhibition match in Providence, R.I.

In between, however, the Rumanian star took the National Indoor Tennis crown from his American doubles partner 6-2, 6-3, 7-6.

The victory ended Connors' three-year reign as champion of the $50,000 event. Nastase, who also won in 1970, captured this year's title without loss of a set during the week's play.

Prior to their showdown, Nastase jibed at Connors in jest: "I'm going to make you sweat and swear. I'm going to run you around like a turkey," and he did.

Connors offered no excuses. "I just didn't have what it took to execute today," he told newsmen. "Nasty played extremely well today and I didn't do anything to make him not play well."

Nastase contended he was "lucky on some of my shots and I did a few unexpected things. Whoever does the unexpected usually wins in our matches because we play together so often that we anticipate what we do normally."

Nastase fell behind at the outset of the match, losing service in the opening game to trail 0-2. But he then ripped off six straight games, breaking Connors three times and scoring 11 of the last 12 points of the set.

He controlled play from the base line and controlled key points with passing shots as Connors sought to come to the net.

The American star, bothered by a bout of flu earlier in the week and forced to play a grueling five set semifinals against Alex Mayer Saturday night, also was erratic, hitting frequently into the net against Nastase's underspin shots.

The latter continued to run his doubles partner back and forth in the second set, taking a 4-2 advantage with a service break in the sixth game. Connors broke back but then dropped service at deuce and Nastase closed out the set on an ace—one of six in the match—to put Connors deep in the hole.

Backhander

Chris Evert, playing nearly flawless tennis and using every shot in her game, ground out a workwoman-like 6-4, 6-2 victory over Rosie Casals Sunday to win the $15,000 first prize in the $75,000 Virginia Slims Tournament. (UPI)

Sheepdog Places First

KINGSTON

Greg Etter and Old English Sheepdog Sailor won first place at the graduation exercises of the Ulster Dog Training Club's beginners class at the municipal auditorium.

Cynthia Speigel and Cairn Terrier Carney placed second, with William Whalen and English Pointer Jeff were third; Ann Zeeh, with Miniature Schnauzer Schatzl were fourth.

In the group of inexperienced handlers, Linda Boice and Irish Setter Scamus won first place. Michele Rea Basset Hound Schaefer placed second, followed by Hamlet Montero and Irish Setter Bepi, and Virginia Hubbel and Wire Haired Dachshund Baron in fourth place.

Mildred Koschara and Irish Wolfhound Willow took first place in the experienced handlers group, while John Conway and German Shepherd Prince placed second.

New Classes will start on Feb. 24. For more information, call Marie Sanford of West Hurley at 679-9913.

Chris Checks Rosie

DETROIT (UPI) — Five years ago Rosie Casals was a nervous 22-year-old shooting for the top prize in the first women's pro tennis tournament ever held.

She took home $1,000 more Sunday in losing to Chris Evert in the finals of the 100th Virginia Slims tournament than the entire original field of eight played for five years back.

Evert took a 6-4, 6-2 victory and picked up $15,000 for her impeccable efforts in the $75,000 tournament. Casals won $8,500.

Evert, 21, was one year away from astonishing the tennis world at Forest Hills when Casals, 27, defeated Judy Dalton, 5-7, 6-1, 7-5, on Oct. 3, 1971 in Houston, Tex., in the first women's pro tournament. The inaugural Slims was worth just one-tenth what Sunday's 100th was worth.

Casals, seeded third, has not beaten Evert since 1973, her only victory over her top-seeded opponent in the 14 times they have met.

"When somebody has won 12 or 13 times in a row, they're bound to lose one," Casals said after she had seen her serve-volley game decimated once again by the big baseline hitter. "The pressure was on Chris."

"Anybody who has that kind of a streak going is expected to win," she said. "It's got to be taxing. She's starting to show the pressure now."

"Her whole approach to the game has changed from what it was three years ago," Casals said. "She's established. She's No. 1, everybody's gunning for her."

"Everybody is free to experiment against me," Evert said. "They play loose, try things against me I've got to play the same kind of game that got me here."

Vilas Takes Classic

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Guillermo Vilas of Argentina justified his top ranking in the $60,000 St. Louis Tennis Classic Sunday by methodically defeating India's Vijay Amritraj 4-6, 6-0, 6-4 in the championship match.

Vilas, making his first appearance in a final match in World Championship Tennis, won the $17,000 first-prize money while Amritraj got $7,000.

There were several similarities to Vilas comeback semifinal victory over Mexico's Raul Ramirez Saturday night in which he also lost the first set 6-4. But in contrast to his tiebreaking second-set win in that match, he blitzed Amritraj in six straight games, losing only 12 points in 21 minutes to square the match.

The first game of the third set was critical as it was Saturday night when a lucky net cord went Vilas' way when Amritraj was down 30-40 on his service. Amritraj fell behind 4-1 in the fifth game but temporarily rallied when he broke Vilas in the sixth game and then held his own service in the seventh on two aces to trail only 4-3.

Hawk Swimmers Lose

NEW PALTZ

New Paltz State's varsity swimming team dropped a double-dual meet Saturday at Central Connecticut to the host school and Bridgewater.

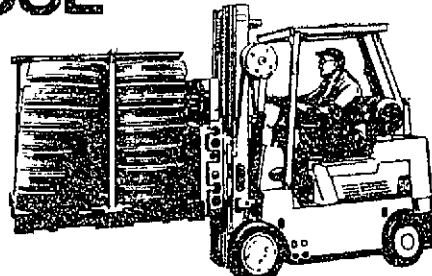

The scores were Central Conn. 81, New Paltz 30; Bridgewater 60, New Paltz 32; and Central Conn. 77, Bridgewater 36.

Felipe Gonzales had the only two wins for New Paltz, taking both the required diving (122.8 points) and the optional diving (216.95 points).

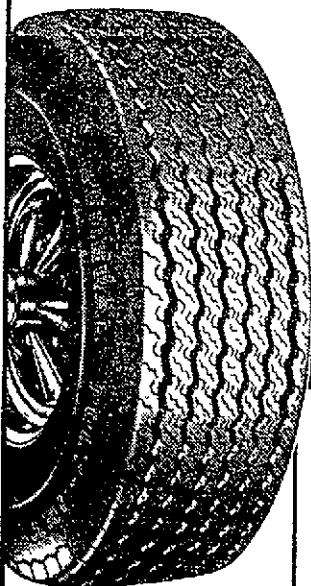

Dave Loeffler of New Paltz was second in the 200 yard backstroke.

New Paltz is at the SUNYAC championship meet March 4-6. That event will be held at Brockport.

Consumer Protection

KINGSTON The week of Feb. 23-28 has been designated Postal Consumer Protection Week.

"Our consumer protection program works through the Inspection Service, Consumer Protection Office of the Law Department, the Judicial Office and the consumer advocate," said Kingston Postmaster Oscar V. Newkirk.

Working together, these four departments resolve complaints of alleged mail order swindles when postal customers fail to receive merchandise ordered or promised refunds, or find that the service or product is not as advertised, he explained.

Where violation of the Mail Fraud statute is indicated, postal inspectors refer the case

History Lectures

STONE RIDGE

Louis Amaru, an associate professor of history at Ulster County Community College, will speak on "The Evolution of Dissatisfaction" at 8 p.m. on Wednesday at the Stone Ridge campus.

This talk, open to the public without charge, is part of a series on the "Era of the American Revolution" being presented by Ulster County College as a public service during the nation's Bicentennial celebration.

The talk will be held in Room 635 in the Jacob Hardenger Building.

March 3 — "British and Loyalist Viewpoints"

March 10 — "War and Its Impact on Society"

March 17 — "Revolutionary Consequences"

March 31 — "Road to the Constitution"

Amaru reports the series should interest anyone in the community who wants to learn about the events leading up to the Revolution and beyond it to the adoption of the Constitution in 1789.

Further information can be obtained by calling the Social Science Division Office at the college.

Rolison Against Concorde

POUGHKEEPSIE

State Sen. Jay P. Rolison, R-39th Dist., has announced his support for legislation designed to ban the "Concorde" supersonic jet from landing at Kennedy International Airport on Long Island.

"It would be patently unfair for the people of New York State who reside in the affected area to allow the Concorde to land," said Rolison. "There are environmental uncertainties connected with the Concorde landings and I believe testing should be done at Dulles International Airport, near Washington, D.C., where there is not a great concentration of population."

Rolison predicted early Senate passage of the bill which would prohibit the Port Authority of New York and New Jersey from admitting aircraft with noise levels above 108 decibels. The Concorde exceeds that decibel level.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You're very resourceful today and should succeed in getting what you go after, though you may not enjoy full cooperation.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You may have to alter an arrangement today and you could find it hard to please all concerned. You'll be able to work things out.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Something unusual, but beneficial careerwise, may unexpectedly develop for you today.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) If you have any important decision to make today, make them while you're still bright and fresh.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Don't be afraid to try new methods or techniques today. Save yourself time and steps by being imaginative.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) If you're restless today, alter your usual routine. Do something impromptu that's fun.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You're apt to be more motivated today if some type of profit is involved for those for whom you provide.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Your most promising areas of endeavor today are in the imaginative or creative realms. Put your bright ideas to work.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You should be able to manage business situations quite competently today, but you're likely to be careless in other ways.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You could experience a beneficial happening today that may be of material value. Welcome favors gratefully.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) In dealing with friends today, keep everything purely social. Don't let them get involved in your financial affairs or vice versa.

FORUM

By Jean Adams, Ph.D.

'SQUARE': (Q.) I'm having troubles with Luke. He and his family are really square. He has to be in at 8:30 on week nights and at 9 on weekends and he has to go up to the mountains nearly every weekend with his parents.

He is no kissy; he is 6 foot 3 and weighs about 170. But I'm not sure if I like him or not. Do you think I should still go out with him? Do you think there is any possible way to get him unsquare? He is 15 and I am 14. — Undecided in Pennsylvania.

(A.) Luke appears to have strong family ties. In most cases this is good. If I were you I would not try to change him. That probably would do no good, and it might cause more trouble.

Instead I would decide whether I liked him enough as he is to continue as his girl friend. As he grows older he will change naturally. You may like him better then.

GRANDFATHER: (Q.) My grandfather won't hardly ever let me go out with Edwin, my boy friend, especially when he is drinking. He tells me he wishes I would leave and never come back. I ran away once but had nowhere to go and so I came home.

He also talks nasty to Edwin. Edwin and I plan to get married, but he is 16 and I am 15 and we want to wait until we are older. — Unwanted in Alabama.

(A.) Your very long letter, which I have shortened, says nothing about your parents or your grandmother or any other relatives.

If you are living with your grandfather and he is in full charge of you and you have no other close relatives, talk to your school counselor and your minister about conditions in your home.

You may need outside help. There is probably some agency in your city that can help you.

(Write to Dr. Jean Adams, care of The Daily Freeman, P.O. Box 2402, Houston, Texas 77001. Every letter is read, but because of the great number received Dr. Adams cannot send personal replies.)

heart South ruffed, led another spade and discarded dummy's last heart. East ruffed and led a third heart. South discarded a spade, ruffed with dummy's ace of trumps, and led the six of diamonds to his king. Then he cashed the queen of trumps and led spades to wind up making four add.

Oswald: "Not much consolation when he had a cinch spade slam."

Jim: "No, but the play was a winner. At the other table, South used a complicated series of asking bids. He found out that his partner held the ace of diamonds, but seven spades and went down one. The diamond jack was a sure winner for the defense."

By Oswald &amp; James Jacoby

Oswald: "We get lots of letters about freak hands. Maybe we should discuss some of them."

Jim: "Here's a dilly. It occurred in a friendly team match. At table one South decided to be really brilliant and wound up playing two diamonds. He ruffed the heart lead and decided to play to make sure or nearly sure of success at two diamonds. So he led the ace and king of spades, discarding one heart from dummy. East ruffed the second spade and led a second

Water Dept. Project Estimates

KINGSTON The Kingston Water Department, as long ago as Nov. 13 of last year, submitted project estimates for funding under the Community Development Program totaling more than $1.2 million, according to reports released by City Planner Robert E. Pritchard.

The water department report of Friday details projected improvements in five areas, Broadway West, Ponckhockie, Midtown East, Central Broadway and a Midtown area listed only as "water system improvements recommended for Community Development Funds."

The department targets more than half its requests in two areas: Midtown East for a total of $431,796 and Broadway West for a total of $349,990. Ponckhockie is budgeted at $219,585 while general improvements are figured at $233,855. Central Broadway would get $29,600. Pritchard's press release, ordered by Mayor Francis R. Koenig, still leaves open the question of how much the water department asked for this year how much it got and when its requests would be implemented, if at all.

Under "Broadway West CDA Water System Improvements" for instance, the report shows new eight-inch mains in the Hone Street-President's Place-Hunter to Hudson Streets section of the city for a total of $90,000. community Development's announced plans for Broadway West for 1976 do not show that type of activity west of Wurts Street.

area of Broadway West but the water department makes no mention of water improvements in that area.

Pritchard says that water department requests will be treated on a per-project basis and that until plans are finalized on individual projects, estimates on water improvement costs would not be valid.

CD Advisory Council Chairman Alderman Clifford Sin-

sabaugh (D-10th Ward) has said that water improvements would be made as part of overall project improvements and not as separate projects in and of themselves, as in the case of the Washington Avenue/Greenkill Avenue loop funded by CD last year for $112,000.

THE SAVINGS BANKS WANT TO COMPETE WITH US FOR CHECKING ACCOUNTS. PROVIDED WE MAINTAIN CERTAIN RESTRICTIONS.

We're all for fair competition.

It's what made America the most powerful economic force in history.

But we are against what the savings banks are pushing for now.

Competition where one side has the advantages—and the other side has its hands tied by law. (For example, at present, commercial banks are legally prohibited from paying savings interest as high as theirs.)

If savings banks retain these advantages plus gain checking accounts, commercial banks will be hard put to attract the funds they need to do business.

And in that event, we could all be losers.

In time, this could affect consumer and commercial lending, as well as municipal financing, across New York State. With potential economic consequences which we feel, at the very least, deserve further study on the part of the legislative leadership and banking authorities.

But let's be clear. We do not oppose change per se in banking. For example, we'd like the right to pay the same interest as the savings banks.

What we do oppose is dangerously piecemeal legislation like the savings bank checking account bill. And what we favor is legislation based on careful study of its long-range impact. Legislation that will not only broaden the availability of one service or another—but truly help banks serve you better in a wide variety of areas. Now and in the future.

How you can help. Urge your legislator to resist pressure groups—and demand public hearings on this complex issue. Let's not head into something till we can clearly see where we're going.

Let's think - before we act.

THE CONCERNED BANKERS OF NEW YORK STATE.
